VOL. 64 NO. 238 TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, SUNDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1967 TEN CENTS

VISITORS TO SHOSHONE Falls will see lots of water and plenty of ice. The deep canyon keeps the air cool and the roadway at the bottom is covered with a thick coating of ice. Mist rises high in the air and a large rainbow can be seen over the falls during daylight hours. A visit was made to the falls recently, and the beauty of ice was captured on film. The results can be seen on Page 13.

Viet Cong Regroup, Hit Back At Federal Troops

SAIGON (AP) — With their ranks depleted by heavy casualties, three Viet Cong battalions split up into small units in the swampy Mekong Delta Saturday and struck back at South Vietnamese army troops who surrounded and mauled them in a scorching battle the day before. Sharp night fighting was reported.

The bodies of teen-age boys were found among the enemy dead along the muddy banks of the Thac Lac Canal, about 100 miles southwest of Saigon in the U-Minh Forest. Four boys, 13 to 17 years old, were captured. U.S. officials saw in this indications the Viet Cong, who have controlled most of the delta for years, were weakening and hurting for manpower.

The South Vietnamese forces, backed up by U.S. Army helicopter gunships, claimed 365 Viet Cong killed by the time fighting broke off Friday night and the U.S. Command in Saigon called it one of the government army's greatest victories of the war. Only a handful of U.S. military advisers were with the ground troops.

The three enemy battalions broke up into smaller fighting groups after the battle and began hitting back Saturday morning. Fighting waned at midday but picked up again after nightfall.

Friday's action capped a week of successful allied operations in the delta. A combined U.S.-South Vietnamese Riverine Task Force boxed in a veteran Viet Cong unit of about 300 men along a canal 66 miles southwest of Saigon last Monday and killed 235 of the enemy troops. Four of them were women.

It started out a week in which the allies throughout the nation initiated actions that resulted in more than 1,000 enemy troops killed. Troops of the U.S. American Division near Da Nang killed another 99 in a battle Saturday.

The passing of the monsoon rains from the south into the northern part of the country, signalled the start of heavy fighting in the lush delta.

South Vietnam's new premier, Nguyen Van Loc, traveled to coastal Tam Ky to present three Viet Cong defectors with awards equivalent to nearly $6,000 in South Vietnamese piasters—an amount that would take most rural South Vietnamese almost 25 years to earn. Annual per capita income is $250 in rural areas.

More than $3,000 of the money went to Dang Xuan Hung, who led government forces to a large enemy weapons cache. Pham Hanh, who led troops to a cache of Viet Cong communications equipment, got about $900.

The third award of nearly $2,000 went to Loc To Tran Coi, who led his 38-man Viet Cong platoon to surrender last Wednesday.

Replace Kidneys

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa announced Saturday its first double kidney transplant — from one body to two recipients — but said the body of one recipient rejected its new kidney.

Surgeons at Johannesburg General Hospital said they got both kidneys from an unidentified boy and transplanted one in a woman and the other in a man Friday night.

A hospital spokesman said the unidentified man's body rejected the new kidney and he was placed back on a kidney machine to await another suitable kidney.

City Institute Ends After 2-Day Session

An Institute to help newly elected city officials improve understanding of their official duties closed Friday in Twin Falls with discussions on budgeting, financing, planning and zoning.

Sponsored by the Idaho League of Cities and the College of Southern Idaho, the institute was Thursday and Friday with more than 40 elected officials from Magic Valley communities attending various sessions.

Mayor Joe Peters, Burley, discussed sources of revenue a city has at its disposal, and with the assistance of other Burley city officials, explained bonding procedures, establishing of separate and special funds, budget preparation, and other financial problems.

David Mead, chairman of the Twin Falls planning and zoning commission, discussed subdivision controls and outlined the responsibilities of a community zoning or planning organization.

Following each presentation, those attending the institute commission, discussed subdivi- were asked to present solutions to problems which were outlined by the institute directors. The more experienced city officials then discussed the solutions with newly elected officials, to determine if the best results had been obtained.

Police Report Hospital Is Burglarized

Something new in burglaries was reported Saturday by Twin Falls police. Someone took an estimated $50 in cash from the doctor's locker room at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and it is believed an attempt was made to get away with a $1,000 piece of hospital equipment.

Officers said a young man and woman went to the hospital for a blood test of the type needed for a marriage license. Later the man was seen by hospital attendants in several areas restricted to hospital personnel only.

A nurse found the rear door of the hospital open and a cardiograph machine, valued at about $1,000 beside the door. Officers said it had been wheeled on a stand to the rear door, apparently to be loaded into a vehicle when the opportunity arose.

A description of the suspect was sent to other hospitals in the area in the event the man might try the same thing elsewhere in the area.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jim Garrison, New Orleans district attorney, said on a television show Saturday night that the federal government is concealing the identity of President John F. Kennedy's assassins.

Astronaut Killed In Crash

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Maj. Robert H. Lawrence Jr., America's first Negro astronaut, has been killed in the crash of an F104 Starfighter jet as it landed after a routine training flight.

An Air Force spokesman called him "one of those young bright guys with everything going for him."

Lawrence, 31, was preparing a project for the Defense Department to orbit two men on a space laboratory in 1970.

The Chicago-born Lawrence was the ninth U.S. astronaut to die. The others were assigned to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Five died in accidents earlier this year.

The F104, "a missile with a man in it" which travels twice the speed of sound, smashed onto a runway after the flight Friday at Edwards Air Force Base and spurted "a little fire," an Air Force spokesman said.

A second occupant, Maj. Harvey J. Royer, was injured. Royer, 36, chief of operations for the Air Force's Aerospace Research Pilot School, was hospitalized with undisclosed injuries.

The Air Force appointed a board of officers to investigate. No other details of the crash were made public.

Lawrence, selected as an astronaut-designee in June, was one of 16 military officers in training for the MOL Project—the Manned Orbiting Laboratory program. The group was made up of 12 Air Force Officers, three Navy men and one Marine.

Lawrence's widow, Barbara, and their 8-year-old son, Tracey, live at the base.

Another Negro pilot, Capt. Edward J. Dwight, was selected as the first Negro to enter the space pilot training program in 1963, but he did not complete the program.

Skiing Opens

Pomerelle ski area will be open Sunday, it was announced.

The ski lift will be in operation from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. The cafeteria will be open Sunday also.

There are about 14 inches of snow at the bottom and about 18 or 19 inches on the top.

Roads to the area are being maintained by the Cassia County Highway Department.

Annual Quarter Horse Association Meet Ends, Filer Man Honored

Emphasis is on youth in American Quarter Horse Association approved shows throughout the local region, officials of the Intermountain Quarter Horse Association, in annual convention sessions here Saturday, were told.

More than 100 delegates from Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada and Montana attended the annaul convention and banquet of the association Saturday in the Holiday Inn.

In a general discussion meeting Saturday morning, association officers said in the 1967 show season there were 39 AQHA and IQHA approved shows in the region. Young exhibitors competed for points and top records in the IQHA youth program and were required to show horses in 19 shows throughout the five state region.

Winners of season championships in the youth program as well as the adult divisions were to receive trophies following the Saturday night banquet.

F. G. McFarland, Tooele, Utah, president of the association said directors and officers have been working hard to promote interest in showing and breeding of Quarter Horses among teen-age boys and girls to insure a strong future for the breed.

Delegates to the one-day convention elected Thane Lancaster, Filer, as president of the Intermountain Quarter Horse Association, succeeding Mr. McFarland. He will serve a one-year term under his present election. Named vice president

Lynda Bird Johnson And Capt. Charles Robb Wed In White House Splendor

THE WHITE HOUSE wedding Saturday ended this way, with Marine Capt. Charles Robb and his wife, the former Lynda Johnson, walking beneath the traditional crossed swords. The marriage ceremony was conducted in the east room of the White House with Lynda's father and other dignitaries in attendance. (AP wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Bird Johnson married Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb Saturday in the beauty of the White House agleam with the lights and garlands and the spirit of the Christmas season.

The elder daughter of the President and the young man who will be in Vietnam in a few weeks exchanged wedding bands, "I wills" and murmured "I love yous" in the splendor of the East Room

Ex-beau George Hamilton looked on from the throng of elbow-to-elbow guests.

With a trace of trembling emotion in his voice, President Johnson replied when the Rev. Canon Gerald N. McAllister asked who gave this woman in marriage. Johnson's reply: "Her mother and I."

The entire wedding from the moment the groomsmen started down the great staircase until the minister was the last to leave the East Room took 20 minutes, but it was only six minutes for the religious ceremony from the "dearly beloved.." beginning until the minister declared "with this ring I thee wed.."

The White House officially put the time of the wedding at 4:16 p.m. EST.

Lynda in the traditional long, white gown of a bride and Robb in his dress blue uniform stood before a white altar on a low platform in the center of the rear wall of the East Room. The altar was wreathed in greenery. Candles gleamed from two vermeil holders.

Back of the altar a delicate gold cross was centered on a background of green fir studded with tiny white electric candles.

It was a picture book wedding. It tugged hard at emotions. And it brought tears to Lynda's eyes as she stepped up to the altar and to those of her sister, Luci Johnson Nugent, the matron of honor.

There were subdued but audible answers of "I will" when the officiating cleric asked Charles and Lynda in turn whether they would have the other for their wedded spouse in the holy state of matrimony—whether they would love, comfort and honor one another, forsake all others, "so long as ye both shall live." They looked directly into each other's eyes.

And just before the ceremony ended, Robb leaned toward his bride and whispered "I love you" in words that could be seen rather than heard. Lynda's hand trembled slightly when Charles put a diamond-encrusted gold band on the third finger of her left hand. But there was no fumbling in the double ring ceremony.

After the benediction, Robb kissed Mrs. Robb on the cheek and said, "I love you." And Lynda, her deep dimples showing behind her happy smile, whispered back, "I love you."

The ceremony over, husband and wife turned away from the alter, walked down an aisle formed by white ribbons and brass stanchions to the center doorway of the East Room and smiling marched arm in arm beneath an archway of sabres formed by six of Robb's fellow Marine officers in their dress uniforms.

The bridesmaids and groomsmen and the wedding party followed the bride and groom down the hallway and up the grand staircase for a session of [illegible]tures in the yellow Oval Room.

After he got back upstairs, President Johnson told reporters he was very tired and was flying to the LBJ ranch near Johnson City, Tex., Saturday

$6.75 Million In Assets Reported By Sierra Life

In a statement Saturday to stockholders and policy owners of Sierra Life Insurance Co., Fred M. Frazier, president, said a recent examination by the Idaho Insurance Department has given Sierra Life a "Clean bill of health."

In his message, he quoted Insurance Commissioner John Blaine. "The examination was extensive, covering a period from Jan. 1, 1963, to June 30, 1967, and revealed that the capital, surplus and policy reserves of the company complies with Idaho law," Mr. Blaine was quoted as saying.

Mr. Frazier said: "It is true that during the past year we have experienced some of the problems — you might liken them to 'growing pains' — frequently encountered by young, aggressive life insurance companies.

"We have known disappointments, too," he continued, "such as not being able to complete our 15th merger after 15 successful company acquisitions. But, then, problems always have been the price of progress. As long as problems are solved, however, and progress continues, we can feel satisfied. In short, we believe this is the case at Sierra."

It was also pointed out by Mr. Frazier that sales progress has continued, with the agency force writing more than $100,000 of annualized premium on over $4,000,000 of life insurance from July 1, through Nov. 17, of this year, indicating the ability of local agency force. And according to Mr. Frazier, it is "an important basic factor in measuring a company's solidity and potential."

In a financial report issued by the Sierra Life Insurance Company, which has its home office in Twin Falls, the company reports that as of June 30, 1967, its admitted assets totaled $6,755,283.27 while its liabilities and reserves total $6,064,549.39. "Capital and Surplus for Protection to Policyholders," $690,733.88, it was reported.

In commenting on the financial report, Mr. Frazier said, "No report, however, can possibly convey to our 6,000 stockholders and 17,000 policy owners our appreciation for their loyalty, confidence and faith in Sierra Life Insurance Company.

Governors Say No Likely Aspirant Seen

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Republican governors acknowledged Saturday they have no consensus—and none in prospect—on a presidential candidate for 1968. Colorado's John A. Love said it is becoming less likely that the GOP nominee will come from the ranks of the governors.

Two days of political conferences at this Florida resort produced no new commitments for any of the potential 1968 candidates. An absent GOP governor, George Romney of Michigan, is the only major contender who has formally declared his candidacy.

Love, retiring chairman of the Republican Governors Association, tempered his forecast of one year ago that a GOP governor would top the 1968 ticket.

"I still think it's likely," he said, "but it is perhaps less likely than it was at that time."

Seventeen Republican state chairmen met privately and two of them expressed dissatisfaction at the governors' failure to agree on a presidential candidate—or on machinery to produce a future agreement.

New Jersey chairman Webster B. Todd said the governors will sacrifice their influence in the 1968 campaign unless they make some move toward a candidate.

Howard E. Russell, the Rhode Island chairman, said he will call a meeting of GOP chairmen from the northeastern states to discuss the situation.

Bright Colored Lights Seen As Christmas Contest Begins

It's that time of year again and the big Christmas Lighting Contest, sponsored jointly by the Times-News and the Idaho Power Co., once more offers $150 in cash awards.

Each year scores of people enter their displays in the contest. This year they will compete for $60 for first place; $35 for second; $20 for third, $10 for fourth, and five honorable mention awards of $5 each.

The rules are simple. Displays entered must be within the city limits of Twin Falls. They may be interior or exterior displays but they must be easily visible from the street.

Names of three judges who will inspect the displays the evening of Dec. 22, starting at 6 p.m., will not be announced until the contest is completed. These judges will visit every display entered in the contest. The winning displays must be left up and lighted through New Year's Day.

The winners will be announced in the Times-News on Sunday, Dec. 24.

Entry blank for the contest will be carried in the Times-News starting Thursday, Dec. 14. This blank must be filled out and mailed to the Times-News Lighting Contest for arrival by 6 p.m. on Dec. 21. There is no entry fee but only displays officially entered will be eligible for the competition.

Labor Feels GOP Could Beat LBJ

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO said Saturday it fears President Johnson could be whipped by a Republican in the 1968 presidential election without the total political support of the 14-million-member labor federation.

"The whole cause of liberalism could be beaten, a liberal president, a liberal Congress" and all of Johnson's social legislation," said a spokesman.

"We go into this campaign, not with optimism or pessimism, but determined," said AFL-CIO President George Meany in promising to galvanize the full weight of the federation behind Johnson and liberal congressional candidates.

Meany's statement, at a closed meeting of 164 of the nation's top labor leaders, was relayed to reporters by a spokesman.

The labor chieftains also discussed plans to concentrate political action in 90 congressional districts scattered across the nation which they consider swing seats that make the difference between a liberal or conservative Congress.

The federation spokesman declined to list the 90 House seats.

"We are going to try to see to it that the 91st Congress has liberal, progressive members in those seats," he said.

The AFL-CIO leaders have been complaining that the conservative tinge of the current Congress threatens to starve out Johnson's antipoverty, education, housing and other social programs by cutting appropriations for them.

The AFL-CIO spokesman said the labor movement also has a big stake in preserving many of its liberal friends in the Senate who will be up for re-election next year.

The 1968 political situation was the only topic at a meeting of the AFL-CIO's general board composed of Meany, 28 other members of the federation's policymaking executive council, heads of its six major departments and a top officer from each of the 129 unions in the federation.

The spokesman described the caucus as "a hard look" at the political situation by the obviously worried labor leaders about Johnson's political troubles with the Vietnam war, social programs and organized labor's big stake in a 1968 victory by Johnson and liberal congressional candidates.

night and stay until Tuesday or Wednesday. He said he was taking some work along and could do as much in two days at the ranch as in four or five days in Washington.

He said Mrs. Johnson would spend the night in Washington.

Johnson's little white pet mongrel dog, Yuki, insisted on getting underfoot at the picture-taking. He was wearing a red coat emblazoned with "congratulations."

Mrs. Johnson told him he wasn't invited to be in the pictures and asked that he be taken away.

Attending the wedding were friends and relatives and distinguished guests, from the government, the diplomatic corps and the United Nations.

Not all the guests had to make their way through the tourist entrance at the east gate of the White House. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and the senior cabinet officers, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, were ushered in through a side door.

Of 14 weddings through the history of the White House, Lynda's was the seventh of a presidential daughter.

One of her predecessors was there—83-year-old Alice Roosevelt Longworth. She was married 61 years ago in the same spot in the east room. And today she was one of the few guests privileged to be seated.

"I've never been to a wedding as pretty as this," she said.

The wedding went by the clock—getting under way exactly at 4 p.m., when the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. James Robb of Milwaukee, Wis., descended the red-carpeted staircase from the second floor to the foyer. They proceeded down the great hall to the east room.

Six groomsmen, two abreast, were followed by the seven bridesmaids in long red velvet gowns.

Smiling brightly, Lynda drew a long breath and then she and her father strode with measured tread into the East Room and approached the altar where Robb and his best man, Marine Capt. William Douglas Davidson, were waiting with Canon McAllister.

A Closed circuit television camera zeroed in on George Hamilton.

Lynda had turned her eyes away when she passed her former boyfriend and one observer reported that he looked grim throughout the ceremony.

Ex-Rupert Woman Dies At Age 85

RUPERT — Ella P. Laxton, 85, Boise, former Rupert resident, died Saturday morning in St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise, of a lingering illness.

She was born Jan. 5, 1882, in San Jose, Calif. On Nov. 27, 1901, she was married to Charles Laxton at Angel Camp, Calif. They moved to Kellogg and then came to Rupert in 1906 where they farmed. Mr. Laxton died in 1947. She lived in Rupert until 1961 when she moved to Boise with a daughter. She was a member of the Baptist Church and was a 50-year member of the Rebekah Lodge, Rupert Chapter.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Glen Coughlan, Boise, and Mrs. Velma Gyer, Sebring, Fla.; five grandchildren, and three great - grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Walk Mortuary Chapel. Final rites are set in Rupert Cemetery.

Friends may call at the mortuary Monday afternoon and evening and Tuesday until time of services.

Weather In Valley Keeps Roads Slick

On a clear day in the Twin Falls area, heavy overcast skies Saturday threatened areas such as Gooding, Burley, and Hailey.

Little snow was noted however throughout the Magic Valley. Light snow in the early morning hours was noted in Gooding but did not add to the four to five inches of snow which fell Thursday.

Shoshone had clear skies but reports from there indicate that the snow hasn't melted and that highways and roads are still icy and snow-covered in spots, from 15 miles south of Shoshone on Highway 93, north to Gooding and Fairfield. Fog, which hampered driving in the area Friday, was not thick Saturday.

Cool temperatures throughout the valley prevailed through Saturday.

Area Pioneer Dies At 87 Of Illness

John W. McDowell, 87, secretary-treasurer of the Twin Falls National Farm Loan Association from 1918 to 1957, died Friday at Skyview Manor of a short illness.

Mr. McDowell was born Nov. 17, 1880, at Springerton, Ill. He came to Idaho in 1914, living on a ranch south of Twin Falls until moving into town in 1943. He also taught school at Shamrock, Curry and Mountain View. He was a member of the First Christian Church.

Aug. 1, 1903, he married Della Bailey at Springerton. She died in 1956. Survivors include a son, Clell McDowell, Twin Falls; three daughters, Mrs. Hazel Frost, Payette; Mrs. Helen Wagner, New Plymouth, and Mrs. Shirley Crowley, Ellensburg, Wash.; seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Graveside services will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Twin Falls cemetery by Rev. Donald Hoffman, First Christian Church. Friends may call at White Mortuary until 10 a.m. Tuesday.

D. C. Jensen, Burley, Dies At Age 60

He was born Dec. 3, 1907, at Preston. He graduated from the Preston High School and from Idaho State University with a pharmacy degree. He later attended Utah State University at Logan and earned a degree in education. On April 30, 1930, he married Mildred Garvin at Rexburg. They moved to Burley in 1931 and Mr. Jensen taught school in both the junior and senior high schools in Burley. In 1936 they moved to Ogden and in 1939 returned to Burley where they have since resided. He had been in the insurance business in Burley since 1939. He was a member of the LDS Church and was a former member of the Burley Lions Club. During his membership in the Lions Club he maintained a perfect attendance record for 16 years. He had been active in the Life Underwriters Association, holding membership in the southern Idaho group, and the Idaho State Underwriters Association.

He was a past president of the state underwriters group and had served as chairman for the state convention for the past several years.

Survivors include his widow, Burley; one son, David C. Jensen Jr., Newton, Pa.; one daughter, Mrs. John (Marilyn) Bennett, Brigham City, Utah; two brothers, Woodruff Jensen, Tast, Calif., and Wallace Jensen, Preston; three sisters, Mrs. Gwen Hunter, McCloud, Calif.; Mrs. Henry Megaard, Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Jack Allen, Albany, Ore., and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services are set at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Burley LDS First Ward Chapel with Bishop Counselor Frank Ham officiating. Final rites will be held at 2:30 p.m. in the Preston Cemetery.

Friends may call at Payne Mortuary Monday afternoon and evening and Tuesday prior to services.

Bill Greene, Sandy, Utah, is association secretary, appointed by the officers and directors.

Eddie McMurdo, Walla, Walla, Wash., who serves as manager and secretary of two of the largest shows of Quarter Horses in the western states, told the delegates that if they are to have a successful show they must have a capable manager.

He said once the show begins, the manager needs no further suggestions or assistance from his officers and directors.

"The manager must be responsible for the show's operation, and he alone must make the decisions," the speaker said.

He urged the manager set a cut-off date for the working classes and enforce it strictly. Mr. McMurdo also explained methods of making registrations and class listings in duplicate to eliminate recopying for position drawings and contest events which he said can speed up the secretarial work and save time in running a good show.

A Tribute . . . To Friendship!
Through the years, as we learn to evaluate people and personalities, we find that enduring friendships are one of life's precious jewels. What is more comforting than a treasured visit with someone to whom you can be just your natural self! Do you know what the definition of a friend is? It is a person who knows all your faults but still likes you, in spite of them. None of us is free from faults. That is only human. So we gravitate to those who like us and who, in turn, we think rather special. Let's cherish our friendships and make the most of them . . . lest auld acquaintance be forgot!

Sears Official To Leave For New California Job

PAUL GRILLOS

Paul Grillos, merchandising manager of the Twin Falls Sears store for the past two and a half years, has been transferred to the Bakersfield, Calif., store as merchandising manager.

Daryl Ander, manager of the Twin Falls store, said Mr. Grillos has been with Sears Roebuck and Co. for more than seven years, starting in Ogden after graduating from the University of Washington.

Mr. Grillos and his wife, Brucilla, have been active in the local Catholic Church and the Dilettante Group of Magic Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Grillos and their three children will be moving to Bakersfield at the end of December.

Replacement for Mr. Grillos will be announced shortly, Mr. Ander said.

Weather All But Halts PTA Meet

CAREY — Regular PTA meeting was held last Thursday in the Carey High School. Due to very icy roads there was a small attendance and the main speaker on the program was unable to be there.

Reports on state convention held in Twin Falls were given. Several items of business were discussed. The beef project will be discontinued as a help to the hot lunch because of state rules, a costume store room will be provided for and the rearrangement of a special scholarship bank account will be undertaken.

Reports were given by the treasurer, room count taken and membership reported 87 members so far. Several Christmas carols were sung.

Democratic Turmoil Benefits Rocky

WASHINGTON — Forgetting about Bobby Kennedy's possible role, the really significent effect of Sen. Gene McCarthy's primary challenge to President Johnson is that it makes possible Nelson Rockefeller's nomination by the Republicans and maybe his capture of the White House.

Assuming that the McCarthy-Kennedy effort to deny the Democratic nomination to Lyndon Johnson will fail — an Assumption that is obligatory at this time — the GOP's candidate ideally would be a man who could capitalize on the split within the Democratic party. On the record, Rockefeller is the only man fitting this prescription.

Indeed, this is an opinion held by some members of George Romney's campaign hierarchy, including one of the canniest professional technicians in the Republican party. "The pressures already have begun to build up to draft Rockefeller," he says. "The boys want those disaffected Democratic liberals so bad they can taste 'em."

To understand the attitude of the GOP pros, it is necessary to realize that the McCarthy-Kennedy liberal block is a mixed bag. Actually, the disaffected Democrats are in a minority, for the simple pragmatic reason that party regularity is a necessary way of life for those who seek future party dividends. The majority of McCarthy's support will come from such outfits as the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy (SANE). Actor Robert Vaughn's misnamed Dissenting Democrats, Americas for Democratic Action, various civil rights groups and assorted "intellectuals," Vietniks, beatniks and campus politicians.

Those people are not about to vote for Romney, who they consider to be too square. They are not likely to buy Richard Nixon or Ronnie Reagan because they are too conservative. Illinois' Sen. Chuck Percy is still too wet behind the ears.

That leaves Rockefeller and, at this point, only Rockefeller. The Rock's liberal credentials are impeccable; you don't get elected and reelected governor of New York on a conservative or even a middle-of-the-road platform. He is cerebral enough to suit most eggheads and a tough enough politician to satisfy the nuts-and-bolts men. He is a member of that group which in democratic America passes for an aristocracy.

Parenthically, it is perhaps worth a psychologist's time to study the attraction the American "arlstocrat" has for those bleeders for the Common Man. Frank Roosevelt captivated them, and so did Adlai Stevenson, Jack Kennedy and now Jack's little brother. Are they actually subconscious monarchists?

At any rate, Rockefeller is in this mold. The only uncertainty is whether the McCarthy-Kennedy bloc would insist that he enunciate a specific solution for ending the Vietnam war. The Rockefeller people don't think so. It is their belief that the bloc would support any Republican candidate with liberal bonafides, if only because of their antipathy for Lyndon Johnson. They point out that McCarthy has offered no answer beyond "an honorable, rational and political solution", whatever that is.

Still, the smart politician usually can find a gimmick for any problem, and it is not inclvable that Rockefeller will come up with one similar to Eisenhower's "I will go to Korea." Aside from that, he probably can satisfy the anti-Johnson liberals merely by repeating the charge that the Administration has not done everything possible to negotiate a settlement. If a citizen hates a President hard enough, he is not overly demanding of the opposing candidate so long as the latter thinks right.

Asked whether he would support a Johnson-Humphrey ticket if that was the convention's choice, Gene McCarthy replied that he didn't think the Republicans would nominate anyone he could endorse. He wouldn't have to, of course. From the Rockefeller viewpoint, Gene would have done his job long before election day.

Down To Earth

Many find it difficult to work up enthusiasm for federal support of the humanities when they find funds going to studies of propaganda in comics and to an archaeological inventory of monuments on Easter Island.

Though not always so abstract as they seem, such projects feed doubts that the humanities, as their champions insist, are as essential as the natural and social sciences in understanding mankind.

These doubts probably also derive from memories of humanities courses —classics, history, literature, philosophy among them — which are largely presented as academic exercises with little attempt to relate them to "the lives and well-being of all the population," to borrow a phrase from the 1964 report of the Commission for the Humanities.

The two-year-old National Endowment for the Humanities — created by Congress only two years ago — now proposes to use some of its funds to help eliminate the doubts. It has dedicated its largest 1967-68 grant, $116,000, to establishing a national faculty to improve the quality of high-school teaching of the humanities.

It is also giving $25,000 toward a commission to suggest revisions in curricula and teaching methods.

The humanities can be valuable in applying experience of the past to problems of the present, but constructive review of how they are taught is needed. And if humanists are to be effective they must counteract the widespread belief that they pursue inconsequential projects primarily of interest to themselves.

ART BUCHWALD

The Translation

TOKYO — Every author is flattered when his article appears in another language, so you can imagine how excited I became when I heard that my columns were being translated into Japanese. The Tokyo Observer has been using them on a weekly basis, and since I happened to be in Japan, I was curious to know how they read in the translation.

A friend of mine was kind enough to re-translate one of the articles back into English, word for word, as it appeared in Japanese. It happened to be the article on the U. S. government report encouraging families to drink together in a homelike setting. This is how the readers of the Observer saw it.

U. S. government suggestion carry out alcohol poisoning of study and research results made public.

This study announcement according sake-drinking society national policy must be, it is said. Children, sake drink home possible much more effective, report say.

In France where long time live I, this expected result deliver confidence I do not have. French children grape sake with results of greatest alcohol poisoning. In France, calvados is thing of recall. Here greatest apple brandy produce. Mothers in the morning, children brandy one cup sake make. Attending school thousands birds feet of children stagger along. Therefore teachers protest has happened.

If announced study results correct, let's see family inside how drinking sake encouraged is.

Place: Thomson house.

Time: Evening—six o'clock.

Thomson Mr., ten generation of son George big voice call:

George: Martini one cup want me?

George: Not necessary, Papa. Milk drink want.

George: Understand Papa. But Mama lunch box put white grape sake, not yet intoxication-wake up.

Thomson Mr.: Martini, about one glass drink, harm not. Moreover, drink alcohol and poisoning suffer not.

George second story from down come. Thomson Mrs. kitchen from appear, fourteen year of daughter Karen also room come in.

Karen: Back again. This evening of meal wh- a- t?

Thomson Mrs.: Sherry sake inside turtle soup with cow meat of Burgundy sauce boil, and white grape sake dressing of salad. Eat after of dessert brandy cherry and then whisky inside coffee.

George: Ah, evening meal before home work. Should have first done really.

Thomson Mrs.: Karen, whisky sour pickle mandarin orange, eat did not?

Karen: I mandarin orange do not like should know you.

Thomson Mr.: Freddy nine, where is?

Thomson Mrs.: Bed at resting. Last night you bought whisly bon-bon. Big drunk have he.

Thomson Mr.: Between meals eat must not.

Freddy thousand birds feet with second come down.

A Timely Find

Discovery by American newsmen of a Viet Cong campsite four miles within Cambodia and nine miles from a major battle area in South Vietnam comes at a disconcerting time for Prince Sihanouk.

The Cambodian chief of state has been trying to get all nations having diplomatic relations with his country to "recognize" its boundaries, North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front, political arm of the warring Viet Cong, were among the first to do so.

It's now evident they recognize Cambodia's boundaries all too well, even to using Cambodian territory to prepare for battle and to seek sanctuary there when the fighting gets too hot.

While admitting Hanoi and the Viet Cong has his moral and political support, Sihanouk has denied proving them with military assistance. Availability of Cambodian soil for staging areas and the shipment of supplies is as tangible a contribution to the communist war effort in Vietnam as any of the arms supplied by Red China and the Soviet Union.

It's hardly possible, in view of repeated complaints by American officials that Sihanouk was unaware of the communists' depredations. Instead, it appears to be his way of being neutral on their side.

RAY CROMLEY

Number 2 Man Now Number 1

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Defense Secretary Robert McNamara is tired. His personal staff is tired. They're still working long hours but they're beginning to drag.

McNamara is pictured as a hard, tough, operator who dotes on conflict. But it is this reporter's experience after being at the Pentagon part of almost every working day during McNamara's seven years of office that he is personally extremely sensitive to what is said about him.

He has a terrific need to be right and to have people think he is right. He has been known to almost frantically button-hole people who have accused him of error to try to prove he was right after all.

Criticism bothers McNamara more than any secretary of defense this reporter has ever watched in operation.

More and more of late, McNamara has seen his policies, openly or behind-the-scenes, criticized heavily by sections of the public, Congress, the administration and the press. He is close personally to some of the men who criticize our Vietnam policies most strongly.

More and more this criticism has been getting under McNamara's skin. He has been galled most by recent accusations that he has been dishonest in his statements, in the figures, he gives out, in the proof he offers for his defense decisions.

McNamara likes to be top man. At the World Bank, he'll be No. 1. In the Pentagon, he is No. 2; the President makes the final decisions. For McNamara, it's a severe strain to operate when the decisions are not his.

McNamara has never been comfortable with military men. He came to the Penatgon with preconceived notions of men on horseback. He has seen to the removal of some high-ranking officers whose attitudes disturbed him. Formally, in practice, his realtionship with his military advisers has been correct. He has had no revolts, no organized sabotage of his programs. There has been no move toward mass or group resignations. But there has not been complete mutual trust.

McNamara is tired of his job. He has accomplished what he wanted to accomplish in the Pentagon. There are no new challenges to match the reorganizations and changes in the way of doing things that McNamara has already put through.

McNamara has told friends over the years that he had no interest in returning to private industry. He'd had that experience, he said. He wanted something new. He now feels the same way about his Pentagon job.

A man who cares so much about what people think, as McNamara does, has also a compulsion to change his image, especially if he wants to hold office again some time. As secretary of defense, he sees himself pictured as a man of war. In the World Bank, he'll be pictured, he thinks, as a man doing good for the world.

MR. SPECTATOR

Mrs. Seaman Is Right!

Mrs. Robert Seaman of Twin Falls writes in to express the opinion that she was "sorry to read the advice given to young people" in a recent "Date-Line" column which appears in this newspaper.

There will be some who will contend that the smut and off-color stuff which sometimes sneaks into today's newspapers, and which is prominently displayed in many magazines, should not be of concern to the editor. They contend that the readers—all of them, young, old, educated and uneducated alike—should be permitted to read these things and make up their own mind. In other words, no censorship as such.

Mr. Spectator, however, tends to agree with Mrs. Seaman who believes things on the shady side of respectability should not be printed in a newspaper. Perhaps not censorship or change—just leave it out entirely!

In these days it is getting more difficult all the time to stay on the good and tasteful side of the line. The times are changing, apparently, and questionable articles, phrases and ideas are making inroads in publications over the land.

We do not attempt to keep things out just to protect our readers. Let's just say that we attempt to keep this stuff out so that we can live with our own conscience. That's all there is to it.

Now, about Mrs. Seaman's protest.

"I was sorry to read the advice given to young people in the paper by Ele and Walt Dulaney in the column "Young America's Date-Line." To encourage unmarried young people to have relations on the basis that this a mature thing to do is surely poor advice.

"It would seem if one were mature, they would be able to wait for the privileges of marriage until they are ready to accept the responsibilities of it. Just because there is no offspring from a pre-marital relationship doesn't mean no harm is done. I am enclosing the offending passage."

We really hate to print that passage again but feel we must in order to show just what Mrs. Seaman is complaining about. We side with her in her complaint. The passage from Date-Line follows:

"And thank you for a thoughtful, honest letter. Just one point is omitted and it's this: no unwed couple in this day and age has the right to play Russian Roulette with sex. If the pair is mature enough to have relations, they owe it to our society to take adequate safety precautions. Why? Because even the best loved of adopted children may suffer subtle psychological scarring from the fact that he was given up by his natural parents. This should not be permitted in this age of enlightened birth control."

GIVEAWAY DEPT:

We have five cute six-week-old kittens to be given away. Two are gray and three yellow. You may see them at 517 Eastland Drive or you can call 733-7946 and ask for Ann B. Hansen.

Have two male pups to give away. They are English Pointers and Shepherd. Please telephone 733-5044.

Chance of a lifetime. We have two kittens, three months old and box trained. In fact they are house kitties and one is calico and one grey and white. They have been raised with a Great Dane dog so should get along with anyone. Also have two 9-month-old cats which are really outdoor mouse traps. The female is grey and tiger striped and the male is black and white. Call 733-8990 for directions as to where the kittens and the cats live or we can deliver. D. Purtee on South Park Avenue West.

These would make good Christmas presents. We have four real cute tortoise shell cats—part Siamese—to give away. They are all housebroken. They are all little girls. Call 733-1532 or come to 1604 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

A lady writes in and says "you should see the joy in your child's eyes" when ybu give him a cuddly kitten for Christmas. And then she says that she has a limited supply of cuddly kittens with a choice of colors. She will hold until Christmas if you want it that way. So call 326-4608 in Filer or pick them up one-and one-half miles west of Jordan's Corner in that community.

We have a Border Collie to give away. She is black and has white feet. She is just a puppy, born last August, and she has had all her shots. Call Warren Kays on Route One, Jerome, at telephone 324-5132.

Have five kittens to give away. They are part Siamese and are all housebroken. They are about two and one-half months old and come in both boy and girl styles. Please call 733-7795 in Twin Falls any day after noon.

THAT TIME AGAIN

It's time to get your Christmas cards
And send them on their way
To wish the friends and relatives
A merry Christmas Day.

If you have kept a record
Or your memory is true
You'll send to those you missed last year
Who sent their cards to you.

Remember too, your Christmas mail make a faster trip
If you write the address
Don't forget to add the zip.

DON MACLEAN

A Real Home In The Suburbs

WASHINGTON — Today, operating on my theory that nothing should be held back from my readers, I give you another chapter in the continuing story of my efforts to find a home in the suburbs, where my family will be safe from the crime of the city.

When we left the clan Maclean it had decided that it no longer could hold out in its fortress in downtown Washington, it being too expensive to fly in food and other supplies every day. And so it is that we've begun to read house ads and inspect various properties.

This can be very educational. Those of us who have looked for homes to buy must know what I mean. For instance, where the ad says "Recreation-type basement," what this means is that the house doesn't have a recreation room. What it does have is a basement which can become a recreation room if you have about $2,000 that isn't working.

A similar inducement is a line in an ad that says, "Potential family room." This turns out to be a bedroom on the first floor, which you can panel if you like. But since it is at the opposite side of the house from the kitchen and the bath, to be a "family-room" you must have a family which needs exercise.

And then there is the "swimming pool-size lot." The only things which might prevent you from adding a pool are the facts that the lot is filled with oak trees and, in addition, it has a downhill angle of 45 degrees.

I've learned to ignore all ads which say, "Two-car garage." In the ones I've seen the only way you could get two cars in them is to stack one car on top of the other. Two cars certainly could not get in side by side.

One thing that amazes me is how many builders must live in the suburbs. Almost every house an agent has shown us is "A custom job." He assures me that nothing but the finest materials went into it, because, after all, the builder did this one for himself and his loved-ones. If true, which I doubt, it makes you wonder what sort of junk he builds for the public.

We looked at one place that boasted of having a "terraced back yard." What they meant by a terrace was a concrete retaining wall, necessary to prevent the high mud hill behind the house from sliding down and crushing the occupants.

But I'll get even. Our present home in Washington's most dangerous neighborhood will be advertised like this: "Handyman Special in Fun Area."

Gov. George Romney's tax returns show that he's a millionaire, proving once again that there are big profits in small cars.

For your file of foregone conclusions, we have the White House staff's statement that LBJ's record has been "impressive."

Can you imagine how many typographical errors it caused all over the country when LBJ sent Cyrus to Cyprus?

Do you lize that if NATO ever dis our Congressmen will be h cssed for excuses to junket in Europe?

PAUL HARVEY

Price Of Winning

And in war.

We were buying Islands one at a time in 1945. Americans waded through their own blood to take each beach. They crawled up Porkchop Hill over windrows of American dead.

Then suddenly, in August of that year, two big bombs and it was all over.

Hiroshima and Nagasaki were in ashes. There were dead and there was agony. But it was over.

The tedious Island-hopping inch-by-inch one-man-at-a-time dogface war was over.

And in the names of the tens of thousands of American sons now living who would surely have died otherwise, history must record that those decisive weapons were appropriate to the situation and ultimately merciful.

Now in Vietnam we are again engaged in a jungle war. Again we are bogged down in a protracted foot-soldier fight, smashing again and again into enemy lines for a few bloody yards of worthless real estate.

Military men who have devoted their lives to perfecting the science of modern war are required to fight this one with lesser weapons than we used in that last one.

Even the most untutored strategist can see that Haiphong Harbor, through which the enemy receives 60 per cent of all military supplies, should be rendered useless.

Amid the hundreds of unnamed peaks and ridges rising from the jungle-matted highlands of Vietnam is the hill overlooking Dak To which our GIs named Hill 875.

For weeks our sons of the Fourth Infantry, 173rd Airborne and First Cavalry died their way up those blood-slick slopes to dislodge thousands of the enemy.

Despite the rain of fire from our planes, the last of the Reds had to be routed out of their tunnels and caves man-for-man.

We're told it cost some 300 American dead and 1,000 American wounded.

That the enemy lost 1,600 dead lacks significance; Asia's supply of manpower is inexhaustible.

A weary American infantry officer, when it was all over, stood on the napalm-charred summit of Hill 875 and said, "If this were conventional warfare, this hill would have strategic value. This is not conventional warfare. This hill has no strategic value."

And almost immediately our men on Hill 875 were under artillery fire from the next hill over. So we now must occupy this hill indefinitely and try for the next one.

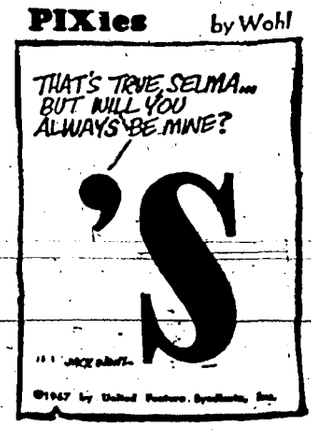

AP combat newsman Peter Arnett reported the North Vietnamese are "sucking large American forces away from population centers and bogging them down in a stalemate of mountain fighting."

In Vietnam, as in Korea, we appear determined to let the enemy choose the weapons, the times and the places.

Our reluctance to destroy this enemy's ability to make war in the name of "restraint" is construed by our enemies as weakness, stupidity or fear.

Rep. Mendel Rivers said it: "We've had a fine secretary of defense; now let's have a secretary of offense."

Singer Listed Critical With Skull Injury

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Singer Jimmie Rodgers was in "extremely critical condition" Saturday following a second cranial operation made necessary by a skull fracture suffered in a beating he says he can't remember.

The surgery was the second within a week. Last Tuesday doctors operated to repair a 4½-inch fracture, and Rodgers appeared to rally thereafter, although he had not recalled who struck him or why.

A spokesman said the second operation took place Saturday morning after a night of convulsions. It was performed by Drs. William L. Donham, Karl Albaeck and Henry Dodge.

Their problem, the spokesman said, was severe swelling of the brain, and the next four or five days will be critical. In Saturday's 2½-hour surgery nearly one-fourth of the cranium was removed and frozen, leaving the brain covered only by the scalp to relieve pressure, the spokesman said.

He added that it will be three to six months before that portion of the skull can be replaced.

The 33-year-old singer was found early Dec. 1 on an off-ramp of a freeway. He had been beaten and was unconscious.

Police at first believed Rodgers had been a robbery victime, but his wallet apparently had not been disturbed. Doctors said Rodgers could recall nothing that happened that day and no arrests have been made.

Cong Issue Statement On UN Bid

By WILLIAM N. OTIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Viet Cong denial that it had asked to send representatives to the United Nations was not unexpected, Secretary-General U Thant said Saturday. Both he and U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg insisted that the South Vietnamese Communists did make a request.

The denial was issued by the guerrillas' politcal arm, the National Liberation Front (NLF), by way of a broadcast dispatch of Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency. The NLF called the reports of the request a U.S. fabrication.

"Let me only say that this was not unexpected," Thant told newsmen here.

Later, an informant said: "Part of the deal was that the NLF would deny it if word of the requests were leaked out before visas were granted."

Goldberg reported earlier in the week he had been informed by a U.N. official of the NLF desires.

Goldberg and Thant conferred Saturday on what Thant said were the results of Goldberg's discussions on Vietnam with members of the Security Council. Thant declined to disclose the results and indicated he did not know when the United States would ask the council to take up the war.

Thant and Goldberg agreed that the Viet Cong had made overtures to send representatives to the United Nations.

Thant said the guerrillas had let it be known they wanted to have representatives here on the same basis as the Algerian rebels who came 10 years ago—with no official status.

"I don't think they wanted to appear before the General Assembly or the Security Council," Thant said. "That is my understanding."

He added that the wishes of the Viet Cong were relayed to him by "a source" whom he declined to identify.

Thant pointed out the Algerians, who then were fighting for their independence from France, did not have U.N. status when they came to the U.N. headquarters.

"But they applied for visas and visas were given because the question of Algeria was on the agenda of the General Assembly."

Vietnam, however, is not on the agenda of the assembly or the Security Council.

Unique Telephone Course In Religion Completed Here; Second Set Jan. 21

Completion of a unique "telephone teaching" course in religion was announced Saturday in Twin Falls by officials of the Magic Valley Council of Churches and the Ecumenical Training Council.

The course, which featured a series of 10 lectures given by Dr. William Chalker, Department of Religion, College of Idaho, was given to a class in Boise and relayed by telephone to classes in Twin Falls, Wendell and Caldwell. In addition to the students enrolled from Twin Falls, others were from Hazelton and Jerome, the officials pointed out.

The course, on the Old Testament, was completed by 30 individuals in this area.

The Magic Valley Council of Churches is comprised of congregations of the Methodist, Disciples of Christ, Episcopal and Presbyterian Churches. The Ecumenical Training Council is a state-wide agency for ecumenical adult education sponsored by the Methodist Church, the Presbyterian Church, the Episcopal Church, the Lutheran Church in America, the American Baptist Church and the United Church of Christ.

The discussion at the conclusion of the lectures were moderated here in Twin Falls by the Rev. Robert Gibbon of the First Methodist Church and the Rev. Forrest Hibbard of the Valley Christian Church. Mr. Hibbard is also chairman of the Magic Valley Council of Churches.

The winter term will begin January 21 and will consist of a series of nine lectures on the New Testament by four eminent scholars from the San Francisco area. These lectures also will be given by telephone. The technique of teaching by telephone is quite new and Mr. Hibbard states that the course just completed was the first time that a prolonged course of adult education has employed "telephone teaching" in Idaho.

Nursing Home Question For T. F. County Is Discussed

A group of interested Twin Falls businessmen are expected to meet during the coming week with Twin Falls county commissioners to appeal on behalf of county nursing homes for assistance in handling indigent county and state cases.

Nursing home director Harold Drake of the Hazel Del and Sky View Manors said several businessmen met with Mr. and Mrs. Al Benkula and Mr. and Mrs. Drake Friday at Hazel Del to discuss the problems of assistance in financing the nursing home costs for indigent patients.

Mr. Drake said efforts have bedn made for several months to gain county supplemental payments each month for these patients, but the county commissioners have turned down the requests.

"We feel there is a lack of communication between the nursing home operators and the county and possibly we have not presented our story in a proper light. The interested businessmen may be better able to meet with the county and explain the problem," he said.

Mr. Drake said all surrounding counties are assisting in the costs, but in Twin Falls County, nursing homes receive $225 per month per indigent patient through the Deparment of Public Assistance.

He said nursing homes cannot provide a patient with room, board, nursing care and other necessary services for $225 per month. Costs, he said run about $250, which is the amount desired. The nursing homes have asked commissioners for an additional $25 per month per indigent patient. The county now provides all medicine and necessary hospitaliaztion. The additional amount would cost the county about $2,500 per month.

County Commission Chairman Heber Loughmiller said following a recent meeting with nursing home officials that if the $225 does not cover the costs, the Department of Public Assistance will increase these payments, but it must be proven that the present amount is not sufficient.

Mr. Drake said Saturday that if DPA does increase the payments, which it has indicated it will in the future, the operators would be willing to discontinue the county supplement revenue.

At the present time, he said, the situation has become so critical the operators are forced to increase fees to private patients in order to operate in the black and this it is putting the private patient who can afford his own care in a position of helping support the indigent. This is unfair, Mr. Drake said, especially since many of those paying their own way are also operating on limited funds.

The situation is worse, he said, for the small homes than it is for his own establishment.

Presently there are 241 nursing home beds in Twin Falls County, 151 of them in Mr. Drake's two homes. About 100 patients are DPA supported.

County commissioners have been working with a Nebraska concern interested in establishing additional nursing home facilities here.

Charles Turner, Ainsworth, Neb., has informed county officials he would be able to care for indigent patients within the $225 per month figure.

Mr. Drake said Saturday he does not believe this will prove to be the case if the out-of-state concern meets the stringent nursing home regulations imposed by the state of Idaho.

Mr. Drake said there is actually no shortage of space at the present time and his firm and others have made recent expansions and are planning other additions.

"We do have to keep a certain number of our beds occupied by private patients, compared to the number by indigents, in order to balance our income," he added.

Solons Feel House Won Money Battle

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key senators involved with the Social Security bill agree the House won the money battles over the measure, with the result being smaller benefit increases than were sought by President Johnson.

The bill is expected to be passed and put before the President for signature by the middle of next week.

Nearly every important Senate change made in the bill was either thrown out or greatly watered down in the Senate-House conference whhich finished its work Thursday night.

"We were told by the House to accept their provisions or that there would be no bill," said one Senate conferee who asked that his name not be used.

He added that during the discussion of what would happen if the bill didn't survive, "we were told that we could announce to the old people that we had killed a bill which would raise their benefits 13 per cent."

As accepted by both sides, the final version provides a new benefit schedule calling for a 13 per cent boost for the 24 million people now on the social security rolls, with a minimum monthly check of $55.

This was slightly above the increases originally voted by the House but far below the administration version calling for hikes ranging from 15 to 59 per cent for those now getting benefits.

A revolt against the compromise bill broke out on the Senate floor Friday, with half a dozen Democrats denouncing it and demanding that it be rejected.

But Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Finance Committee, floor manager for the bill, said he was confident it would be approved.

The anonymous Senate Conferee said Rep. Wilber D. Mills, D-Ark., powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and other members of the House delegation, were adamant against the Senate changes.

"They said they were too costly and that the money was not available to pay for them," he explained.

He added that he felt the recent Ways and Means hearings on President Johnson's proposed income tax increase, and the committee's decision to reject it for this year, had hardened House attitudes.

The Senate conferee said Mills came to the sessions with an unusually large House delegation picked to give extra representation to the fiscal conservatives on the Ways and Means Committee.

In addition to the proposed monthly minimum of $55, compared with the present $44, the bill would raise the maximum monthly check from $142 to $160.50 with an additional 50 per cent of these sums when the worker's wife reaches 65.

Other key provisions:

—The maximum annual Social Security tax will go from $290.40 to $343.20.

—The maximum that retired persons may earn annually without losing part of their benefits will go from $1,500 to $1,680.

Although it's not part of the bill, the monthly fee for the voluntary, supplementary medicare plan probably will go up in April from $3 to $4.

Senate-House conferees said they were advised of this by John W. Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare. Gardner is due to announce his official decision in January and the hike would be effective three months later.

Bargaining Continues Over New Pact Between UAW, GM

DETROIT (AP) — Amid reports that the company has already agreed to bring Canadian wages up to par with those paid in the United States, bargaining on a new national contract covering 380,000 workers continued Saturday between General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers.

Strikes over local disputes idled 20,400 union workers at GM Friday, but a company spokesman said none of the plants affected was scheduled to work Saturday.

The company cut back on Saturday overtime work at assembly plants after the union authorized one-day local strikes to prevent the giant of the auto industry from building up a stockpile of cars to ride out a possible national strike.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, however, says that even if the company and the union do not come up with a national contract by a Thursday deadline, there will be no strike against GM until after the first of the year.

The Toronto, Ont., Globe and Mail says GM has committed itself to wage parity between Canadian and U.S. employes, but insists the issue be negotiated in Canada.

Owing to a news blackout imposed on the Detroit talks, GM declined to comment on the report, although company negotiators have indicated the GM contract will follow patterns laid down at Ford and Chrysler.

Protestors Of Vietnam War Ease Activities

NEW YORK (AP) — Antiwar demonstrators were on the march again Saturday in New York, but their activities were uneventful compared to the frantic "stop the draft week" that ended Friday.

More than 300 persons marched down Broadway from 96th to 72nd Streets to launch what they called "peace week on the West Side."

About 100 women marched up Eighth Avenue and attended a pantomime performance that symbolized mourning for American dead in Vietnam.

The West Side marchers heard State Assemblyman Jerome Kretchmer, a Democrat, call for the defeat of President Johnson.

"There is only one way to stop the war and that's the political way. Change the president of the United States—elect somebody else president," Kretchmer said.

The march was sponsored by a number of local committees, which planned to cap the week with a rally at Carnegie Hall.

Shoshone Fifth Graders Conclude Study On Conservation With Program

SHOSHONE—Open house was held Tuesday at the fifth grade room of Mrs. L. M. Hatmaker, with a special program illustrating conclusion of the group's study of Conservation.

Students gave oral reports on their work and a film was shown. Each student had made a poster with materials furnished by the ASCS office. The posters were judged by that office. Winners were Brian Ross, first; Susan Sorensen, second, and Ruth Faught, third.

Special guests, other than parents, were James Page, ASCS office manager, and Cecil Cope of the Wood River Soil and Water Conservation District.

Five members of the class appeared in Smokey the Bear costumes on KMVT in a dance. They were Marshall George, Brian Ross, Jon Bateman, Susan Sorensen and Leah Fixsen.

A favorite of the audience was a skit written by class members, with their teacher's assistance, depicting an imaginary local situation.

Hard-working soil conservation participants were shown trying to convince a stubborn farmer, Muley, to attend their meetings. Finally when Ed Thomason, playing Floyd Silva, arrives on the scene, that's the straw that breaks the camel's back. Muley decides "if you can't lick 'em join 'em" and they all set off to meet the governor.

Robert Parkhurst played Muley. His wife, Margaret, was Bonnie Laughlin. Their children were Marje Jones and Marshall Jones.

An interesting feature was a picket line with the students carrying signs and doing a march and drill formation.

Mrs. Ray Clayton and Mrs. Howard Manning were helpful in their fields of dance and music in the finished production.

FOUND GUILTY

BOISE (AP)—A jury returned a verdict of guilty early Friday night in the first degree murder trial of Edward Quinlivan, accused in the arson-slaying of his wife last summer.

The jury recommended a life-in-prison sentence. The panel of six men and six women deliberated three hours in Fourth District Court chambers.

Quinlivan was accused of dousing his wife and home with gasoline June 16, then setting it afire. His wife, Blanche Quinlivan, died July 9.

The trial lasted five days.

GRANTS AWARDED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two federal grants and the awarding of a fellowship to an Idaho doctor were reported Friday by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The National Science Foundation Fellowship goes to Dr. Richard A. Parker of Moscow, Church said. It will permit him to do research and training in ecology at Oxford University in England.

A $40,000 grant by the U.S. Office of Education will finance a Summer Education Media Institute at the University of Idaho, Church said. It will provide training for 30 teachers.

A grant of $16,380 to the community of Driggs will aid in financing construction of a sewer line and waste stabilization plant.

BODY FOUND

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — The body of Alan Lee Strong, 18, Lewiston, a freshman at the University of Idaho, was found in a closet of his dormitory room Friday.

Latah County Pros. Atty. Robert Felton said a 12-gauge shotgun was found beside the body.

Felton said Strong was believed to have gone into the closet while his roommate dozed. He used the roommate's shotgun to shoot himself, Felton said.

"The closed door of the closet apparently muffled the shot so that the roommate was not awakened," Felton said.

The body was found by another student who entered the room to visit Strong's roommate.

"Gospel Singer" Arrested With Haul Of Heroin

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A New Yorker who told police he is a professional gospel singer was arrested at New Orleans International Airport today with a baby-blue Bible in one hand and a suitcase containing $100,000 worth of heroin in the other.

Jefferson Parish narcotics agents said it was their largest single haul of narcotics. Arrested as he left the baggage counter at the airport was Kenner William Johnson, 27.

Lt. Don Reed, narcotics squad commander, said Johnson's suitcase contained a three-ounce package of uncut heroin worth about $50,000 on the retail market, and 5,000 small paper containers of the drug worth about $10 each.

Agents had staked out the airport after being tipped that a large quantity of narcotics would be smuggled into New Orleans today by plane.

Disease Spreads

LONDON (AP) — Hopes that Britain's devastating epizootic of foot and mouth disease was on the wane were shattered Saturday night by an official announcement of 40 new outbreaks in the past 24 hours.

Since the plague began ravaging British livestock in October, animals on 1,697 farms have been infected. Altogether 283,670 cattle, sheep and pigs have been slaughtered.

Rupert Police Blotter

At the Eighth Street crossing at 9:02 a.m. Tuesday, Jose Palomarez, 53, Rupert, started across the tracks in his 1967 Pontiac GTO when he saw a train. He put the vehicle in reverse but the signal arm came down and scraped across the top of the car, knocking the antenna off.

The GTO backed into a 1964 Chevrolet driven by Myrna Halverson, 31, Rupert. There was no damage to the Chevrolet and $45 to the GTO. There were no injuries and no citations.

Sheriff's Blotter

A 1964 Ford received damages of $200 to the top and back Tuesday when the driver, Rita L. Bonner, 15, Heyburn, lost control on the wet road at 300 West and 150 South and the car skidded, left the road and went through the fence on the left side of the road.

Friday at 5:25 p.m. three and one-half miles west of Rupert, a 1959 Ford pickup truck driven by Richard B. Walton, 15, Paul, came upon an icy spot. The driver shifted gears, the pickup spun and rolled over. Damages were estimated at $50.

James H. Williams, 45, Rupert, was cited for failure to yield Friday when he backed a 1964 Chevrolet pickup truck out of a private driveway into the path of a 1957 Oldsmobile driven by LeRoy W. Moore, 27, Paul. Moore was traveling south on 500 West. There was no estimate of damage to either vehicle.

Fog prevented Richard E. Knopp, 25, Paul, from seeing a Pontiac in the line of traffic on State Highway 25 at 1100 North and 450 East in time to avoid hitting it with the 1966 International 2-ton milk van he was driving. There were no lights or flares out.

Sheriff's officers are still investigating. They estimated damages to the Pontiac at $200 and to the truck at $75. The accident occurred at 7:55 a.m. Friday.

A one-car accident on Interstate 80 by the Heyburn Interchange resulted in damages of $1,000 to a 1967 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Paula Brown Clements, 40, Salt Lake City.

The officer stated that a front tire blew or that the driver lost control on the ice and the car went into the borrow pit. Mrs. Clements was treated and released from Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

State Police Blotter

At 6:30 p.m. Sunday on 300 South and 550 West, a 1961 Chevrolet driven by Sheila Schodde, 17, Heyburn, was headed west when it hit a slick spot and spun off the road. Damages were estimated at $250.

A left front wheel came off a 1959 Ford driven by Bonnie Sullivan, 43, Rupert, three miles east of Paul on Highway 25. The accident, which occurred at 9:15 p.m. Saturday, caused damages of $150 to the Ford.

Mrs. Sullivan was cited for failure to transfer the registration.

Rupert Police Court

Norman C. Gee, 31, Rupert, $5, no driver's license on person, and Monica Fairchild, 18, Rupert, $10, noisy mufflers.

African Surgeon Relates Personal Feelings On Heart Transplant

EDITOR'S NOTE—The annals of medicine will forever record two events which occurred last week—the first transplanting of human hearts from dead to living persons with damaged organs. In one case the patient is still alive, in the other the patient, a baby, died. The following article by two AP Science writers sums up those great events. Heart Transplants —An APN Extra

By ALTON BLAKESLEE and JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writers

NEW YORK (AP) — "When you enter the unknown, you feel a particular excitement," said Dr. Christian Barnard.

For him, the unknown was to cut out a man's still beating heart, and replace it with a new human heart.

"I could do nothing else for his heart," he said. "It was so damaged—it was destroyed, and I knew, if he was to live, it would have to be replaced."

Thus in a steady, tenor-pitched voice the lean South African surgeon told of his personal feelings of the history-making operation that gave new life to a 55-year-old grocer only a week ago. The grocer, Louis Washkansky, has taken to his new heart so well that he may return home in three weeks, Dr. Barnard told the Associated Press in a trans-Atlantic telephone interview.

This audacious step was made possible by steady progress in heart surgery and successes in transplanting other human organs. Medical teams all over the world are on the verge of similar substitutions of human hearts.

Just four days after Barnard and his medical team brought new life to Washkansky, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz in Brooklyn, N.Y., tried and failed to save the life of a 2½ week old baby boy with the two-day old heart of a dead infant.

"What we want to do essentially is to make one whole infant from two who cannot survive," he said afterwards when he told newsmen he would try again.

Kantrowitz said that it was "more difficult emotionally, and perhaps more difficult technically" working with the infant heart that measured barely 1¾ inches from top to bottom. The adult man's heart is usually the size of a fist.

Yet there were similarities in the two dramatic operations. Both took place in the small hours of the morning, not by choice but by necessity, and both required the coordinated skills of more than a score of doctors, nurses and technicians.

Dr. Barnard, whom everyone calls "professor," recalled the difficult and daring hours in the Groote Schuur Hospital, Cape Town, at the very tip of South Africa.

Ten days before the operation actually took place, the medical team was fully alerted to the chance of a transplant operation. A possible donor had been admitted to the hospital. But just two hours before he died, the doctors discovered by electrocardiogram that his heart, too, had been damaged by disease. It would not be worth the try. They decided to wait.

Then came the fateful Saturday when Denise An Darvall, 25, who operated an accounting machine in a bank, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile. Her father, told there was little chance that his daughter would live, agreed to giving her heart to Washkansky.

But Barnard said, the doctors had not given up on Miss Darvall yet. They kept a watch on the electrical activity of her brain after her death, watched it slowly fail. They watched for five more minutes, and the brain that dies without blood oxygen showed no signs of life. Still, they opened the chest of the young woman and tried to revive her with the heart-lung machine, to no avail. Her life was beyond recall.

Now they perfused her heart with blood and cooled it to 30 degrees below normal body temperature to keep its tissues alive. They brought it from the room where she had died to the room where Washkansky lived.

Deliberately, at the moment of "particular excitement," Barnard cut out almost all of the living heart of Louis Washkansky, leaving only a bed of upper chamber tissues into which the woman's heart might be connected with more ease. Then with the heart in place, doctors shocked it into action and it began the regular beat of Washkansky's life. The operation took five hours.

"It was very straightforward," Dr. Barnard remembered. "There were no unexpected problems. . . We encountered no difficulties. . . We didn't have any notion of stopping or reconsidering."

With the coolness of a surgeon long experienced in operating on hearts Dr. Barnard thought that what he was doing that morning might make some local headlines for a few days, but "None of us expected this to make such big news all over the world."

Washkansky is recuperating so well and the South African team has gained such confidence that they plan to repeat the transplantation in another patient perhaps as early as six weeks. They have a man waiting for a new heart—a middle-aged patient with severe heart disease for the last six months.

But first the medical team must be freed of the necessity of watching Washkansky's recovery around the clock, and a proper donor for the second patient must be found.

"We'll just have to feel our way," Dr. Barnard said. The immediate concern is that Washkansky's body may reject his new heart, as the body rejects infections or other foreign invasions. To guard against this, they are giving him Prednisone and Immuran, drugs which suppress the body's immunity response, and at the same time they are watching for signs of rejection—fever, malise, loss of appetite, changes in blood cells and heart activity.

For the first week, Washkansky received X-rays as well as another means of beating down the forces in his body that might reject the heart. For the future, "he may have to remain on the drugs indefinitely," Dr. Barnard said.

Question: Who's Responsible In The Event Of A Disaster?

By EARLE L. JESTER
Associated Press Writer

BOISE (AP) — The question of who is responsible, financially, in the event of disaster is one that is provoking a lot of study and thought in Idaho.

It's the outgrowth of serious forest fires in Idaho the last two summers.

In both instances, the federal government was called upon for assistance in controlling the fires, which burned on privately owned, state and federal lands.

If a house in a city catches fire the owner calls the fire department. But he isn't billed for the cost of controlling the fire—except that he pays his proportionate share of the tax that provides the money to operate the fire department.

There is considerable thought that a somewhat similar arrangement should apply in the case of fires which burn on privately owned timber or range lands.

Perhaps the owner should pay so much per acre for fire protection — something like the tax to support a city fire department — but beyond that he should not be responsible.

Either the state or federal governments would pick up the bill for the cost of putting out the fires, with the money coming from general tax revenues.

For a number of years the private owners of timberlands have formed fire protection distracts, assessing themselves for the costs of controlling fires — a sort of cooperative fire department.

In normal years that has been effective. In the bad years it has failed.

After the 1966 fires in the Garden Valley area of southwestern Idaho, which burned extensive private holdings of timber in addition to that on state and federal lands, federal agencies submitted bills for the work they had done.

The Forest Service billed the Southern Idaho Timber Protective Association for $257,461 and the Bureau of Land Management sent the state a bill for $449,146. These amounts represented the costs the federal agencies said they incurred on land outside the national forest boundaries.

The state owns 50.32 per cent of the land within the association's fire district and its share of the combined bill of about $700,000 came to approximately $355,000. Private landholders presumably would have to dig up the remainder — if the bill is paid.

But the 1967 legislature refused to pay the state's share of the total immediately, on grounds there was no clearcut delineation of the relationship between state and federal governments in fighting fires that originate on private lands and burn into federal holdings — or visa versa.

Instead the legislature created a committee to study the problem.

Since then investigation indicates that the Charters Mountain fire, for which the Forest Service submitted its $257,460 bill, originated within one mile of the Boise National Forest boundary. In such "border line" fires the Forest Service in other instances has paid the entire cost.

Fires last summer burned widespread areas in northern Idaho, destroying timber on national forest land, on state-owned land and on privately owned land included in timber protective districts.

Again the federal government was called upon for assistance and it was provided. So far no bill has been submitted to the state — but one is anticipated.

State Sen. A. J. Galge, Boise, has proposed imposing a $5 filing charge on each income tax return, with the revenue to go into a fire protection fund.

Gov. Don W. Samuelson has suggested setting aside $1 million from the anticipated surplus in the current biennium to begin an emergency fund.

There have been some suggestions that the problem is one for the federal government. It already has an emergency fund for use in dealing with natural disasters, resulting from floods and storms. Samuelson suggests fires be handled similarly.

One argument in favor of requiring the individual owner to pay only a nominal fee for fire protection is that his land has value to the public.

It is used by the sportsman, who hunts and fishes on it; by the farmer, whose irrigation water is conserved on it, and by the vacationer, who picnics on it.

Sheriff's Blotter

An estimated $300 damages to a 1962 GMC truck driven by Jerry Hines, 23, Burley, occurred when he came over a hump in the road one and one-half miles north of Paul and swerved off the right side of the road to avoid a Rural Electric truck parked in the roadway. The driver stated that he was unable to pass on the left side because of oncoming traffic. The truck hit a power pole which was also damaged.

Hines was cited for having no chauffeur's license.

Britain Wins Backing From Germans

LONDON (AP) — British leaders won West German backing Saturday night for a make or break attempt to negotiate Britain into the European Common Market against the opposition of French President Charles de Gaulle.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown also rallied the support of fellow Socialists of 14 other countries for British entry into the six-nation trading bloc.

The leaders of Socialist parties of 15 countries met in a one-day conference at Wilson's official country residence for a survey of world affairs that also ranged over the Vietnam war and the Middle East situation.

On the sidelines of the talks, however, Brown and Vice Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany conferred for several hours.

The big issue before them is whether to start negotiating on the seven-month-old British application to the Common Market. President De Gaulle is openly opposed to the negotiations.

Wilson and Brown, in their meetings with Brandt and other Socialist leaders, were expected to have advanced the view that the French could not hold out against negotiations if all their five partners were firmly in favor.

Queen Mary Docks After Last Voyage

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Queen Mary, who ruled the waves for Britannia for 31 years, docked Saturday to a chorus of cheers, bagpipes, boat whistles and general pandemonium.

The majestic vessel was bought recently by the City of Long Beach for $3.45 million for conversion to a hotel-maritime museum-convention center.

Thousands of pleasure craft crowded a 90-mile strip of Southern California coastline to welcome the 83,673-ton, 1,031-foot-long vessel.

"It's just the most magnificent sight ever," radioman Mor-Jones said of the greeting. "I had never imagined anything like this."

The Queen was serenaded by pipers playing "Tunes of Glory," a reminder of the ship's birth in a shipyard in Scotland.

Helicopters, airplanes and a blimp cavorted above her and a skywriter saluted: "Hail the Mary!"

The 39-day voyage from Southampton had been marred by complaints, however.

Two passengers complained of rat and cockroach infestation, dissension among the crew and a shortage of supplies.

Most of the passengers offered no complaint. They acknowledged the vessel was designed for Atlantic Ocean crossings of just 10 days or less and that food and water difficulties could be expected to arise.

"WHO PUT THAT sign in my favorite chair?" It's bad enough when a cat has to compete with the rest of the family for a favorite chair, but when some smart aleck resorts to posting signs, it's unfair.

Five Americans Perish As Japanese Motorboat Sinks

IWAKUNI, Japan (AP)—Five Americans, including four children, and two Japanese drowned early Saturday when a 22-foot motorboat with 10 persons aboard capsized in Japan's scenic Inland Sea, police said.

The survivors, all Americans, were identified as Donald Bowman, 33, a Protestant missionary and his wife, Grace, formerly of Homedale, Idaho, both in critical condition; and U. S. Marine Cpl. Herbert Christiansen, 22, of Northfield, Minn.

Police said the dead were the Bowmans four children, Teresa, 9, Gary, 7, Joe, 6, and Daniel, 7 months; and Navy Lt. j. g. Robert Hatcher, assigned to the Iwakuni U.S. Marine Base.

The Japanese were a maid employed by the Bowmans, who died later in a hospital, and a companion.

Police gave this version on what happened:

Weathermen had posted warnings that the sea was rough.

About 4:50 a.m. Saturday, a farmer telephoned the Iwakuni maritime safety agency and asked for help since he found a small boat which had capsized and her occupants had crawled onto the beach.

Japanese and American rescue teams were rushed to the tiny island, popular during the summer months with bathers, where they found the boat occupants.

Wins Raffle

ROWLEY, Mass. (AP) — The town's volunteer fire department held a raffle to get rid of its 18-year-old fire truck. Tickets were sold for $1 each.

Police Chief Robert G. Hardy was the winner Friday, but he said he doesn't want it and will try to sell it.

"One department is enough for me," he said.

Waste Disposal Method Is Outlined At Moscow

MOSCOW — A new method for the safe disposal of domestic waste in areas near large urban centers has been proposed by University of Idaho Hydrogeology Professor Roy E. Williams.

The research, conducted by Dr. Williams in the Illinois area before he joined the university faculty, states how domestic wastes can be deposited in closed basins and why effluent produced by these wastes will neither reach surface water bodies or ground water aquifers. He ascertains that ground water flow beneath certain small closed basins in impermeable material is continually upward and, because basins are closed, no water can escape to surface drainage routes.

He also states that the effluent from these wastes could be inexpensively removed from the basins by installation of appropriate drain tile networks. With this system, valuable urban land could then be re-used for recreation or even farming purposes.

Traffic Courts

Other fines in Twin Falls Police Court were Gene H. Thomas, Rt. 2, $25; Jim H. Koepnick, Rt. 1, $20, and Steve D. Eacker, 338 Diamond St., $15, all disorderly conduct with automobile; Duane F. Jones, 219 S. 14th St., Pocatello, $200, leaving the scene of an accident, and Hugh H. Humphrey, 257 Carney St., $100, driving while intoxicated.

Gooding Police Judge A. V. Carter levied fines for speeding to Ervin Dains, 19, $14; Abram C. Hunsicker, 54, $10; Claude Nicholson, 45, $10; Raymond L. Kuhn, $15 bond forfeited; Craig D. Also fined by Judge Carter were Wayne James, 17, $20 fine for failure to drive reasonably and prudently; Kenneth C. Huber, 17, improper lighting and signals, $10, with $7 suspended. Lyle M. Biggs, forfeited a $13 bond; charged with running a red light. Carman J. Pugliana, 34, paid a $10 fine for speeding. Ruth M. Nordstrom, 29, was fined $10 for failure to yield the right of way. Ira Kistler, 63, was fined $10 for speeding. Charles A. Daniels, 36, was fined $20 for failure to drive reasonably and prudently with $17 suspended. James Scott, 18, was fined $10 by Judge Carter on a similar charge.

Also charged with failure to drive reasonably and prudently were Michael J. Weems, 17, $5; Ronald E. Utz, 20, $8. Birdie L. Stevens, 53, paid a $15 fine for failure to yield the right of way. Karen Janssen, 24, was fined $5 for driving without a valid license.

William D. Eaton, 15, charged with driving at night on a daytime license had a $3 fine suspended. Dennis Haill, 21, was fined $10 for failure to drive reasonably and prudently, and Elvin Trosper, 20, also paid a $10 fine on the same charge. Jay L. Baugh, 16, was fined $10 for failure to yield the right of way. Ellen Luther and Eric C. Lewis, 20, were both fined $10 for running a stop sign.

ACADEMIC BUILDING on the College of Southern Idaho campus has reached the "covered" stage, keeping recent snowfall out. The total campus project, including an academic building, a fine arts center, a maintenance building and two heating and cooling buildings, is about 30 per cent complete. Occupancy is scheduled for the fall of 1968.

Snow Is Not Slowing Work At CSI Campus

Snow and cold weather has hampered masonry work on buildings under construction at the College of Southern Idaho campus, but it's not slowing down the total project since there are plenty of other jobs to keep contractors busy.

Ed Peterson, architect with Jones-Fehlburg Associates, campus planners, said the project is about 30 per cent complete and that construction is continuing on progress with "no hitches." Occupancy date has been set for the fall of 1968.

Included in the phase one project are an academic building, a fine arts center, a maintenance building and two heating and cooling complexes which don't really look like heating and cooling complexes.

The small rectangular buildings will, when finished, be partially covered with red wood, have attached benches and space to post announcements about college activities.

Perhaps the most noticeable thing about the small buildings is that they are the first to show a unique decoration which will be carried out in various places throughout the campus. Parts of the structures have been faced with native lava rock, a material which is unique to Southern Idaho.

The academic building has reached the "covered" stage. All pre-stressed beams have been mounted atop the second story, keeping most of the snow out of the building. The bulk of the masonry work has been completed on the first floor.

The fine arts center is farther behind than the other two major buildings. Mr. Peterson said that cement which is being poured at the present time on large columns is having to be heated, but is not causing too much of a problem.

Nearest completion is the maintenance building, located at the east edge of the campus. All but a minor portion of outside work has been done on it.

But, as any architect or contractor can attest to, there is much more to be done than just buildings. At present contractors are placing the base course of the large parking area at the south entrance portion of the campus. Mr. Peterson said, however, that only the base course will be done this winter and that the main parking construction must wait until warm weather.

U.N. Special Aide Going To Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Swedish Ambassador Gunnar Jarring will reach Cyprus Sunday to set up his headquarters as U.N. special representative on the Middle East crisis, the United Nations announced Friday.

"From Cyrpus," the agency said, "Ambassador Jarring will commence a series of visits to the governments concerned. The first round of such visits will be solely for the purpose of establishing contacts and getting acquainted."

The governments concerned are Israel and Arab nations involved in the Middle East war June 5-10, which ended with Israeli armed forces occuping considerable Arab territory.

Arab leaders plan soon to hold their second summit conference since the end of that war, this time in Rabat, Morocco.

In Cairo, a confidant of President Gamal Abdel Nasser said that, unlike the meeting at Khartoum, Sudan, in August, this would be an action conference.

Muhammed Hassaneln Heikal, editor in chief of the newspaper Al Ahram, declared in an editorial the Arab kings and other chiefs of state should be able to agree on a definite working plan to "erase the consequences of Israeli aggression."

Arab foreign ministers are scheduled to meet in Cairo Saturday to prepare for the session.

Heikal denied speculation that arrangements for the new summit meeting were prompted mainly by a desire to adopt a unified attitude toward Jarring's mission, set up last month under the terms of a Security Council resolution.

The editor, who usually expresses the politicial thinking of President Nasser, said Jarring will find a huge gap "betwen the U.N. resolution and the facts of life in the Middle East."

He predicted a long stalemate.

LBJ Admits 3 Newsmen To Formal Cabinet Meet

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson continues to mix the tried and true with the totally unexpected—like making another anti-inflation pitch to business leaders after breaking tradition to give the press a rare peek at a Cabinet meeting.

The President's orthodox economic sentiments were delivered at an off-the-record dinner meeting of the prestigious Business Council, composed of about 190 leaders of the biggest industrial and financial corporations. His text was made public later.

Johnson gave the public a second-hand look at a formal Cabinet meeting earlier Wednesday by admitting three reporters and permitting them to take complete notes and report their findings. The reporters weren't shooed out until Director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency began briefing the Cabinet on latest national security developments.

In his speech to the Business Council, Johnson coupled his anti-inflation plea with a new attack on trade protectionists, a call for expanded exports, an appeal for voluntary business efforts to promote a healthy balance of payments and some pointed remarks about a recent attack on the dollar by speculators.

Johnson said the speculative attack has been "decisively repelled" but added "we cannot rest on this victory."

He declared "we must look beyond gold" to the kind of supplementary monetary reserves agreed on in September by most non-Communist nations.

The reserves needed to finance expanding world trade, he said, "need not rest on the uncertainties of gold production, consumption and speculation."

His wage-price appeal was a familiar one: Labor should "restrain its demands for excessive wage increases" and business should "refrain from avoidable price increases" and "intensify its competitive efforts."

As for import restrictions, Johnson said the race for trade cannot be won if the United States is "confined by the quotas or high tariff walls the protectionists demand."

At the Cabinet meeting, Chairman John W. Macy of the civil Service Commission reported on efforts to make it easier for citizens to do business with their government.

When Macy said some agencies are staying open Saturdays and one evening a week, the President wanted to know how much this was costing.

Not much, Macy replied.

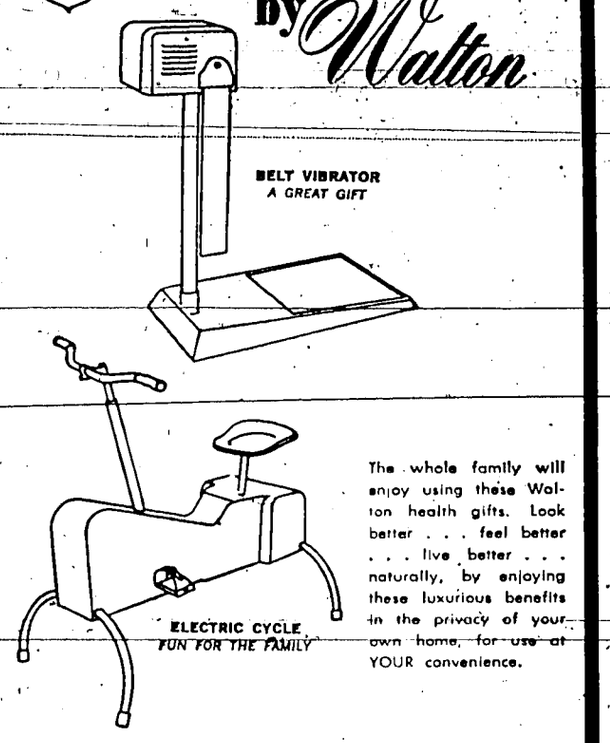

When Macy said a determined effort is being made to get bureaucrats to answer their mail more promptly, the Chief Executive commented: "I've been shocked at some of the delay here in the White House."

He ordered each Cabinet secretary to determine and report to him by Dec. 20—how long it takes their departments to respond to mail from Congress members and the public.

Johnson added that as a senator, he made it a rule to answer mail within 24 hours. But he noted with tongue in cheek that Cabinet officers generally are not running for public office and may not be so concerned about voters' feelings.

South African Heart Patient Has Good Chance To Live

By DAVID J. PAINE
Associated Press Writer

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Doctors reported Saturday they have succeeded in suppressing symptoms that Louis Washkansky's body may be rejecting his transplanted heart. They said the patient continues to gain.

The doctors said they had intensified drug treatments to combat what is believed the greatest threat to the historic heart transplant they performed a week ago—a danger of immunological rejection, the body's natural tendency to reject foreign tissue placed in it.

The first tiny symptoms appeared Friday as Washkansky, 55, entered a weekend period physicians had warned would be crucial in their efforts to prevent rejection.

"If those signs had been maintained or were worse today, we would have been worried," Dr. Marius Barnard said. "But he is better today than he was yesterday."

Dr. Barnard emphasized that Washkansky's symptoms were so minor that the doctors were not certain whether they actually indicated rejection. He reiterated that Washkansky would be able to survive a slight rejection of the new heart.

Besides drugs, Washkansky is receiving cobalt radiation to control his body's rejection of the heart that replaced his own failing one. The new heart came from a 25-year-old woman killed in a traffic accident.

Washkansky left his sterile room in Groote Schuur Hospital Saturday for the second time to take a cobalt treatment in the hospital's radiotherapy center. The wholesale grocer appeared in good spirits and waved at photographers as he was wheeled away in his bed, surrounded by an oxygen tent.

Dr. Barnard, whose brother, Christian, headed a 30-man surgical team for the transplant, said Washkansky was doing better than many experts had expected.

LBJ Says He Feels Fortunate To Have 2 Fine Sons-In-Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Saturday he feels "very fortunate" in having two sons-in-law and that the increase in the First Family, with the wedding of daughter Lynda, gives him "increased satisfaction."

The President and Mrs. Johnson discussed the White House wedding and First Family life in a half-hour filmed interview with newsmen representing the three major television networks. The White House made public a transcript.

Talking about Lynda's new husband, Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb, Johnson declared, "I like him very much," and added, "He is a young man of unusual experience and he has made the most of it."

He said he thought that Robb and daughter Luci's husband, Patrick J. Nugent, "are two very unusual boys and I think we are very fortunate to have them."

Mrs. Johnson said she began to get the idea that Lynda and Robb might be headed for the altar when her daughter came to her after their second date and announced, "Mother, I want you to know Chuck better."

The First Lady said that "I began to sense then that this had some deeper implications."

Mrs. Johnson said she is certain "a sudden wave of loneliness" will hit her from time to time when she peeks into Lynda's empty room at the White House. But she said that whereas the Johnsons entered the White House as a family of four, "now we are seven."

"That doesn't make for loneliness," she said. "That just makes for more happiness when you can get together."

Mrs. Johnson was asked what kind of discipline she imposed on Lynda and Luci.

The President chimed in:

"The answer is she didn't apply any. She would just say, 'Always remember you are trusted, always remember you are loved, always remember we care and I know that you are going to do what is right.'"

The first lady described Lynda as "so intelligent and so companionable—she has a questioning mind and a great sense of excitement in facing life."

She said Lynda was "my best companion for a lot of things that we do together—trips, going to plays and going to art galleries."

Luci was described by her mother as "sort of the eternal Eve" and extremely feminine.

Johnson was asked what he would want most to give to Lynda and Robb.

"I of course want them, more than anything else, to have a grasp and understanding of other people," he replied.

"Sometimes," he said, "particularly when the press shoves me too far, I have to look at that watch and be reminded of that and count 10 before I respond."

Asked if it was difficult raising daughters in the White House goldfish bowl, Mrs. Johnson said:

"I can't say that I have found it too difficult. There are so many counterbalancing things—so many opportunities; interesting, exciting, significant people; a sense that you are on the front row of a great drama that is unfolding and that you have an opportunity to contribute a little bitty bit to it—oh, I couldn't say it has been bad."

Bomb 4,240 Feet Underground Will Be Exploded

By JAKE BOOHER JR.
Associated Press Writer

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP)— A thermonuclear peace bomb is set to explode 4,240 feet underground Sunday in the first test of a concept that could double the nation's natural gas reserves.

The device, with the power of 12.5 million quarts of nitroglycerin, is to be detonated at 1 p.m. EST, in a secluded area of the arson National Forest. The site is 55 miles east of Farmington and about 200 miles from where the world's first atomic explosion occurred near Alamogordo in July 1945.

There will be little similarity between Sunday's Project Gasbuggy test and the World War II atomic weapons program.

Gasbuggy, the first use of nuclear explosive for industrial purposes, has a peaceful objective—to determine if it can free natural gas from low permeability, or tight, rock formations where gas cannot be obtained at a profit by conventional means.

The Atomic Energy Commission, a Gasbuggy sponsor, estimated there are enough so-called tight formations in Wyoming, New Mexico, Utah and Colorado that nuclear stimulation could add about 300 trillion cubic feet of natural gas to the nation's reserves, and thus double them.

Other sponsors of the $4.7 million project are El Paso Natural Gas Co. and the U.S. Bureau of Mines. El Paso, which paid $1.8 million of the cost, says most of the gas from the test hole probably will be used for evaluation and not sold commercially.

The Gasbuggy hole was being capped Saturday with a sealing substance, after it was filled with cement and sand.

AEC officials expressed optimism that Gasbuggy, postponed three times previously, would be detonated on schedule unless weather interferes. Clear visibility is required for aircraft over ground zero to watch for escaping radiation, if any.

AEC spokesmen said they are certain no radioactive materials will escape from the ground, but U.S. Public Health Service teams will be in the area to direct evacuations if necessary.

AEC spokesmen said they do not expect the Gasbuggy device to damage property in the area or create a crater at ground zero. It might not be felt very far from the blast site, spokesmen said.

The blast is expected to create an underground chamber about 350 feet high and 160 feet in diameter. Gas would flow into the chamber through fractures and be recovered by sinking a new well.

Church Meeting

BOISE (AP — Episcopal Church delegates from across Idaho attended the church's primary convention Saturday, at which it changed its status from a missionary district to a diocese.

Organization of the diocese was the purpose for the convention and the present Bishop of Idaho, The Rt. Rev. Norman L. Foote, was retained as diocesan bishop.

The major change brought by the new designation for the church in Idaho is that it will now be able to select its own bishop. As a missionary district, the Episcopal Bishop of Idaho was chosen by the church's house of bishops.

Lights Taken

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — There will be lumps of coal and bundles of twigs in the Christmas stockings of thieves who victimized Mrs. Claus.

Mrs. Robert Claus told Indianapolis police Friday that someone stole more than 100 Christmas lights from trees in front of her home.

3 Injured In Plane Crash

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Three Salt Lake City persons were injured Saturday afternoon when a twin-engine plane crashed on takeoff at Salt Lake airport.

Police identified the pilot as Roy M. Nelson, 51, listed in fair condition at St. Marks Hospital. Passengers in the plane were Nelson's wife, Katherine, 49, and Jean Moseley, 45. Both were in good condition in Holy Cross Hospital.

Witnesses said the engines failed when Nelson was leaving the ground. The plane crashed about one-half mile from the end of the runway.

ANYONE LOST A 24 inch saber? This is the question asked by Garry Corder, Twin Falls Police Department detective. He said the department is seeking the owner of the relic, which could date back to Civil War days. It was among several items recovered by the department after apparently being stolen in this area. All items but the saber were returned to the owners but as yet no one has claimed the relic. Officer Corder said anyone who can provide proof that he is the rightful owner and can make proper identification may have the article.

State Department Presents U.S. War Policy Summary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imposition of a coalition government in South Vietnam would conflict with the fundamental U.S. objective that the South Vietnamese people "determine their own future without external influence," the State Department said Friday.

The statement was part of a five-point summary of U.S. policy toward the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong. It was issued by the State Department in the wake of speculation by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on the possibility of NLF representation in a future government for South Vietnam.

Humphrey said negotiations over ending the war may involve, at some future date, what he termed non-Communist elements of the NLF.

He said that still later those elements "may very well be brought into" the South Vietnamese government, but only if Saigon wants it that way.

His comments in a CBS radio interview broadcast Thursday were heavily qualified and he remarked, after discussing a possible role for the NLF, that he may have overstated his point.

But discussion by a top administration official of a division in the NLF and speculation on a coalition government was unusual.

Humphrey's remarks, which he emphasized were hypothetical, pivoted on what he termed a "split" between Communist and non-Communist factions in the NLF.

Without referring to Humphrey's statements, the State Department issued after consultation with the White House a resume of U.S. policy on dealings with the NLF. The theme of the five points was that there is nothing new in the U.S. attitude on this matter.

"On the question of negotiations and the search for peace in any form," said the statement read by Robert J. McCloskey, State Department press officer, "our policy remains what it has been: namely, we are prepared to discuss peace with the government in Hanoi or any other government at any time.

"As the President made clear July 28, 1965, the Viet Cong or the so-called National Liberation Front would have no difficulty being represented and having its views represented."

As for the future government for South Vietnam, the statement said, "We have repeatedly made clear that our objective is that the South Vietnamese people determine their own future without external influence. The imposition of any coalition government would be at variance with this principle."

In his interview the vice president had been asked to comment on the statement of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., that the United States must be willing to accept a coalition regime with Communist influence in South Vietnam as part of the price for the end of the war.

Humphrey replied that "It's a little bit high-handed on our part to start to tell the South Vietnamese who ought to be in their government."

Icy Beauty

Ice can be beautiful. And what better place to find ice in winter than Shoshone Falls! Water is gushing over the falls now and the mist rises high in the air, only to settle on fences, grass and the trees.

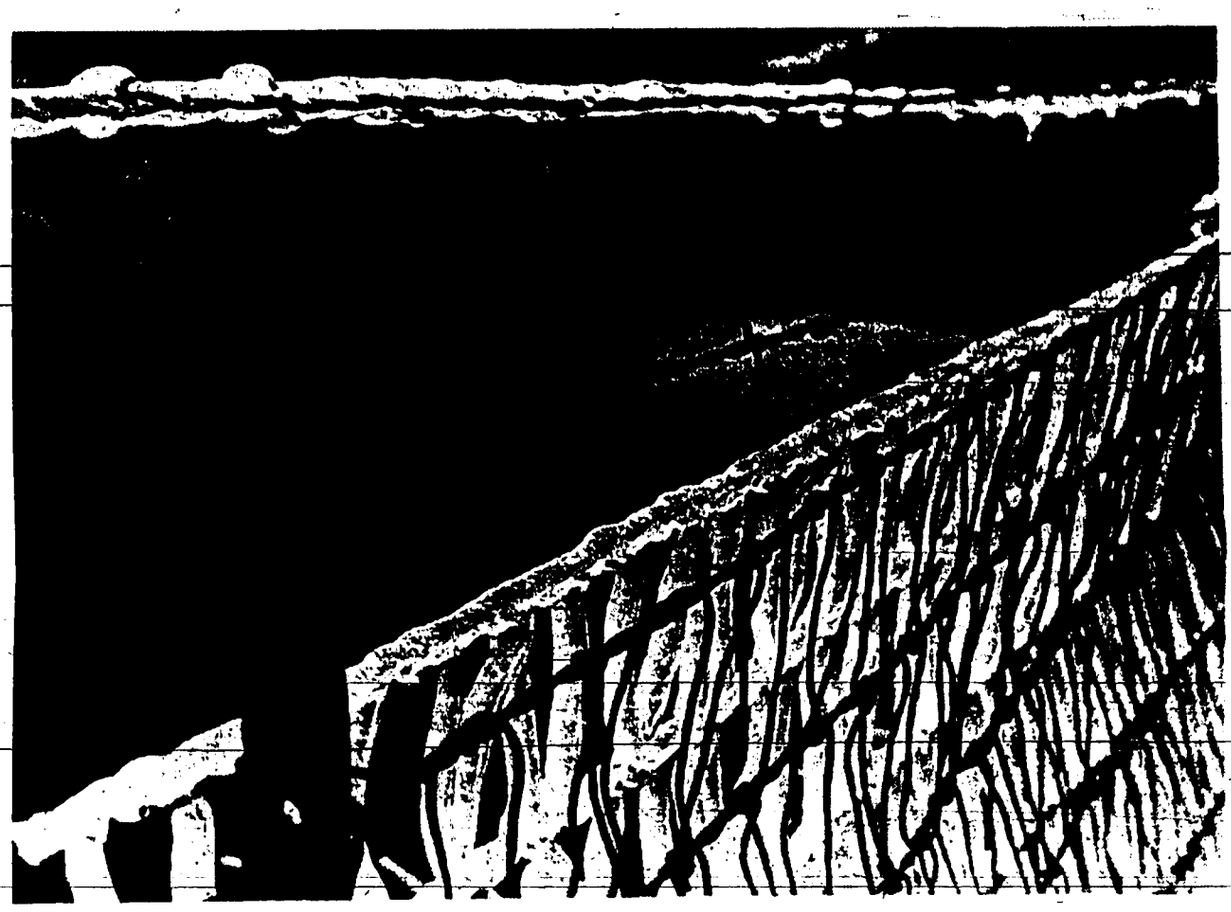

In the cool air, where the sun never reaches, the mist soon turns to ice. As it builds around a twig or a piece of wire, a wonderful transformation takes place. It is the wonder of nature. As children will say: Jack Frost breaths in the direction of Shoshone Falls.

Times-News Feature Editor and part-time shutterbug Jan Sainsbury, a newcomer to this area, visited the falls recently and captured this mystery on film.

The sight of Mr. Sainsbury trying to manipulate steep slopes in slicksoled shoes was nearly as entertaining as the wonder of nature itself.

But true to his calling, the cold weather and the dangers of falling did not stop him from getting into many twisted positions to get just the right exposure.

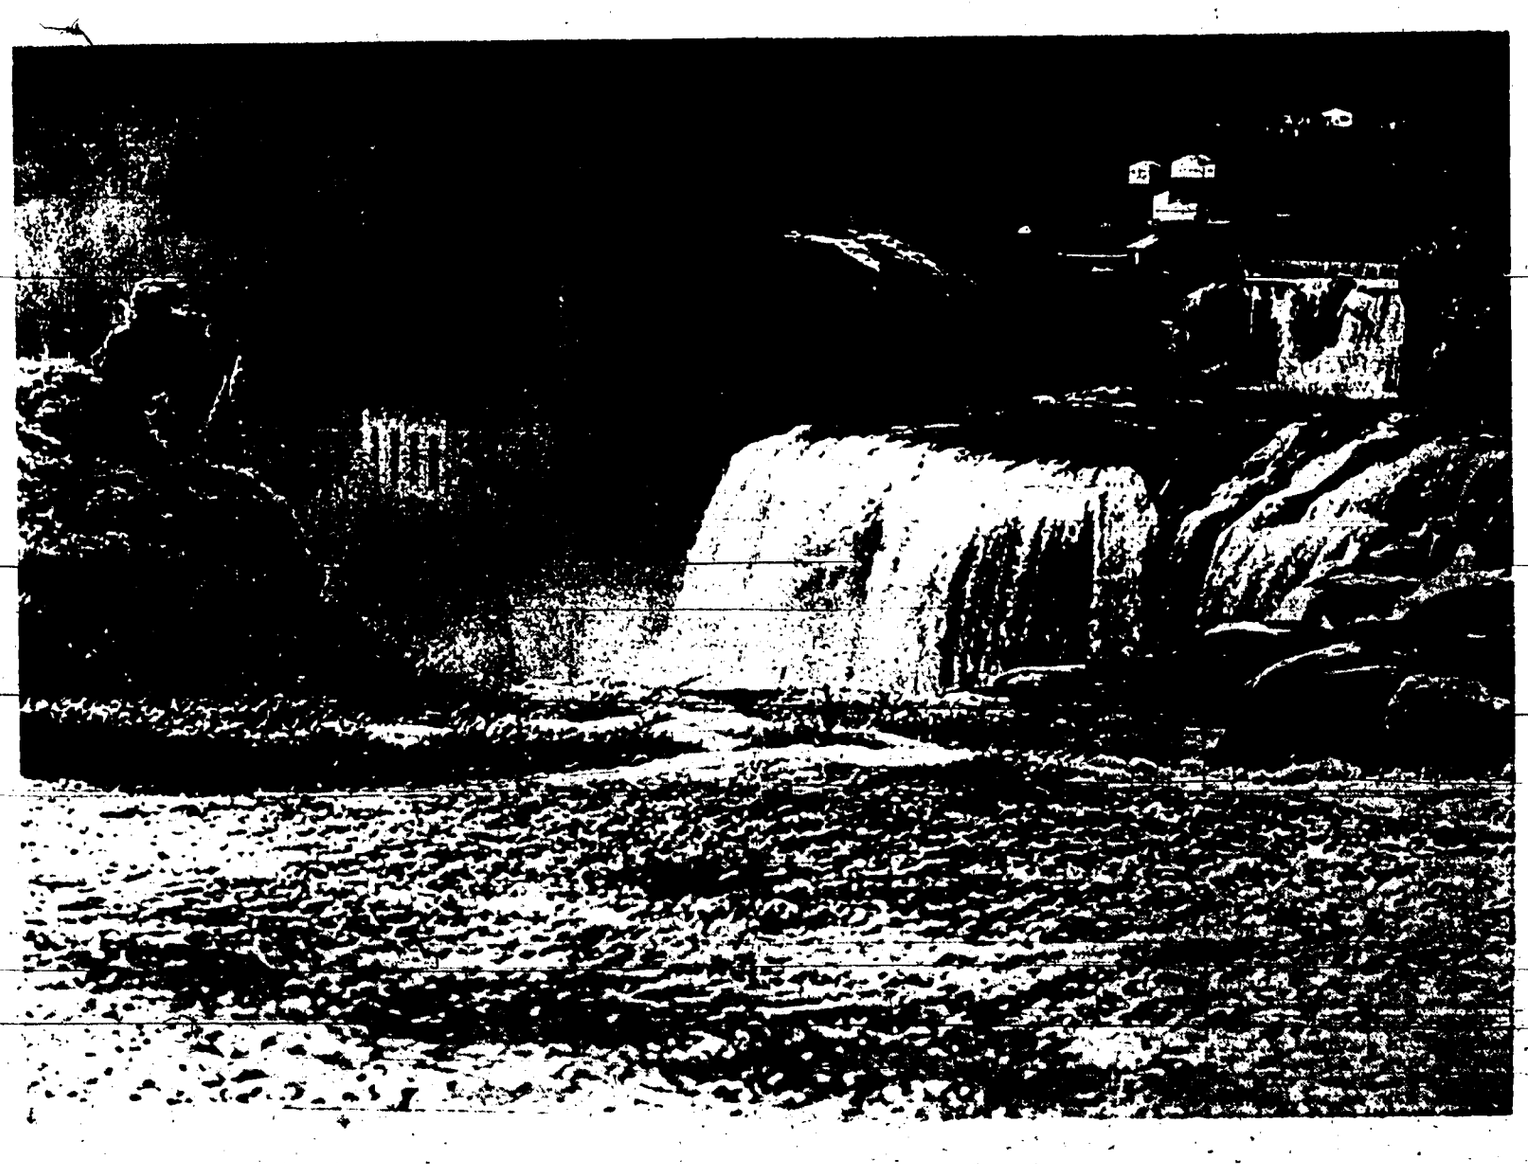

It was with disappointment that he ran out of film and had to call it a day. But the ice remains, free for all to see. The grade, however, is slick and motorists wanting to visit Shoshone Falls this time of year should proceed with caution. Snow tires or chains are recommended.

Frozen mist creates a network of icy strands . . .

Frozen fingers of moisture collect on anything available . . .

Jaycee Orange Sale Will Begin Monday

One of the best things in the holiday season is the spirit of giving.

The Twin Falls Jaycees and Jay-C-Ettes help promote that spirit each year when they give to a group of underprivileged Twin Falls children the chance to buy presents for members of their families.

The project is funded by a city-wide orange sale which begins Monday evening. The Jaycees will be selling 2,000 bags or about five tons of oranges. They hope to make about $500 profit on the project.

The 50 to 100 children will be selected by the schools they attend and each family will be given gift certificates, redeemable at certain departments in specific stores in Twin Falls.

In addition, the children will be treated to a movie at a local theater. They will also, after attending the show, be taken to the American Legion Hall for refreshments. Santa Claus will make an appearance and distribute gifts to the children.

If the youngsters do not have transportation, the Jaycees and Jay-C-Ettes will provide it.

The Jaycees report that any child, up to 12 years of age, may attend the movies free of charge, but only needy children can attend the party.

The party has been scheduled for Dec. 23, beginning about noon.

College of Southern Idaho Ski Club members will be assisting the Jaycees in the orange sale and Jay-C-Ettes will prepare a chili supper Monday evening and provide transportation for the salemen.

Other Jaycee groups in Magic Valley will also begin orange sales Monday night and revenue from sales will go to various club projects.

Presidential Advisory Unit Takes Exception To Plans

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential advisory commission takes issue with some current federal programs and urges full employment for the rural poor—even if the government has to provide the jobs to end what the panel calls a national disgrace.

The 25-member group, headed by Edward Breathitt, Democratic governor of Kentucky, submitted its report in September but it was not made public by the White House until Saturday, although there had been repeated requests by newsmen for its release.

Reportedly, it was put out now because the Government Printing Office sent copies to some 400 public libraries where they became available to reporters.

In its most sweeping recommendation, the commission asks "as a matter of urgency" that the federal government make good on its policy of full employment, made official 21 years ago.

It calls for jobs for all those willing and able to work and says that to the extent that private enterprise cannot provide employment, "the commission believes it is the obligation of government to provide it."

Touching peripherally on the potential cost of raising all the poor of the nation above the poverty line, the group says that in 1964 the tab would have been about $12.5 billion—or 2.6 per cent of the personal income of all Americans.

"To close the income gap for the rural poor alone," it says, "would require nearly $5 billion."

The whole tenor of the 160-page printed document is that the price would be well worth it.

Breathitt's commission is pointedly critical of federal programs to aid rural America, calling them "woefully out of date." Some were called "relics from an earlier era."

It holds that the 1967 city riots were due in considerable part, to rural poverty.

"A high proportion of the people crowded into city slums today came there from rural slums," the commission says.

However, the commission says that "contrary to a common misconception, whites outnumber nonwhites among the rural poor by a wide margin."

It did say that in the South and on Indian reservations an extremely high proportion of Negroes and Indians can only be described as destitute.

In a number of passages, the commission complains in effect that poor folks in the city have a more effective lobby in Washington than their cousins in the country.

The commission's first recommendation is that the nation immediately put into effect a national policy aimed at giving rural "equality of opportunity with all other citizens" in regard to jobs, medical care, housing, education, welfare and all other public services.

Secondly, it said it recommends that the 1946 full employment policy be made effective.

In other recommendations the commissions calls for a nationwide food-stamp program with stamps "given to the poorest of the poor without cost;" a thorough reshaping of manpower programs; a major overhaul of the rural education system; provision of better medical care in rural areas; and better rural housing with "special emphasis on a program providing rent supplements for the rural poor."

The report was released just as Congress was about to approve a two-year extension of the antipoverty program. The Senate already has passed the legislation and the House is expected to do so Monday.

Lynda Bird's Gown Was Personalized

The bridal gown was an A-line designed by Geoffrey Beene of New York City with a narrow shoulder flowing to the floor in back with a 12-yard train.

A front panel of the gown was outlined in embroidered silk floss flowers and seed pearls. Matching flowers outlined the high collar and cuffs of the long tapered sleeves.

Lynda wore a small coronet on the back of her head. She had a shoulder length silk illusion veil.

Inside the wedding gown Lynda had sewn for the "something old" that brides traditionally carry, a 142-year-old pin of gold and seed pearls from Mrs. Frances Hudspeth of Austin, Tex., her college counseler.

Lynda carried "something borrowed" in the form of a 59-year-old ivory lace handkerchief made by her great grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Ament Huffman Baines. Lynda's sister Luci carried the same handkerchief when she was married in August 1968.

BUCKY'S CHRISTMAS CAPER — By Wally Wood

Rockefeller Laughs Off Draft Proposal

By JACK BELL
AP Political Affairs Writer

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Confessing he is being pressed harder than ever before, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he hasn't opened the door even a crack wider to a possible draft for the Republican presidential nomination.

Rockefeller laughed off, in an interview, a suggestion by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall at the GOP governors conference here that a national committee be formed to circulate petitions urging the New York governor to get into the nomination race. McCall guessed that 15 million signatures could be assembled.

"Are they all going to be delegates to the nominating convention?" Rockefeller asked. Told that obviously they would not be, the governor replied: "That's it. Now you've got it. That's what counts."

Rockefeller, who is expected to be designated a favorite son by the New York delegation, conceded he is being pressed harder at this meeting than ever before on his noncandidate stand.

McCall, who claims that at last 15 GOP governors would be happy to have Rockefeller head the 1968 party ticket, said subsequently he will not push his proposal.

Informed that a statement he made at a Friday news conference was being interpreted in some quarters as a softening of his stand against a possible draft, Rockefeller said this just wasn't so. "I have not changed my position one iota," he said.

In response to a question at the news conference of whether he was "draftable," the governor had replied: "That is a hypothetical question, it's an iffy question. I haven't faced it because I don't think it is a reality. If the party presents you with that fact, and I don't think it will, then you have to face it."

While McCall said he thinks Rockefeller "is moving a little" toward a possible candidacy, Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland counseled others who want the New Yorker for a candidate against forming any draft organization. Agnew said it was too early.

Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, incoming chairman of the GOP conference, said that if developments should bring Rockefeller into the picture he does not think that convention delegates would reject the New Yorker despite the fact that a majority of them are likely to be conservative.

Chafee, a supporter of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, said he thinks the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries might "break" a losing candidate but would not necessarily give the winner an inside track toward the nomination.

Chafee torpedoed a short-lived revolt against his taking over the conference chairmanship by assuring the governors in a closed session that he would never use his position as chairman to advance Romney or any other candidate.

In a closed session, the governors voted to recommend the appointment of Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania as co-chairman with Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois of the 1968 convention platform committee.

Dirksen, who opposes sharing the top job, told a news conference he welcomes aid from the governors in drafting platform planks. He indicated he would be willing to name some of them to head subcommittees.

National Party Chairman Ray Bliss must decide the issue of whether Dirksen goes it alone or has a governor sitting at his side.

The governors also decided to accept Shafer's proposal for a series of hearings in all sections opinion on the issues with which of the country to get grass root the platform will deal. Chafee said they probably will be arranged for February.

Gulf Offers To Purchase Firm's Stock

NEW YORK (AP) — Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp. has issued an offer to purchase 700,000 shares of Bunker Hill Co. common stock.

Robert H. Allen, president of the Houston-based firm, said Friday in New York a tender offer of $56 per share would be published Monday for the stock. Allen said his company's offer would not be extended beyond Jan. 31.

In Kellogg, Idaho, headquarters of Bunker Hill, Charles E. Schwab, firm president, said he had no comment to make on the offer.

"A meeting of Bunker Hill directors has been called to consider this matter early next week — hopefully on Monday or Tuesday," Schwab said.

Bunker Hill closed up 50 cents at $46.87 per share Friday on the New York Stock Exchange while Gulf Resources closed on the American Stock Exchange at $32.50, also up 50 cents. Gulf produces elemental sulphur and lithium chemicals, compounds and metals. Bunker Hill primarily deals in mining and refining nonferrous metals, principally lead, zinc and silver.

Bunker Hill spokesmen said the offer is for some 46.5 per cent of its stock, worth about $39.2 million. Largest block of stock, less than 10 per cent, is owned by the Croker family in San Francisco under Providence Securities.

An unidentified Bunker official reportedly said: "We hadn't the slightest hint this was coming. We don't know why they are looking at us."

One Spokane broker was quoted as saying the proposed merger is "like a minnow trying to swallow a whale."

Another source said Allen was in the Kellogg area Friday, and was believed to be holding discussions with Bunker officials.

Gulf was formed last year through the merger of Gulf Sulphur Corp. and Lithium Corp. of America. Its sales this year are expected to be about $20 million, compared to $17.4 for last year.

Bunker had $76 million in sales last year.

He said American Business shares will pay 35 cents per share Dec. 29; Fidelity Capital Fund, $1.44, payable Jan. 6, 1968; Supervised Investors Growth fund, 51 cents payable Dec. 27, and a dividend of 4 cents payable Dec. 27.

Idaho Rates Two Calendar Pictures

There are 13 months on the new calendar because December 1967, starts out the tabloid of months and photographs.

On April, 1968, Coeur d'Alene Lake is featured. The color photo features the bright blue lake with its tree-shrouded shores.

Increase In Steel Prices Prompts Plea For Restraint

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With steel price increases spreading, President Johnson this past week called on industry and labor to hold the line on prices and wages.

He didn't mention the steelmakers specifically, but it seemed obvious that their latest round of selective price increases had prompted his appeal.

U.S. Steel Corp., the No. 1 producer, started the price ball rolling last Friday with a $5-a-ton increase on cold-rolled sheet, which is used heavily in the manufacture of automobiles and appliances.

Other major producers went along. Some later announced boosts of $5 a ton on galvanized and aluminum coated sheets.

Johnson made his appeal for restraint on price and wage increases at a meeting of the Business Council, an organization of top business executives who advise him on the economy.

"I am urging business to refrain from avoidable price increases and to intensify its competitive efforts," he said.

"I intend to urge labor to restrain its demands for excessive wage increases."

The President said further:

"If strong labor unions insist on a high wage rise twice the nationwide increase in output per man hour—even where there is no real labor shortage—we are bound to have rising prices.

"If members of an industry attempt to raise prices and profit margins—even when they clearly have excess capacity—we are bound to have rising prices.

"Nobody benefits from a wages-price spiral."

Prices went up this past week on other fronts.

Higbie Manufacturing Co. and Bundy Corp., major makers of metal tubing for the automotive and appliance industries, raised their prices by 3.5 to 5.5 per cent.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., the nation's largest glassmaker, announced a 6 per cent across the board increase on its sheet glass prices.

The three companies said the raises were due to higher costs of labor and materials.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that new factory orders increased during October for the first time in four months and that the backlog of unfilled orders reached a record $81.6 billion.

New orders rose 0.5 of 1 per cent to $45.5 billion while shipments declined to $44.4 billion, thus adding $1.1 billion to the backlog.

Automobile production this past week was estimated at 199,300 passenger cars, compared with 197,168 last week and 197,613 a year earlier.

A news blackout was clamped on negotiations between the United Auto Workers Union and General Motors. This indicated the start of serious bargaining against a Dec. 14 target date for reaching a national agreement.

Steel production last week dipped 0.1 per cent to 2,703,000 tons from 2,707,000 tons the previous week.

Change Minds

SEATTLE (AP) — Two men weighed possible gain against possible jail this week when they entered a Seattle grocery store and demanded money.

One of the robbers looked at the money in the cash register.

"It's not worth it," he said, and the two fled.

Dairy Clinic To Be Held At Burley

BURLEY — The Dairy Clinic will begin at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in the basement of Nelson's Cafe with luncheon served at noon.

The school this year is sponsored by the Mini-Cassia Dairymen's Association, and the University of Idaho Dairy Department and Extension Service.

Guest speaker and his subject is Dr. Richard Ross, head of the Dairy Department, "Feeding the High Producing Cow." Dave Thaker, Caldwell Experiment Station, will present material on calf raising, housing and management. He will discuss some of the research done in the raising of dairy replacements and the value of corn silage in the dairy program.

Dr. Richard Hall, extension service, will talk on "Dairy Cattle Health Problems Associated with High Production and Low Nutrition." He will also discuss the calf program that has been conducted at the experiment station the past few years and the plans for the future.

Joe Hall will discuss imitation products confronting the dairy industry. George Cleveland will speak on "Developing a Modern Dairy Breeding Program."

Latin President Received Threats

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Col. Raul Barlocco, Montevideo police chief, said Friday President Oscar Gestido and his family received "veiled anonymous threats" about five days before the president died. His death Wednesday was attributed to a sudden heart attack.

Barlocco said a group of disgruntled part-time government employes were involved but no arrests have been made.

Barlocco made his statements to a reporter, confirming in part a report published Friday by the evening newspaper Extra.

The chief confirmed specifically a report that a messenger delivered a bouqet of red roses at Gestido's home with a note threatening him and his grandchildren and said the threat "affected him deeply."

Extra, quoting relatives and close friends of Gestido, said Gestido received many telephone threats several days before his death.

Chamber In Rupert Has Regular Meet

To be installed at the annual dinner on Jan. 29 are Ken Bell, president; Robert Balch, first vice president; Bus Goodie, second vice president and Mrs. Ruth De Thomas, secretary-treasurer.

Three directors who will serve for three years are William Haynes, Ed Hartman and Richard Maggard. Hold over directors are Merle Hannah, Frank Lukens, John Trevino and Elmer Rosecranz.

This year's president, Claude Bowman, will serve as a director for one year. Bill Haynes gave a short review of Pearl Harbor and our past history, and asked "Where is Our Loyalty and Responsibility Now?" Ethel Greer, postmaster, explained the new mail service and encouraged people to mail before 4 p.m. so sorting can be done before arrival of the mail truck which will ease the load at the sectional center in Twin Falls.

A group of folk singers from Magic Valley Christian College presented several numbers.

Fred Waddell, dean of the college, accompanied the group and told chamber members and guests that he believed in the youth of today and that young people who are in trouble are in the minority.

Pilots Strike

LONDON (AP) — More than 1,000 pilots of the state-run British Overseas Airways Corp. — BOAC—went on a 48-hour strike at midnight Friday after two days of talks ended in deadlock.

Labor Minister Ray Gunter expressed disappointment that the pilots were going ahead with the strike despite his promise of a full inquiry into their complaints and demands for higher pay.

The flight stoppage will be limited to planes leaving London over the weekend for such points as New York.

The pilots have asked salary increases that would almost double the present $14,112 annual salary of a senior jet skipper.

They also want the right to negotiate directly with the BOAC management instead of discussing their claims inside a joint negotiating body that includes other unions.

Anti-Malaria Pill Is Found

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The leader of a government-supported research team at General Hospital reported today the team has developed a one-pill cure for a type of malaria which has felled thousands of U. S. troops in Vietnam.

Dr. John Arnold, director of the hospital's Harry S. Truman Laboratory of Comparative Medicine, said in a copyrighted story in The Kansas City Star that the new drug has proved effective against the stubborn falciparum malaria against which other medicines have proved ineffective.

Tested on volunteers at the Jackson County jail here, the drug cured 10 of 11 malaria patients with a single dose. The remaining patient required a second treatment, Dr. Arnold said.

He predicted the new pill will enable stricken soldiers to return to duty within two or three days instead of the present two weeks required for treatment by drugs now in use.

Your Spine and Your Health

By Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr

The average person gets a mental and physical battering these action-packed, anxiety ridden days.

Dr. Landwehr

From his appearance on earth until three generations ago, man's body was subject to an easier going pace, to fresh air, to natural light, to natural foods and rest when the body was tired.

Our mechanical age has changed all that. Now our bodies must cope with synthetic foods, lights, etc. An environment of high tensions, hard driving, now shocks and irritates the body and nerves at every turn.

Few bodies can take this battering of a man made pace. The mind, body and spirit sag. Sometimes it's—all three.

Man's case is not hopeless. Chiropractic is man's answer to the health requirements of modern life.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of scientific chiropractic, written by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr, whose office is located at 717 Main Ave. W., Twin Falls, Tel. 733-0522.)

YMCA To Get Family Names For Christmas

The YWCA at 1751 Elizabeth Blvd., will again act as a clearing house for names of families needing help at Christmas time.

Any group or organization wanting to help a family is asked to call the YWCA for a name. If the group already has selected a family people should still contact the Y office to make sure the family name has not already been taken by another organization.

All names at the Y office are checked for the correct address and to determine the number of family members and ages of children.

Families that have not been selected by organizations will be taken care of with food items donated through the public schools. However, Mrs. Marvin Molyneux and Chet Bartlett, directors for the YMCA and YWCA report there is always a shortage of meat.

Cassia Livestock Group Meet Set

BURLEY — The annual meeting of the Cassia Livestock Marketing Association will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday at Nelson's Cafe.

In the past the association has used this event to present information on the wool and lamb industry. Wade Wells, Extension Animal Husbandman, and Dr. Richard Hall, Extension Veterinarian, will be guest speakers.

Topics for discussion will be on feeding sheep with particular emphasis on the newer developments of feeding and fattening lambs; management for disease control, and some of the most troublesome disease problems.

Greek Troops Leaving Island

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Greece began withdrawing Friday the 12,000 troops it had illegally posted on Cyprus. The first 400 boarded a Greek ship at Famagusta.

Newsmen were barred. A Greek officer told Greek Cypriot photographers: "Don't you realie this is a disgrace for us How can you ask me to allow you to take photographs of our shame?"

Under a recent Greek-Turksih accord that averted war, Greece must remove all but 950 Greek soldiers from Cyprus within 45 days. The 950 are allowed on the island along with 650 Turkish soliders under the Geneva-London agreements that brought Cyprus independence from Britain in 1960.

American Falls Dam Must Be Improved, Writer Says

Editor, Times-News:

Since it has become common knowledge that American Falls Dam must be rebuilt, I have heard many times about terrible injustice that would result to the Indians if any more of their lands were flooded by raising the dam.

Woman Says City Is Out Of Line

Editor, Times-News:

Maybe I'm wrong; but I firmly believe Twin Falls and its city commissioners are out of line in allowing that big fat "Cactus Pete's" sign to be put up at the main intersection.

In my opinion, Twin Falls never has done enough to try to keep its citizens at home or to attract new populace. Not so long ago, they took the parking off Addison Avenue so the people could get right on down to Jackpot without stopping. I hear they are going to increase the speed limit on Addison soon, so they can leave town a little faster.

I wonder who is kidding who — when they say they want to do everything they can to get more business down town. I've been watching and waiting; for I'd surely like to see Twin Falls come alive again; but I'm afraid the "Big Beautiful Sign" advertising leaving not only our city but also our state, is the death knell.

I understand all the property and business owners in downtown are to be assessed quite heavily on the Urban Renewal Plan. If they go along with that "Trojan Horse" on top of the Perrine Hotel, I'd say mankind hasn't gained much wisdom since 1200 B.C.

In other words I think it's stupid.

MRS. LORINA KAPP
(Twin Falls)

I wish to explode this myth.

If American Falls Dam were raised six feet the water would only cover 735 acres of land owned by the Indians.

If the dam were raised 13 feet the water would only cover about 1,250 acres owned by the Indians.

It is true more land will be flooded but the additional land is owned by the Reclamation Department and was purchased when American Falls Dam was built in 1927.

The land that will be flooded by raising American Falls Dam is nothing but sand and alkali and doesn't even raise good grass.

The Indians complain of the bad treatment they have received from the white people.

The Indian that lives today has not been abused as his forefathers, and it is senseless for him to expect to live as his forefather.

The Indians of today and for a generation back have been given food, clothing, a chance for an education and also the opportunity to become self supporting.

We expect to pay the Indians for the land that would be covered by the enlargement.

We expect the Negro to make his own way along side the whites; and for his own good the Indian should be expected to do the same.

We are taxed to support the Indians and they are allowed to tell us that we can't take 1,200 acres of waste land that is needed to store enough water to irrigate 250,000 acres of land on the south side of the river.

Some people ask why not build Lyn Crandal Dam, and not bother the Indians.

The water in Lyn Crandal will cost five times as much per acre foot as water from American Falls Dam.

American Falls Dam must be rebuilt for safety reasons and an enlargement of American Falls Dam will catch a large amount of water that comes into the river below Lyn Crandall Dam and would be lost over a low American Falls Dam. We need both.

California and Arlonza have plans to take this water that we are wasting to the sea and they will get it if we don't use it.

Think of the boost this development would give to the towns of Magic Valley.

Jerome Woman Has Answer For Letter In Forum

Editor, Times-News:

I can't understand what Mr. William Teagan is griping about. The advertisement that he appears so interested in, in the "Family Weekly," was not withheld. If he is wanting to send for the trash that was advertised on the back page of said "Weekly," he was free to do so.

I am very thankful that the Times-News took the step toward cleaning up the advertisements. Even though I agree with Mr. Teagan on the alcohol advertisements, I don't believe that "two wrongs make a right." Or to make another quote, there's no need of "adding insult to injury." Even though the Mr. Teagans of the world would prefer to be their own censors, that doesn't mean all the young folks should be exposed to such trash, or the weak and ignorant.

For Heaven's sake, why can't people think about anything besides their own selfish desires? If Mr. Teagan's idea of "freedom" was persued there would be no limit to the type of material available to the public, from pornography to dope. The laws are for the purpose of protecting those who haven't the strength of character to judge for themselves what is, or is not, beneficial to them. It is our duty to respect such laws.

To Give Blood

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Students at Texas A&M University will line up Monday to share their blood with American soldiers fighting in Vietnam.

The blood drive is sponsored by A&M's student senate. "The senate felt that we should have an opportunity to show our support for our men in Vietnam," said drive chairman John Daly of Corpus Christi. "What better way than with blood that might save someone's life?"

To OK Orders

PARIS (AP) — France has decided to accept orders for fighter-bombers from any country in the Middle East, well informed sources reported Friday night.

But because of the present "explosive" state of Arab-Israeli tensions, the sources emphasized, France will make no immediate delivey of warplances to the region, either to Israel or to neighboring Arab states.

Unbeaten Solons Overcome Wood River By 50-39

HAILEY — Catching a second - quarter spark off the shooting of Larry Larsen and Chris Oakley, the Gooding Senators remained undefeated Saturday night by toppling Wood River from the unbeaten ranks 50-39.

Gooding beat the Wolverines where it has been the strongest all year — getting fine rebounding from Ken Krahn, Oakley and Reinke. Wood River, absorbing its first loss after two wins, lost the battle of the boards and also proved ice cold in shooting. The home crew hit only five of 19 attempts from the line, although Gooding was only a little better with four of 10.

The teams battled to a 12-all deadlock over the first quarter. But in the second period Larsen popped through three outside shots while Oakley rolled around inside for three more buckets on hooks. Wood River managed only five points in reply to Gooding's 15-point effort and from then on Gooding was uncatchable. The Senators mounted a 42-23 third-quarter edge and coasted in.

Gooding Has 73-52 Win Over Pilots

GOODING—Putting four men in double scoring figures, the Gooding Senators finally solved a zone defense and went on to beat the Glenns Ferry Pilots 73-52 Friday night.

Glenns Ferry stayed in the game throughout most of three quarters, staging a good flurry paced by sophomore Carpenter late in the second period to cut back most of a Gooding 14-point edge.

The Pilots stayed close until late in the third quarter when Bolton, Larsen and Chris Oakley potted two Gooding field goals each to push the game out of sight.

Kimberly Is 58-46 Winner Over Wolves

KIMBERLY — Kimberly's Bulldogs, behind the 25-point pitching of Larry Reitz, spotted Castleford an early lead but finished strong to claim a 58-46 victory Friday night.

Castleford boomed into a 9-2 lead in the first quarter and Kimberly didn't catch up until halftime. But in the third quarter the Bulldogs exploded for 26 points while Castleford managed only 12. E. Kinyon turned in a strong game for the losers.

Northwestern Surprises Louisville

CHICAGO (AP) — Unheralded Northwestern, led by three sophomores, upset third-ranked Louisville Saturday night 88-83 with a stirring second half drive in the first game of a Chicago Stadium basketball doubleheader.

Northwestern, which went into the game with a 1-1 record, had blown a 10-point advantage in the first half but came back to grab a 44-41 lead at intermission.

Louisville's outstanding Wesley Unseld, who finished with 36 but was held to 11 points in the first half, brought the previously undefeated Cardinals back into contention until they tied the Wildcats 57-57 with 12 minutes remaining in the contest.

Majors Accepts Iowa State Job

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Johnny Majors, a former All-America who knew nothing but success as a player, has been entrusted with the task of revitalizing Iowa State University's long sagging football fortunes.

The 32-year-old Majors, who has been an assistant at Arkansas, agreed Friday evening to a five-year contract at $21,000 a year to replace Clay Stapleton as coach at the Big Eight school.

Fairmont Uses Two Breaks To Take NAIA College Grid Crown

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Fairmont, W. Va., State turned two quick breaks into third period touchdowns Saturday and then held Eastern Washington State's potent aerial game in check for a 28-21 victory Saturday and the NAIA small college football championship.

The breaks came right after the third period opened. Fairmont's George Edwards recovered the kickoff fumble by Rick Hardie on the Eastern Washington 20-yard line.

Three plays later, quarterback Roy Michael whipped an 18-yard pass to end Jim Mertens as Fairmont tied the score at 14-14.

Less than three minutes later, Pat Zlateff saw the pass from center sail over his head in a punt attempt and Zlateff was tackled on his own one-yard line. In the first play from scrimmage, fullback Larry Blackstone bulled over for the go-ahead touchdown.

Bill Diedrick, Eastern Washington's minipasser, steered the savages into a 14-0 lead. After a scoreless first period, the 5-7 Diedrick whipped a three-yard toss to end Dave Svendsen and five minutes later fired 34 yards to Zlateff.

Fairmont's first touchdown came in the waning minutes of the second period when Blackstone dived over from the one and the half ended with Eastern Washington in front 14-7.

Then came the two quick Fairmont touchdowns and the final scores came when halfback Ray Stookey passed to Hardie for 31 yards and Edwards broke over center for 27 yards and the winning Fairmont tally.

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals plan a desperate last ditch stand against the Cleveland Browns Sunday in hopes of taking the Century Division race into the final week of the National Football League season.

A victory for the Browns would clinch the division crown and send them into a Dec. 24 playoff against the Dallas Cowboys in the Cotton Bowl for the Eastern Conference title.

Cleveland, 8-4, won their first meeting 20-16, Oct. 15 on two touchdown passes by Frank Ryan and three field goals by Lou Groza. The Cards, 6-5-1, snapped a losing streak at the expense of New Orleans last week while the Browns were eliminating the New York Giants.

Baltimore, 10-0-2, hopes to take another step toward the first unbeaten NFL season since the Chicago Bears of 1942 when they finish their home season against the New Orleans Saints, 2-10. The first meeting of the two clubs presents ex-Colts like quarterback Gary Cuozzo and linebackers Steve Stonebreaker, Ted Davis and Jackie Burkett a chance for revenge on their old mates.

Dallas, 8-4, already crowned champs of the Capitol Division, finishes its regular season home campaign against the erratic Philadelphia Eagles, 5-6-1, who bounced back from disaster at New York to tie Washington last week in a wild 35-35 game.

The Chicago Bears, 6-6, close out their home season against Minnesota, 3-7-2, in a clash of improving clubs. The Bears won 17-7 on Oct. 1 and come into this one off a 28-14 victory over San Francisco. The Vikings forced Green Bay to the limit and just lost 30-27 on a late field goal last Sunday.

New York, 6-6, and Detroit, 3-7-2, meet at Yankee Stadium for the first time since 1962 with nothing except pride at stake.

Sonny Jurgensen takes his Washington, 4-5-3, aerial circus to Pittsburgh, 3-8-1, with an NFL record of 260 completions to his credit and the one-two-three receivers in the league—Charley Taylor, Jerry Smith and Bobby Mitchell—anxious to grab more passes.

Something has to give when San Francisco, 5-7, plays at Atlanta, 1-10-1. The 49ers have lost six straight after a fine start and the Falcons have dropped five in a row since their lone victory over the Vikings.

Bengals Bow To Wyoming, Defeat Colorado State

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—Junior Harry Hall put Wyoming ahead with the first three points and steadily contributed a career high of 35 points to lead the Cowboys to a 115-96 basketball victory over Idaho State Saturday night.

The Cowboys never trailed in dealing the visiting Bengals their first loss in four games. Wyoming is unbeaten in its first four outings.

Ron Boone of I-State was runnerup in scoring with 31 points.

Oregon Staters Win Exhibition

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) —The Oregon State Beavers took accurate aim at the basket Saturday and beat the American Athletes in Action 69-65.

OSU shot .630 from the floor. The Beavers took the lead early in the game and widened it to 18 points near the end of the first half.

St. John's Pins Defeat On USC

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudy Bogad scored 17 points and snared 13 rebounds Saturday night as St. John's University tagged touring Southern California with its first college basketball loss of the season, 63-58.

The Redmen broke out of a 34-34 halftime tie and led by as many as eight points. The lead never dipped below four points in the final 10 ½ minutes of play.

The football rivalry business between Twin Falls and Jerome and Buhl is over now. Jerome announced some time ago that it would not renew a grid contract with the Bruins and Friday Buhl Athletic Director Wes Keeney said his school probably would not play Twin Falls again.

Hovey

The reason for the "probably" is that there is a return contract for next year that will hold until Buhl officially notifies Twin Falls by letter that it wishes to terminate the series.

Twin Falls Athletic Director Merl Eden said it appeared the Bruins will renew a home-and-home commitment with Idaho Falls and add Minico as their other non-conference foe. With Meridian moving into the Southern Idaho Conference, Twin Falls now has only two "warm-up" games.

This also will affect the basketball scheduling among the three schools. Currently Twin Falls plays home and home annually with Buhl and Jerome. With Meridian taking two of those dates, there will have to be another change.

Last week we were honored to have a trophy presented us by the Idaho Wildlife Federation. It is such a good-looking trophy that we want to show it to you, hence the reason for the picture in today's column.

Following the awards banquet in Coeur d' Alene last Saturday night, Frank Cullen, who received the conservationist of the year award, wanted to make it clear that he was not accepting the honor for himself.

Cullen, who was dropped from the fish and game commission earlier, said he accepted on behalf of the many fine sportsmen friends he has in the state and also for the career boys in the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Coeur d' Alene, the natives there told us they called it central Idaho when we remarked on the goodly distance from Twin Falls, turned out about 200 people for the banquet. That's a real effort because this awards banquet was no more exciting than any you've attended. Last year Boise turned out about 90 for the event and it appears the 1968 job may be held in this area what with Jerome's Marshall Everheart ascending to the federation presidency next year.

Meeting Set

Regular meeting of the Southern Idaho Fish and Game Association will be conducted at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Idaho Power Company auditorium.

Hornets Drop North Gem By 50-39

BANCROFT — The Oakley Hornets broke loose in the second period to overtake North Gem and coast to a 50-39 win Saturday night.

North Gem took a 13-10 lead at the end of the first period, but the Hornets jumped to a 31-20 lead at halftime.

Loyola Stuns Fourth-Rated Kansas 83-72

CHICAGO (AP) — Loyola of Chicago completed an evening of upsets Saturday night by routing fourth-ranked Kansas 83-72 following Northwestern's stunning 88-83 triumph over Louisville, the nation's third-ranked team.

Loyola, in winning its third straight game, used a tight defense and a fast break to deal the Big Eight champions their second loss in three games.

The smaller Ramblers, outmanned by three inches per man, blew a 10-point lead in the second half after taking the lead following the first seven minutes of play.

Kansas, led by Jo Jo White, who tied his career high with 25 points, came back from a 60-50 deficit as White hit three baskets in less than a minute.

UCLA Smothers Iowa State 121-80

Kentucky Drops Pennsylvania

Play was stopped 19 times for walking violations and, including them, Kentucky made 19 major errors and Penn 17.

Idaho Sweeps Two Games From Alaska

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) —Little Jimmy Thacker, making 10 of 14 shots from the field and five straight at the free throw line, led Idaho on an 83-62 basketball stroll past the University of Alaska Saturday night.

The win was the Vandals' second straight with the visiting Nanooks, and it evened their season record at 2-2.

Thacker, despite 5-10 stature, also shared rebound honors with Rick Day for Idaho. They took nine apiece.

Guard Milo Griffin again paced Alaska, canning 23 points on eight of 15 from the field and seven of eight from the line.

Blocked Punt Lets Rams Nip Packers 27-24, Keep Coast Title Hopes Alive

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A blocked punt set up Los Angeles' winning touchdown Saturday in an electryfying 27-24 victory over the Green Bay Packers, keeping alive the Rams' hopes in the Coastal Division of the National Football League.

A fumble by the Rams' Dick Bass was recovered by Jim Weatherwax on the Rams' 43 and paved the way for the final Packer touchdown.

The Rams' defense held and on fourth down a punt attempt by Donny Anderson was blocked by Tony Guillory and his teammate, Claude Crabb, scooped up the ball and rambled 20 yards to the Green Bay five.

A sellout crowd of 76,637 jammed into Memorial Coliseum under sunny skies for the nationally televised game, one that produced thrill upon thrill before the final gun.

It was a must victory for Los Angeles and kept the Rams at least one game behind Baltimore. The Colts, barring a miracle, figure to defeat the freshman New Orleans Saints in Baltimore Sunday.

San Diego Is Winner Of Camellia Bowl

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—San Diego State's makeshift pass defense rallied at critical moments Saturday and carried the Aztecs to a 27-6 victory over San Francisco State in the Camellia Bowl.

The Aztec defenders provided the nation's No. 1 small college team with two touchdowns on interceptions of Bob Toledo passes and thwarted a key San Francisco State scoring threat by picking off another Toledo pass.

It was the only time this year the Gators, with a 44-point per game average, had scored fewer than 20 points.

The victory was San Diego's 26th in the last 27 games and the second in a row in the Camellia Bowl.

San Diego played without six staters ruled ineligible because of NCAA regulations on junior college transfers.

Coach Don Coryell was forced to work fresh men into the defensive backfield during the last two weeks to guard against the golden arm of Toledo, who brought San Francisco State 45 touchdowns during the regular season.

Toledo connected on 26 of 54 passing attempts for 238 yards Saturday in the regionally televised contest, but was never able to muster a scoring drive.

The only San Francisco touchdown came with 2 ½ minutes to play of a pass by sub quarterback Al Simontiacchi to flanker Jim Heckendorn, a 15-yarder which Heckendorn caught in the end zone after it was deflected by a San Diego player.

BYU Batters Texas, Stays Undefeated

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young University kept it's season record free of blemish Saturday by beating Texas, 63-50, before a crowd of 9,864 at Provo.

It was the first basketball game Texas U has played in Utah. The Longhorns were within one point of the Cougars at halftime, 28-27, but fell steadily behind in the second period in a defense-dominated contest.

The Cougars won their third consecutive victory on the shooting of senior guard Randy Schouten, who made 24 points. Teammate Kari Lilmo got 17 points and pulled down seven rebounds. Although center Jim Eakins accounted for only nine points, he grabbed 13 rebounds.

It was the third straight loss of the season for the 1-3 Longhorns.

RECEIVES AWARD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski will receive the Sam Rice Award as the Most valuable Player in baseball at the inaugural awards dinner of the Washington chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America, it was announced Saturday.

Wolman Says He Still Owns Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Wolman says he still owns the Philadelphia Eagles and only bankruptcy could part him from the National Football League Club.

Returning from an out-of-town trip Friday night, the 40-year-old builder-sportsman denied a published report that he had sold the Eagles for $14.5 million to a Philadelphia clothing manufacturer.

He admitted, however, that he was negotiating to refinance the team in order to save his crumbling financial empire. He owns 52 per cent of the club and Earl Foreman, Washington attorney, holds 48 per cent.

Wolman has admitted he is in dire financial trouble caused by "poor planning and a tight money market." He has, however, insisted he will work his way out of the bind.

The Philadelphia Bulletin reported Friday that Wolman sold the team to Norman Raab, a local clothing manufacturer.

Wolman answered the report by issuing a statement which said he would never sell the club during his lifetime.

"The harassment and abuse by the vultures who have crawled out of the woodwork to break me so they can have an opportunity to purchase the Philadelphia Eagles have made my fight much more difficult." Wolman said.

"I want it clearly understood that Norman Raab is a perfect gentleman and my reference above does not include Norman or his associates."

Maxwell Hits 36, Filer Tops Wendell

WENDELL—Getting 36 points from Ron Maxwell plus a 12-point outburst in the last three minutes, the Filer Wildcats came from behind Saturday night and dropped the Wendell Trojans 74-60.

Maxwell scored in just about every way possible to keep Filer in the game as Wendell, getting 31 points from Denny Jacobson, kept trying to get away.

Filer managed three ties in the first half and tied it again at 52-all in the opening seconds of the fourth quarter. Wendell pushed back on top at 56-52 but Filer started coming on strong and tied it several times. The Wildcats inched in front 61-60 and Aslett easily beat his man for a driving cripple the next time down the floor. After that Wendell went scoreless while Filer didn't miss.

Vanderbilt Tops North Carolina

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Eight-ranked Vanderbilt, sparked in the second half by the rebounding and fast break playmaking of Bob Warren, defeated fifth ranked North Carolina 89-76 in an intersectional basketball game Saturday night.

All five Vandy starters scored in double figures with Warren, Tom Hagan and Kenny Campbell getting 18 each. Carolina's Larry Miller, who got off only four shots in the first half, finished with 25 points.

North Carolina hit 58.9 per cent of its field goal shots and Vandy 51.6 per cent, but the Commodores sank 19 of 21 foul shots in the second half, while the Tarheels missed 8 of 16 during the same period.

Fight Flares As Utah Nips Utags 102-90

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Utah shook off a stubborn early performance by Utah State to win a 102-90 victory in a fight-punctuated basketball game at Logan Saturday night.

A second half rhubarb lasted five minutes over disputed possession of the ball. The free-for-all cleaned both benches and part of the stands before officials stopped the fisticuffs.

Utah State's hopes of winning waned quickly when star shooter Shaler Halimon fouled out with six minutes remaining in the game. Halimon made 26 points before leaving the game.

The score was tied six times in the first half. Then the Redskins, boosted by the accuracy of Merv Jackson, shot ahead to a 53-40 halftime lead.

Jackson got high point honors. He made 22 points in the first half, and ran his game total to 30 before the buzzer sounded.

Stauffer Ices 58-55 Win For Jerome

By GARY SNELL
Times-News Sports Writer

JEROME — Jim Stauffer hit a free throw with 46 seconds remaining in the game to put the Jerome Tigers out of reach of the American Falls Beavers and give the Tigers a 58-55 win over the Beavers Saturday night. This was Jerome's second win over American Falls this season.

The game was a tight battle all the way, but the Beavers managed a 12-11 lead at the end of the first period.

In the second period the lead changed hands several times, but late in the period American Falls jumped out to a 29-23 lead. Gordon Ford, and Brad Capps each added a field goal and Rich Thompson hit two more to pull the Tigers to within one point at halftime.

Stauffer started the second half off with two quick field goals to give the Tigers a slim lead. American Falls battled back to tie the game several times, but Stauffer pushed through another two-pointer to give Jerome a 45-42 lead going into the final period.

The Tigers were never behind in the fourth period as Jim Scherer pumped through six points to keep Jerome out of trouble.

American Falls fought hard to try and make a comeback, but the scrapping Tigers, with Capps and Ford controlling the boards, were able to pull out the win.

Third Period Flurry Gives Declo Win

DECLO — Gary Mallery hit nine points in the third period and Bruce Darrington added six more to boost the Declo Hornets out in front to stay and take a 66-63 win over the Camas County Mushers.

It was a close game all the way, as both teams used the zone press, but Declo jumped out in front in the third period and fought off the Mushers to pull out the win.

PAT ON THE HEAD for Von Wells by an unidentified Jerome Tiger resulted in a missed shot during action between Twin Falls and Jerome Friday night. Twin Falls took the decision 67-45 for its third straight victory.

Twin Falls Pulls Away In Third Quarter To Beat Jerome 67-45

Erratic Twin Falls pulled its game together in the third quarter to break away from the stubborn Jerome Tigers and went on to claim a 67-45 victory Friday night.

The Bruins blew hot and cold offensively while Jerome, getting fine early scoring from Ron Blake, kept the pressure on until the early moments in the third quarter. Then Twin Falls hit a hot streak and outscored the Tigers 13-3. It was the third straight win for Twin Falls which now faces a pair of Southern Idaho Conference games at Boise and Caldwell next weekend.

Jerome led twice in the game, first on Blake's opening jump shot and later on Scherer's free throw at 3-2. But John Henning and Kent Driscoll shot Twin Falls back into the lead and the Bruins quickly ran up a 14-7 edge.

Then Jerome started playing the best ball, Twin Falls guilty of several turnovers and a lot of shot forcing.

Blake hit three times from the field and Thompson got a free throw to pull Jerome to within two before Bret Staples and Von Wells shot Twin Falls back into a less precarious lead. But over the last four minutes of the half Jerome stayed within four.

Ford opened the second half with a field goal to cut the margin to 25-23 before the Bruins took off. Staples, Wells, Hedrick and Driscoll all scored before Thompson got three for Jerome. Then Wells hit a pair of free throws and junior Mark Miller capped the flurry with two straight jumpers. That extended the lead to 40-26 and over the remainder of the night Twin Falls scored heavily on free throws and off the offensive board.

Quesnell Hits 15, Murtaugh Wins 57-53

BANCROFT — Gary Quesnell scored 15 points in the last half Friday night to lead the Murtaugh Red Devils to a 57-53 win over North Gem.

Murtaugh had the early lead but North Gem fought back to take a 29-25 lead at halftime.

The Red Devils battled to within one point going into the final period, and then scored 15 points in the fourth quarter, with the help of Quesnell, to pull out the win.

North Gem won the preliminary 51-35.

By GARY SNELL
Times-News Sports Writer

EDEN — The Valley Vikings had to fight off a strong come-from-behind struggle by the Filer Wildcats to pull out a 59-58 non - conference win Friday night.

The Wildcats got off to a slow start and fell back six points at the end of the first period.

Don Meyer hit a field goal to start a second quarter, but two quick buckets by Bill Schank brought the Wildcats to within four points.

Valley was able to keep at least a three-point lead throughout the second period until the last minutes.

Filer got hot in the opening minutes of the third period as Chandler, Schank, Wright and Kauffman all pushed through field goals to give the Wildcats a 33-26 lead.

The Vikings, with the help of Ritchie, battled back and took a 34-33 lead with 2:51 left in the third period and were able to keep the slim lead for the rest of the period.

The Wildcats came roaring back as Maxwell hit two field goals, and Schank and Coates each added one to bring Filer within three points, 56-58.

Maxwell added two more points just as the buzzer sounded to make the final score 59-58.

7 Coaching Jobs Are Open At Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Seven football coaching jobs are available at the University of Utah.

The school accepted the resignations of the entire staff Friday, including that of head coach Mike Giddings. He quit under fire.

The parade of resignations began in November when five members of the dissension-ridden Giddings staff put the university on notice they were leaving.

Friday morning the school's athletic board accepted the five resignations.

Hours later, the university announced Giddings was out too, along with his defensive assistant Don Bennett, the only coach to side with Giddings during the inter-staff troubles.

The school issued no formal explanation. Giddings was the only one of the six coaches to comment.

Asked if he had been forced to resign, Giddings said it had been "mutually talked about." He said there were many reasons for his leaving the Western Athletic Conference school, so many he "couldn't put the finger on one or two."

The five assistants who resigned were Jim Hanifan, Tom Lovat, Ken Vierra, Jim Criner and Chuck Banker.

The university did not announce when it would begin interviewing candidates for the head coaching job.

Intercepted Passes And Fumbles Help Hurricanes Defeat Florida 20-13

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Miami's exciting defenders stole five of Larry Rentz's passes, pounced on two fumbles and totally dominated the game as the Hurricanes beat Florida 20-13 in Saturday's college football television show.

Linebacker Ken Corbin carried two of Rentz's passes back 80 and 45 yards for touchdowns. And the offense had to travel only two yards for a third score after little defensive back Jimmy Dye returned a punt 79 yards.

Besides racking up the scores, the defenders broke up several long drives led by the slippery Rentz with interceptions, fumble recoveries and just plain refusal to yield to a rushing attack when the yardage really counted. Not until the last period, with Harmon Wages taking over for Rentz, did the Gators go in on a 37-yard pass from Wages to Guy McTheny.

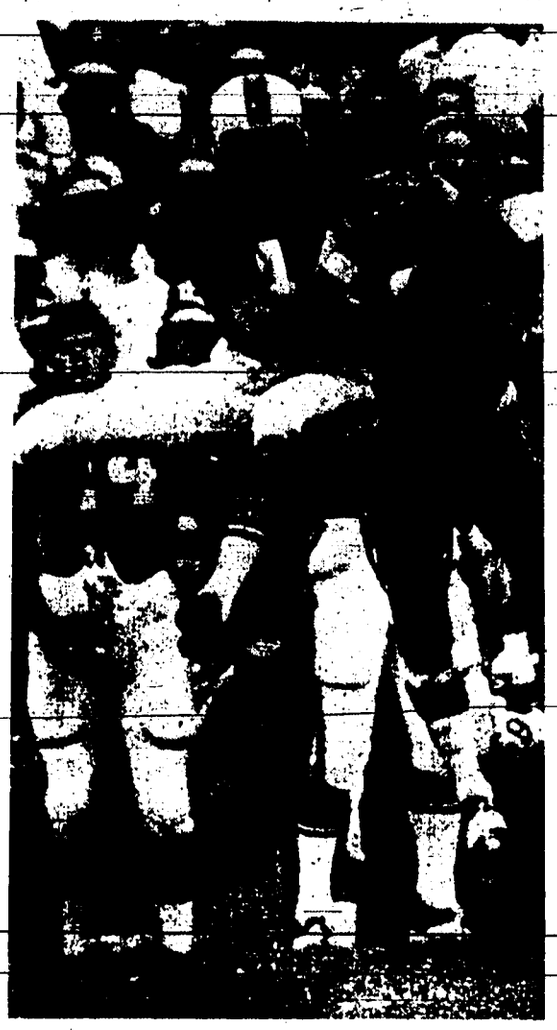

With 1:40 to go, a crucial penalty enabled the Gators to salvage a second touchdown. A fourth down Gator pass was broken up, but an interference penalty gave Florida a first down at the one, from where Larry Smith scored.

Hurricane warning flags flew for Rentz from the first play of the game, when he aimed a long one for his ace receiver, Richard Trapp, and saw Dye leap up to steal it away at midfield.

Later, hit hard as he went for a sideline pass, Trapp went out with broken ribs.

Miami ran only four offensive plays in the first quarter, and not until eight minutes were gone in the second did the Hurricanes get a first down—on a 30-yard run by Vince Opalsky.

Five times, when Miami appeared about to go on the move, charging Gators broke through to dump quarterback David Ollivo for long losses.

CSI Meets Eastern Utah, Boise State

Carrying a 4-1 record — and with than one loss avenged — the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles face their biggest week of the pre-holiday season by traveling to Boise State Tuesday and returning to Twin Falls Saturday night to take on nationally-touted Eastern Utah.

"Our goal before the season started was to be 7-1 or 6-2 at Christmas time," says Coach Sutton, "Really it was to be 8-0 but that would have taken some doing. Losing the opener at Western Wyoming really put the pressure on and the boys will have to play very well to get a split this week and like champions to win both. These are strong ball clubs. Eastern Utah was ranked fourth in the nation last year and returns three starters off that outfit. Boise went to the national tournament and also has three starters back."

CSI has never beaten Boise College, losing twice last year, and this will be its first meeting with Eastern Utah.

Prospects have brightened considerably for the Eagles since their opener. The defense remains good but the rebounding is up and improving as young Tom Bush matures and Ples Vann returns more and more to form.

Also encouraging last week was the scoring punch by Fred Trenkle and Ron Adams.

Each game is very important to the Eagles this year as their won-lost record will be compared with five other junior college independents in the west for four berths in a sub-regional tournament. If CSI can secure one of the spots, the tournament will be held on the local floor and give the Eagles a home-court aid toward regional and possible national eliminations.

Following the two big games of the week, CSI will travel to Ricks of Rexburg Dec. 18, then layoff for the holidays until Jan. 4.

Free Throw Gives Wendell 85-84 Victory

HAGERMAN — Denny Jacobsen scored a free throw with five seconds remaining in the game to give the Wendell Trojans an 85-84 win over the Hagerman Pirates Friday night.

The game was a nip and tuck battle most of the way with Hagerman taking a 63-56 lead at the end of the third period.

As the ball was being passed in from out of bounds, Jacobsen was fouled. The referee called it an intentional foul, which gave Jacobsen two shots. He missed the first one, but the second was good to give the Trojans the win.

Houston Edges Illinois 54-46

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Elvin Hayes scored 17 of his total 25 points in the second half Saturday to lead the second-ranked Houston Cougars to a 54-46 basketball victory over Illinois.

Houston, boosting its record to 4-0, took a 25-18 halftime lead but the Illini closed in 39-37 as rookie Mike Price hit 11 points in a six-minute span.

Then Hayes uncorked seven quick points to head the Cougars to a 47-37 margin with four minutes remaining and Illinois never seriously challenged.

Illinois' tough man-to-man defense forced Houston to make 20 turnovers. The Cougars used a zone defense. Price topped Illinois' scoring with 15 points and Randy Crews added 10. Second high for Houston was Ken Spain with 10 points.

Burley Uses Late Flurry To Nip Oakley

OAKLEY — The Burley Bobcats broke away in the final five minutes of the game Friday night to beat the stubborn Oakley Hornets 67-54 in an intra-Cassia County squabble.

The young, underdog Hornets carried the fight to the favored Bobcats through the first three periods. The game swung entirely to Burley's favor in the late stages after Oakley's rebounders fouled out. Up to that point Oakley held control of the backboards.

Burley's fine guard tandem of LeRoy Fink and Jay Wardle kept Burley in the game as Oakley surprised by leading 27-24 at halftime. With Wardle hitting 11 points, three on fast break cripples, in the third period, Burley managed a 46-44 lead and then cemented the decision with a 21-point fourth quarter.

Murdock Led Carey Edges Leadore 55-54

CAREY — Jim Murdock's five field goal effort sparked a fourth quarter rally Saturday night that carried the Carey Panthers to a 55-54 decision over the Leadore Mustangs.

Leadore, after some early squabbling, took a seven-point halftime lead when Carey managed only six points in the second quarter. The visitors stayed ahead until midway through the final quarter when Carey caught up and iced it with just over a minute to play. Leadore cut the final margin to one point on a last-second shot.

In picking up first-money of $38,325, Quicken Tree paid $7.80, $3.80 and $3. In the role of the favorite of the crowd of 47,391, He's A Smoothie, the second choice ridden by Braulio Baeza, returned $4.60 and $3.20. Pairo, piloted by Sandion Hernandez, paid $4 to show.

Bills Post 44-16 Win Over Patriots

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Cornerback Tom Janik intercepted three passes and linebacker Marth Schottenheimer picked off a pair, all setting up scores as the Buffalo Bills humbled Boston 44-16 Saturday in the Patriots' 1967 American Football League home finale.

Janik returned one interception 38 yards for a touchdown in the second period while Schottenheimer raced 45 yards with an aerial theft in the third quarter.

The Bills, still smarting from a 23-0 loss at the hands of Boston, their first shutout in history in Buffalo earlier this year, stunned the Patriots by grabbing a 28-0 lead in the first half.

Schottenheimer, filling in at middle linebacker for John Tracey, who missed his first game since 1962, set the tempo when he intercepted a Don Trull pass and returned from the Boston 41 to the eight on the game's sixth play.

On the next play, Jack Kemp passed to Keith Lincoln for the first touchdown. The Bills added another first period touchdown, Wray Carlton going over from the five to cap a 57-yard drive.

The Patriots collected a safety as Kemp was dropped in the end zone by Jim Hunt at the outset of the third quarter but Schottenheimer came up with his second interception to kill Boston's final hopes.

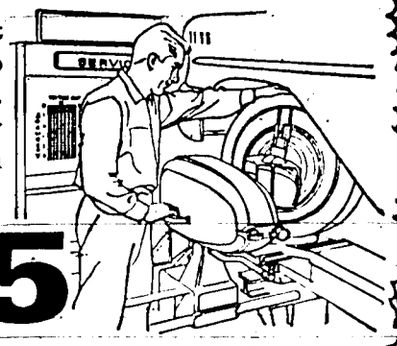

Boston added a touchdown with five seconds remaining as veteran Babe Parilli passed 25 yards to Bobby Leo, former Harvard star, making his pro debut.

HEART PATIENT Louis Washkansky waves as he is wheeled in his bed in an oxygen tent to the radio-therapy room at Groote Schuur Hospital in Cape Town, South Africa, Saturday. He received a second cobalt treatment to further combat the possibility of rejection of his transplanted heart. A doctor at the hospital said routine tests have shown "some signs which may be interpreted as rejection of the heart." He received the heart from a 25-year-old girl killed in a car wreck. Snow Provides Way Of Life On Camas Prairie As Citizens Ready Shovels

By ROBERTA DANIEL
Times-News Correspondent

FAIRFIELD — Fairfield residents remark that they are sure of two things: they will have snow sometime during the winter and the other is it will leave sometime in the spring, usually in April.

Last winter was a mild winter for this section. Snow was on the ground during the winter months but did not reach the usual depths. In the winter of 1955-56 nearly 10 feet of snow fell during the season, according to measurements. Oldtimers recall skiing over the fields without a fence post showing.

As the winter season approaches, residents speculate on what kind of winter is in store. The hair of animals and the bark of trees are topics of discussion. So far no one has come up with a legitimate reason to predict either a mild or hard winter.

This year Fairfield and the prairie was one of the last places to get snow in the Magic Valley. It is often one of the first, as the altitude is over 5,000 feet.

The first of December brought a storm that left about seven inches on Camas Prairie. Merchants were among the first to shovel. Service stations keep a tractor with a blade to clear their areas.

One station was so swamped with residents wanting snow tires mounted that it was afternoon before they found time to plow off the snow around the gas pumps. Business was brisk that day. As usual many are careless and wait until the last minute to prepare for the winter months.

Postmaster Claude Ballard has a mechanical snow blower that is a miniature rotary plow, and tried it out on the walks between the post office and the ASC building. There is speculation as to whether these machines will work when the snow gets deeper and crusty. John Gaskill has a tractor-mounted rotary snow blower that is used to clean out heavy deep snow later on in winter.

To shovel or not to shovel depends on the individual. Many that have lived for years on the prairie have decided to just climb over the snow and keep packing it down all winter and eliminate all the work of shoveling.

Sometimes it resembles climbing the Alps to visit a home where the street snowplow has piled snow five or six feet high and then the wind has caused drifts. The more ambitious residents keep the walks as free of ice and snow as possible.

The state, county and city attempt to keep the streets and roads plowed as much as possible during the winter months. Many residents keep cars out of garages during the winter to save the task of having to dig driveways out after each snowfall and to dig through the huge pile of snow left by the snowplow.

Many who live in town walk to the postoffice and places of business during the winter months, and practically put their vehicles in mothballs. Others drive their cars as usual. With modern snow removal equipment, there are very few times the roads are not open to travel, though caution should be used in driving.

Many of the farmers living in the country rent or own houses in Fairfield where they reside during the winter months. School buses make daily runs to the homes of those who continue to live in the country. Camas Prairie residents have learned to live with snow.

Camas Prairie residents are purchasing snow vehicles for recreation and enjoyment of the winter snow. Many families engage in the sport of skiing. Outsiders flock to the Soldier Mountain Ski resort during the ski season.

Hardy individuals can fish through the ice on Mormon Reservoir as it is open to year-round fishing.

Mail is carried to the rural areas three times a week. Norman Leek uses a pickup truck to make his route. Mrs. Doris Hobdey, who has the rural route out of Corral, has a snow machine she uses when the going gets rough.

Some of the farmers have been taking cattle to lower country during the cold winter months. Others have huge stacks of hay and straw and continue to feed on the prairie. Horses are often used to pull sleds to spread hay on the snow for the cattle to eat. Feeders claim that cattle eat better and do better on dry snow than in mud in the lower country.

Many farmers have constructed heated shops and spend their time overhauling their farm equipment during the winter. Others take off for Arizona or California and the warm sunshine and return in time to start farming in the spring. Some only move over the hill to Gooding for the winter.

The main street of town is colorful during the holidays. Giant red balls have been placed on each light pole along the main street and colored strings of foil and lights are across the main part of town. The reflection of the lighted red bells and the multi-colored strings of light on the white snow makes a beautiful picture after dark.

No one knows what kind of winter this will be, but residents of Camas Prairie are philosophical on the outcome.

Congress Is Set To Vote On Nepotism

By ROBERT T. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is about to pass a delayed-action law prohibiting members from putting relatives on their office payrolls.

The ban against nepotism won't affect the various wives, sons, in-laws and other kin now employed in congressional offices.

But representatives and senators will no longer be able to hire relatives or seek jobs for them elsewhere on the congressional payroll.

An Associated Press survey earlier this year showed more than 50 members of Congress had relatives on their payrolls at the time or had employed them at some period in the previous year.

The antinepotism ban was attached as a rider to a bill to raise postal rates and salaries of federal employes.

The bill appears headed for final congressional passage next week and President Johnson is expected to sign it.

The antinepotism provision applies to the executive and judicial branches of government as well as to Congress.

Officials in any agency with hiring and promoting authority could not put relatives on the agency payroll.

It does not apply to military assignments.

One grass-roots effect will be a ban on hiring of relatives by postmasters, said to be a frequent practice in smaller communities.

That happened in 1961 when Robert F. Kennedy, now a senator, was named attorney general by his brother, President John F. Kennedy.

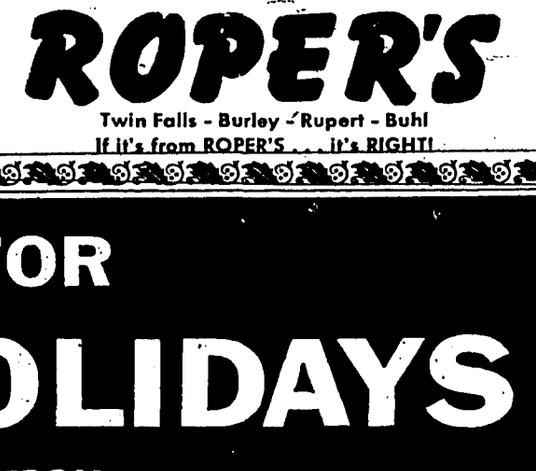

The architects and floor managers of the postal rate-pay bill had no plans for striking at nepotism in the bill.

Congressional leaders have long been cool to such prohibitions.

House Speaker John W. McCormack, commenting on the Associated Press survey, said he did not see that a congressman's putting a relative on his payroll was wrong in itself. The sole question, he said, was whether the person hired was capable and did the job properly.

WHY NOT DECORATE the door knobs and light switches, too? These are just two of the various designs and decorations Mrs. G. L. Smout made for just that, door knobs and light switches.

MRS G. L. SMOUT displays a novelty hardware cloth basket designed to hold Christmas cards. The basket was trimmed with red and gold pixies sitting in a bed of holly leaves. Mrs. Smout designed three baskets like this in various sizes, one to hold candy, one for Christmas cards and another for gaily wrapped yule logs.

ONE OF THE Christmas stockings made by Mrs. G. L. Smout is this elaborately decorated one made especially for a good friend of hers. Hours and hours of hand work go into her Christmas decorations and gifts as she hand sews sequin after sequin, adding just the right embellishment to personalize each item for individual giving.

Imagination And Creativity Are Woman's Talented Gifts

By NORMA HERZINGER

Have you ever wondered where ideas for unique and elaborate decorations and unusual gift items originate? They have to come from somewhere, and recently I met a woman who is responsible for a good many in our area.

This woman, Mrs. G. L. Smout, 808 Alturas Drive, has to be one of the most talented women I have ever met, with an imagination for creativity that will not quit. "Half the fun of having is sharing," she told me on our first meeting. "First you begin with a very patient husband who will overlook the disorganized clutter ranging from diamond dusted grapes to gay santas dancing across a tree skirt, to saucy feathered birds sitting on Santa's mail singing a Merry Christmas greeting, to a long-necked gold and brown giraffe biting down on my favorite recipe card."

I was amazed as Mrs. Smout began to show me the countless articles she makes. Every room in her home was filled with items of every description.

Mrs. Smout is not only talented, she has infinite patience as is evident in everything she makes. Hours and hours of hand work go into her Christmas decorations and gifts as she hand sews sequin after sequin, adding just the right embellishments to personalize each item for individual giving.

Among the items she showed me were hand painted dish towels, some bearing colorful Indians beating tom-toms, some with busy little angels hanging their laundry on a star and perky little birds doing domestic chores and darling little Dutch girls clopping around in their wooden shoes.

She has made aprons for every

Talented Gifts Of Local Woman Are Countless

occasion. Eating spaghetti for example—she has designed a paper napkin-type apron that, if soiled, can be torn off and thrown away, leaving a nice clean napkin underneath for future use. She has in mind making more of these with napkins for every holiday of the year. Aprons that can be turned into sunbonnets are a real favorite of Mrs. Smout's and she even adopted a "mama san" style from the Japanese ladies.

In one room she pointed out a green and gold velvet frog with a witty personality and wearing a wristwatch to tell him the Christmas hour and a black velvet hanging picture featuring richly dressed kings adorned with jewels and fur with their camels that can be spotlighted for added enrichment.

"If you are going to decorate the entire home for the holidays, why not add a little emphasis to the door knobs and light switches," she told me as she displayed the cleverest decorations for just that, door knobs and light switches.

The serenity of white porcelain bisque and old boards made into a humble stable and lighted by Mr. Smout made one of the most elaborately detailed nativity scenes ever. Mrs. Smout has had many, many compliments on this, and she assured me that it isn't what you know, it's who you know. She went ahead to explain, that when cutting heavy wire and things of this nature, which is difficult for a woman to do, she has had her neighbors as well as her husband come to her rescue, lending a helping hand at just the right time.

Novelty hardware cloth baskets caught my eye as they were trimmed with red and gold pixies sitting in a bed of holly leaves. These were made in three different sizes, one to hold candy, one for Christmas cards and another for gaily wrapped yule logs.

One of my favorite centerpieces was red velvet poinsettias surrounding rich gold candles with tiny twinkling lights hidden here and there. Mrs. Smout uses this arrangement on her fireplace mantel and stated it is one of the few items she has made that she will keep for herself as she gives most of her things as gifts to neighbors and friends.

Mrs. Smout recently demonstrated many of her decorative articles for a group of home economists, so they in turn can show other women in Magic Valley how to make them. She gets called on for many, many favors from individuals and organizations for special events and truly loves every minute of preparation, noting if it's worth doing, it's worth doing well.

Janet Badger, Osborn Wed In Utah Temple Ceremony

RUPERT — Janet Badger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest R. Badger, Rupert, and B. Douglas Osborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lorin Osborn, Salt Lake City, were wed in a double ring ceremony Nov. 10 performed by Elder LeGrande Richards of the Council of the Twelve Apostles at the Salt Lake City LDS Temple.

The bride wore a gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with a modified empire waistline and straight floor - length skirt. Lace medallion flowerettes with iridescent sequins and pearls adorned the scooped neckline and front of the gown. Sequins and pearls trimmed the two-tiered elbow-length sleeves. The chapel train, attached at the waist, was trimmed like the gown. Her bouffant elbow-length veil was attached to a small lace cap and she wore tiny gold filigree and pearl earrings, a gift from the bridegroom.

Her bridal bouquet was a pink throated white orchid, surrounded by cascading stephanotis and accented with greenery, gold tricotine and deep pink, floor-length velvet streamers.

The bride's attendants included matron of honor, Mrs. R. B. Hyde, Salt Lake City, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids Mrs. Richard Taylor, Burley, sister of the bride; Mrs. Larry Gittens, Rupert; Lora Ann Osborn, Salt Lake City, sister of the bridegroom, and Hiroko Nanjo, Salt Lake City, roommate of the bride. Flower girl was Danette Taylor, Burley, niece of the bride.

Best man was Jerold Luker and ushers were R. B. Hyde and Ron Winkler, all Salt Lake City.

Gayle Campbell, Salt Lake City, registered the guests. Carrying gifts were Holly Badger and Terri Tuma, cousins of the bride. Mrs. Carl Tolman, Rupert, and Mrs. DeeRay Wheeler, Paul, registered the gifts.

The bride's china, crystal and silver were displayed on a table with a white ruffled, net skirted cloth. The table also featured a bouquet of large pink, paper velour roses, handcrafted by the bridegroom.

Linen ruffle skirted cloths covered the seven circular quartet tables which were each centered with a single large pink, paper velour rose.

Centering the serving area was the circular ruffle skirted bride's table which held the three-tiered wedding cake.

An arrangement of white satin wedding bells topped the wedding cake and white ruffles encircled it. The pink roses decorating it carried out the color scheme.

A white lace cloth covered the refreshments table. Mrs. Lynn Manning, Rupert, served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. R. C. Anderson and Mrs. Grant Fillmore, aunts of the bride; Marilyn Fillmore, cousin of the bride, all Burley; Mrs. John L. Badger, and Mrs. LeRoy Dal Soglio, aunts of the bride, and Mrs. Ray Condie, all Rupert; Mrs. Lyle Craven, Pocatello; Mrs. Joe Lubbers, sister of the bridegroom, Salt Lake City, and Suzanne Belnap, Rupert.

After a short honeymoon trip, the couple resides in Salt Lake City.

The bride was honored with a pre-nuptial grocery shower at the home of Mrs. John Burnside, Rupert, and a miscellaneous shower by her co-workers in Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Fern Porter Honored At Local Dinner Meeting

Members of the Patriarchs Militant and the Ladies Auxiliary met in the Twin Falls Odd Fellows Temple for a covered dish dinner honoring Mrs. Fern Porter, president of the Department Association, LAPM.

The tables were decorated in the president's colors of red, white and blue. White vases held red roses, the president's flower. Blue candles and a centerpiece featuring the cross of St. John surrounded by white roses completed the table decor.

The opening prayer was given by Mrs. Myrtle Bair, with Mrs. Frank Eastman giving the opening thought.

Mrs. Porter and Pauline Howerton, vice president and reviewing officer, were introduced and seated at the right and left of the president.

Chevaliers introduced included Brig. Gen. Garl Ridgeway, department commander; Mr. Arbogast, department commander; Col. Leland Hudson, adjutant Department Council; Leroy Fenton, inside sentry; Department Council; Lt. Col. William Boyd, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Idaho, and E. Hughes, conductor of the Grand Lodge.

Mrs. Margaret Watts, past president of the Rebekah Assembly and past president of the International Association Rebekah Assemblies, was also introduced.

Reports were given that cards have been sent to the ill and bereaved, flowers and food taken to bereaved and funerals attended. Donations have been made to Boys Town and the Tuberculosis Society.

The flag salute was given by Mrs. Bair. The president gave a talk and outlined her program. She requested members continue supporting the World Eye Bank and Visual Research Foundation. Miss Howerton spoke briefly.

The closing thought was given by Mrs. George Easton. The next regular meeting is Jan. 1 at the Twin Falls Odd Fellows Temple, with installation ceremonies as the main feature.

20th Century Club Members Hear "Fables Of Christmas"

The Twentieth Century Club met recently at the Holiday Inn for its annual Christmas Luncheon. Members and guests were charmed by Mrs. Hugh Phillips' presentation of the fables of Christmas, telling in gay poetic verse of the revolt of Santa and the Christmas preparations made in his behalf by his trustworthy elves named simply A B and C.

As is the way with all fables the moral is the reason for its being — and here the Christmas moral, "It is better to give than to receive," again made itself felt as it has through the past generations. Velma Guyer, Miss Twin Falls, added gay tinsel in the form of song, using traditional carols and children's selections. Miss Guyer was accompanied by Mrs. Don Parker. Mrs. P. B. Wilson was program chairman.

Mrs. Earl Johnson, president, welcomed members, and guests were introduced. Mrs. Johnson thanked Mrs. David McClusky, Mrs. Earl Neilsen and Mrs. Robert Soran for the table decorations in the traditional Christmas motif. The invocation was given by Mrs. T. G. Gray.

The club voted to contribute $25 to the fund being raised for the purchase of a sound and film strip for the purpose of educating parents and youth on the illegal use of narcotics throughout the world. It was also decided to again participate in giving a Christmas basket to a needy family.

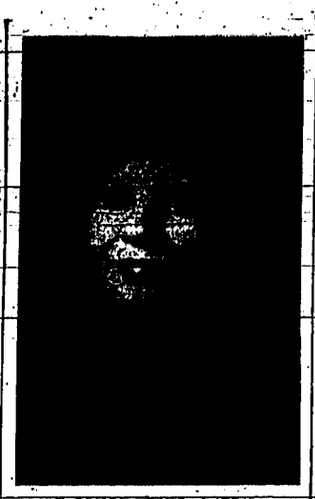

Mrs. E. E. Jellison, welfare chairman, thanked everyone for the generous contributions of canned fruit and vegetables for the Boise Children's Home which will be packed and shipped through the kindness of Warberg's Moving Co. and Garrett Freightlines. A silver offering of $34 will also be sent to help provide a happy Christmas for the children.

Mrs. Peter Link Jr. was appointed to serve on the "Task Force for Education." Mrs. C. H. Jackson reported on sales of the Idaho Note Cards. Anyone desiring these note cards can contact her.

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED

GLENNS FERRY — Mrs. J. D. (Wanda) Edwards was guest of honor at a birthday anniversary party in the Oxbow Cafe, Bliss, when host and hostess were her husband and their daughter, Patricia Edwards.

DONNA SUE BELL

Donna Sue Bell Is Engaged To Stephen Stott

RUPERT — Mr. and Mrs. Theo C. Bell, Rupert, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Donna Sue, to Stephen B. Stott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Stott of Fairfield, Mont.

Miss Bell is a graduate of the College of Southern Idaho and is employed in Missoula, Mont.

Mr. Stott has served an LDS mission to England and is a student at the University of Montana, Missoula.

Literary Guild Members Hear Book Review

Mrs. Brown wore clothing belonging to a great-grandmother, portraying the early day dress, and the program was interrupted by the unexpected entrance of a Shoshone Indian in full array.

Mrs. Vern Harmer introduced a new book of poetry just published, "Beginnings," by Carole Lynn Pearson. The guilded thought, "A Thought for Thanksgiving," was given by Mrs. Larry Christiansen. Mrs. Vernell Skinner gave the author's sketch.

Refreshments, typical of the pioneer days, were served by Mrs. John Coleman and Mrs. Joe Salisbury.

Women Teachers To Meet Dec. 13

GLENNS FERRY — "Have Values Changed in Christmas?" is Mrs. Margaret Bowers' topic for the Dec. 13 program of Nu Chapter, the Delta Kappa Gamma Society, which meets for dinner in the Koffee Kup Cafe in Hammett, at 7 p.m.

The inspirational thought for the evening will be given by Mrs. Elva Guisasola, and the hostess is Mrs. Virginia Anderson.

This will be the first regular meeting for the international honor society of women teachers since October, when two meetings were held. One was in Boise for the visit of the state president, Irene Smith, Idaho Falls, as guests of Alpha Chapter, along with the Omicron and Mu Chapters of Boise teachers.

Crystal Ball Predicts Pink Is Men's Color

By NADEANE WALKER

LONDON, England (AP) — Sir. Mark Palmer, Baronet, looked into his crystal ball and predicted that pink will be the popular shade in menswear next season. Not only pink shirts, but pink hats, rose-colored shoes, maybe pink Arab robes.

Don't laugh. As founder and head of the English Boy model agency, Mark is something of a fashion oracle. He set up shop in Chelsea in March and has since revolutionized the image of the male fashion model.

A staff of 35 English boy models are kept busy at $15 an hour. Their physical structure must be: height, 6 feet tall, weight, about 140 pounds, and chest, not more than 36 inches around.

It's no surprise that the star of the English Boy stable, Bill Chenail, 20, is known as "Master Twiggy." His measurements aren't far from those of the waif-like female model.

When we met Mark Palmer, 24, he was wearing a sky blue flat felt hat, blue striped red blazer, flowered Moroccan vest with striped tie around the waist, and sure enough, pink pants and pink shoes. (Incidentally, Mark, an ex-Oxford man, omits his title from his pink business cards.)

"Painted the shoes myself," he said with pride. The shops have an annoying habit of being one step behind Mark. Just the other day some green shoes appeared in the window of a sedate men's shop; but Mark has already run through the green phase.

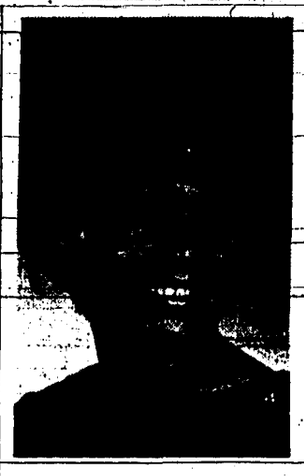

"We're riding the crest of the wave," says Palmer. "The shape of men's bodies had already changed before we pointed it out, but nobody had noticed. Now other more conventional male model agencies are taking this change into consideration. Male models should look like poets."

According to Mark, the new wave in English fashion was started not by Carnaby Street ("badly made stuff, that") but by designer Mary Quant in Chelsea.

"Actually, the originators of fashion are the layabouts and scrubbers who haven't got any money, so they cut things off, make over, invent for themselves." Layabouts is a dirty word in some Britons' vocabularies, and the term "scrubber" for the layabout's feminine equivalent usually starts a hair-pulling, nail-scratching fight when applied to a girl in television's "realism" plays. Coming from Mark, the words sound complimentary.

"Some of our models we got from drama schools, shops and photographers studios," he explains, "but others were just bums. They were just hanging around."

Now some are making over $600 a week modelling, but they don't boast of the money. "We hate money," Kelvin Webb, one of Mark's partners, says flatly. "But sad though it may seem, one must make money to do anything."

LINDA ARLENE BUTTARS

Linda Buttars, Otero Disclose Wedding Date

Mrs. Arlene Buttars, Twin Falls, announces the engagement of her daughter, Linda Arlene, to Miguel P. Otero, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Otero, Forestville, Md.

Miss Buttars is a 1965 graduate of Twin Falls High School and is employed in the office of the Arizona State Attorney General, Phoenix.

Mr. Otero is employed by the Metropolitan Police Department, Washington, D.C.

A Dec. 22 wedding is planned at the LDS Church on Maurice Street North.

Leo McFarland Gives Program For Sorority

The November business meeting of Alpha Nu Chapter, Epsilon Alpha, was held at the home of Mrs. Leo McFarland. Mr. McFarland gave the program which consisted of an informal lecture on his work. He showed the group some of the intricacies of cash register workings and demonstrated solving a mathematical problem using a computer.

Mrs. Jay Moyle reported on the sorority's philanthropic project, giving birthday parties at Hazel Del Manor and Sky View Manor. Ms. Moyle also reported that the Red Cross First Aid Course will be starting in January and urged members to attend.

Mrs. Dwaine Clark and Mrs. Robert Ellis are in charge of the next birthday party at the nursing homes.

Mrs. John Thiebert was the co-hostess. A secret sister Christmas gift exchange was held.

This month's social meeting will be a Christmas party for members and husbands Saturday at the home of Mrs. Darwin Boyle, followed by dinner at Kay's Supper Club.

Betty Tolman, Bateman Recite Nuptial Vows

Betty Tolman, daughter of Emerson Tolman, Twin Falls, and Larry Bateman, son of Mr. and Mrs. LaVal Bateman, Gooding, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Delmar M. Talley Oct. 28 at the Buhl First Christian Church.

The church was decorated with baskets of gladioli, large chrysanthemums and oak leaves in shades of yellow, gold and bronze and an arch of lighted gold tapers. The pews were decorated with gold bows, chrysanthemums, and fall colored oak leaves.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of lace with lily point sleeves and a sweeping chapel train. Her veil of illusion was held with a satin tiara adorned with seed pearls.

Mrs. Gene Quigley, Twin Falls, was the matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. David Jones, cousin of the bride; Donna Bateman, Gooding, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Tommy Smith, Twin Falls.

Randy Bateman and Ronald Bateman, brothers of the bridegroom, were candlelighters.

Guests were registered by Sandy Southworth. Gifts were arranged by Connie Kirby and Mrs. Robert Tolman. Tonette Slater and Billie Slater were the giftbearers.

The reception was held in the church reception hall, with the bride's table centered with the traditional tiered cake decorated with fall colors. The table was decorated with arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums and white tapers, with the table draped with Sprengeri fern caught with gold yellow bows. The gift table was accented with bronze and yellow pompon chrysanthemums.

The cake was served by Mrs. Walcott and the punch and coffee by Lenore Bateman and Barbara Bateman.

Holiday Breads Demonstrated For Area Group

RICHFIELD—Holiday breads were demonstrated for members of the Richfield Woman's Club at a Christmas party recently at the home of Mrs. Frank Cliff. Mrs. Helen Walker, Idaho Power representative, gave the program and served the holiday food she had cooked.

Mrs. Lester Molt was given a vote of appreciation for sending a gift package to some serviceman in Vietnam in the name of the Woman's Club.

Christmas cards were signed by members for mailing to absent members and friends in other towns.

Mrs. Carl Paulson, club president, named Mrs. Molt, Mrs. Frank Hubert and Mrs. Cliff to a committee to make popcorn balls for community treat sacks.

Mrs. Jodey Parker was welcomed as a new member.

Pollyanna and friendship gifts were exchanged with Lonnie Cliff and Tracy Hubert acting as giftbearers. Mrs. Walker was presented a club gift.

James Gossett Shows Slides

WENDELL — James Gossett, Gooding, presented colored slides and told his own opinion on the world crisis which was formulated on his recent world tour, when members of the Mariners Club met at the United Presbyterian Church.

Maurice Scheel presided for the business meeting and introduced the guest speaker.

Contribution Slated By Area WSCS Members

HANSEN — Members of the Hansen Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service voted to contribute money to the general society to help pay for shipping soap overseas, and to other needy areas.

Mrs. Hugh Sanderson presided in the absence of the president and vice president at the home of Mrs. Austin Moore.

Members were reminded that clothing and soap will be taken to the Episcopal Church, Twin Falls, Monday.

The next circle meeting is Jan. 3 at the home of Mrs. Sanderson.

Mrs. Thomas Steelsmith was program chairman. She gave the "Legend of the Black Madonna," by Margaret T. Applegarth, as the Christmas program feature. She also read the Christmas story of the Gospel according to Luke, and a short humorous article, Mark Twain's "Christmas Wish."

Fancy Array Of Cookies

A fanciful array of Christmas cookies is a most delicious way of featuring California raisins. In one, chop the raisins finely into mini or micro bits and put in the dough. In the other, show both dark and golden seedless raisins as glistening holiday jewels to prettily adorn their rich cooky bases.

Put your cooky press to work in shaping the ruffled borders to frame the glistening centers of the jewel cookies. Simply combine raisins and jelly for their easy fillings.

Press out the dough for the Viennese cookies into canes, wreaths or trees. The raisins must be finely chopped to go through the pastry tube. Be sure to use a large star tip. Follow our easy blender method for chopping them instantly.

These artistic raisin cookies are designed to arrange festively on a tray for holiday guests. Or, hang them whimsically on a fragrant green bough to decorate a buffet supper table. Gaily packed and wrapped, they make a wonderful holiday gift.

RAISINS ARE the main ingredient in these delightful holiday cookies. These artistic raisin cookies are designed to arrange festively on a tray for holiday guests. Gaily packed and wrapped, they make a wonderful holiday gift.

RAISIN JEWEL COOKIES

¾ cup butter
½ cup sugar
2 egg yolks
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon almond extract
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups sifted flour
1 cup California golden seedless raisins
⅓ cup apple jelly

Beat together butter, sugar, egg yolks, flavorings and salt. Add flour, mixing well. Chill dough about one-half hour. Combine raisins and jelly. Roll half of dough on lightly floured board to about one-eighth inch thickness. Cut into 18 (3-inch) rounds. Place on lightly greased baking sheet. Put remaining half of dough into cooky press fitted with star plate. Pipe border of dough around edges of rounds and a strip across centers. Fill with raisin jelly mixture.

Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about eight to 10 minutes until lightly browned. Cool on racks. Makes one and one-half dozen (3-inch) cookies.

Variation: Roll one half of dough as above and cut into 30 (2-inch) rounds. Pipe remaining dough through cooky press around edges of rounds. Fill centers with one cup California dark seedless raisins mixed with one-third cup currant jelly. Makes 30 (2-inch) cookies.

VIENNESE RAISIN COOKIES

½ cup butter
1 cup sifted powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
4 sieved hard cooked egg yolks
1 cup finely chopped California seedless raisins
1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
Decorators' frosting

Beat together butter, sugar, vanilla, lemon juice and nutmeg until fluffy. Beat in finely sieved egg yolks and raisins. Stir in flour resifted with baking powder and salt. Turn dough into large pastry bag fitted with large No. 8 star tip. Press dough out onto lightly greased baking sheet into canes, wreaths or tree shapes. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees, until lightly browned about 20 minutes. Remove to rack to cool. Decorate with frosting piped through decorating tube and raisins. Makes one and one-half dozen cookies.

Raisins must be very finely chopped to go through star tip. The easiest method is to freeze raisins first and then chop in blender. Put one-half cup frozen raisins in blender and whir at high speed for two seconds. Remove chopped raisins from blender. Repeat.

Decorators' Frosting: Blend one egg white with one and one-half cups sifted powdered sugar. Makes about one cup frosting.

COLOR ADDED

To make colored sugar for Thanksgiving and Christmas sweets, add a drop or two of food coloring to a jar and then pour in half a cup of granulated sugar. Cover the jar securely and shake vigorously.

Annual Holiday Dinner, Gift Exchange Held

Mrs. Paul Carlson gave the prayer. The table decorations were made by Mrs. Ivan Waring and Mrs. Charles Mattice. Mrs. Ted Soper donated the Christmas tree and decorated it.

Members who planned the dinner and sent out cards were Mrs. Virgil Malone, Mrs. Soper and Mrs. Waring.

Those responsible for the gifts were Mrs. George Lonf, Mrs. Jack Atkinson and Mrs. Robert Hansing.

"Holiday Beauty" Is Theme Of T. F. Garden Club Meet

Mrs. Dale E. Patterson, reviewing the Holly Handbook by Hume, published by the American Horticultural Society, said there are three main types of holly: Oriental, American and English, with many varieties in each group. Mrs. Patterson related various legends connected with holly and gave cultural tips. Holly requires an acid soil, humidity and protection from the winter sun. It was noted that holly grows in Twin Falls.

Mrs. R. C. Lawson spoke on ways to decorate doorways. She listed wreaths, swags or garlands, stained glass effects with light behind, huge greeting card and tiered baskets using wide ribbon.

Other decorative effects are use of cardboard cores painted to resemble candy canes or candles and placed at either side of door. Topiary tree effects and old fashioned sleigh bells or camel bells are additional ideas considered by Mrs. Lawson.

Mrs. S. W. Smith, president, conducted the business meeting. The collect was read by Mrs. C. B. Requa. Mrs. Sam Porter, acting secretary, gave the secretary's report.

A letter from Mrs. William V. Huffman, Moscow, state world gardening chairman, Idaho State Federation of Garden Clubs, was read by Mrs. Lawson.

The club voted to send a contribution to be given to Marianna Carillo, an Ecuador exchange student enrolled at the University of Idaho.

The club decided to donate Christmas decorations to the YM-YWCA annual decorating project. Decorated candles, made by Mrs. Ray Fike, were taken to the Hazel Del Manor by Mrs. T. C. Hartwell.

A report was given on the club's recent Christmas show and it was announced that the club won first place in the invitation class at the Leaf and Petal Club's Christmas show in Jerome.

Mrs. J. C. Reynolds, Mrs. Russell Miller and Mrs. Harry Wilcox served refreshments. Mrs. Lawson and Mrs. Porter poured. A centerpiece of yew and red painted yarrow and red candles in copper candelabra was arranged by Mrs. Porter.

The next meeting is Jan. 3 at the YM-YWCA building. Mrs. Porter will report on forcing cut branches of shrubs and Mrs. T. W. Hicks will review her European trip.

KIMBERLY — LouAnn Callen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Callen, and John Durham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Durham, Twin Falls, were united in marriage in rites Nov. 11 at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jack Kennedy, Castleford.

The Callen home was decorated with arrangements of fall flowers, with a buffet table centered with a pale pink cake.

Guests were greeted by the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Durham, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Callen and Mrs. Heninger.

Refreshments were served throughout the afternoon from a table decorated with arrangements of fall fruits. Coffee and punch were poured by Deana Callen and Kelly Callen, Jerome, Elizabeth Callen, Linda Callen, Kathy Heninger and Phillip Heninger.

Gifts were arranged by Jennifer Callen and Polly Heninger.

Six Women In Idaho Hold State Manicurist Licenses

BOISE—There are only six women who hold Idaho manicurist licenses issued by the Occupational License Bureau of the Department of Law Enforcement, but the Gem state's women face no problems when wanting their nails tended to.

M. D. Gregersen, bureau director, points out milady can have her nails trimmed, tinted and tapered in any licensed beauty salon, or beauty parlor, as long as the cuticle cutter holds a valid cosmetician's license.

A licensed cosmetician, Mr. Gregersen says, can perform all the "operations" necessary to make our women beautiful, including the shaping of finger nails.

The licensed manicurist, however, is limited in her profression and can operate only on the nails. Her license allows her to practice her profession in a beauty salon, not a barbershop, hotel or even in her home.

"Nails she can cut and color," Gregersen says, "but trimming, cutting and styling of hair, shampooing and applying facial packs is off limits."

Idaho has an ample number of cosmeticians and cosmetology shops.

Bureau records for 1967 show 4,767 hold cosmetician licenses and there are 832 licensed beauty salons. Several of the cosmetician licenses are held by males. Bureau records show the number of males entering the cosmetology field is on the increase annually.

A comparison of the number of licenses issued cosmeticians and beauty salons in 1967 and 1966 indicates some women must be relying on do-it-yourself remedies at home.

In 1966, the bureau issued 4,845 licenses to cosmeticians and 915 licenses to cosmetology shops. And, in 1966, there was one more licensed manicurist.

And for those who aspire to earn a manicurist or cosmetician license, it should be pointed out that in 1966 there were 35 licensed cosmetology schools in the state and five out-of-state schools with Idaho licenses.

Romantic Fashions Are Fun, But Are They Practical

NEW YORK (AP) — It's always fun, but is it practical to be romantic — in your fashion, that is?

It is an irony of sorts that styles from the days of yore were so much more romantic than some of the no-nonsense fashions created for the active women of today. And yet romance itself was merely a dalliance to be ignored when the practical matters of matching mates were concerned.

Now arranged marriages are out of style and romance is in. Women look for the true love that will give them happiness ever after, or at least until that love dims and another glows. Ideally, that lady with a gleam in her eye is softly feminine in ruffles, pleats and bows. The furbelows are fun in an age when there is plenty of cheap domestic help to do the slaving over a steamy iron, pressing in pleats and ruffing up ruffles. But are these things practical, however romantic, when it is necessary to be one's own wardrobe mistress? No wonder modern fashion was so slow at adapting some of the prettiest clothes of the past.

Ah, but this story has a happy ending. The textile industry, the knight in shining armor in this romantic tale, has come to rescue the contemporary damsel in distress. It has come up with wispy materials that are eye-catching (at least to the male), and sensuous to touch and luxurious to wear.

This impractical-looking romantic look for daytime has carried through to bedtime. Goodness knows a woman who has already fetched her man with her romantically fetching clothes does not wish to lapse disillusioningly into practical sleeping slacks or flannel sacks.

Too, the girl without a husband enjoys the filmy, yes even flimsy female accoutrements for la chambre.

MR. AND MRS. ALLEN PAUL DEBO

Linda Ivie, Allen Debo Say Vows In Catholic Ceremony

HAILEY — Linda Marie Ivie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ivie, Hailey, and Allen Paul Debo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Debo, Lorain, Ohio, were married in rites Nov. 25 in St. Charles Catholic Church.

The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. Francis DeNardis before a large group of friends and family. The church was decorated with arrangements of white chrysanthemums and blue eucalyptus. Aisle markers were of white satin.

Mrs. Charles Harris was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Joe Harris, who played the processional and recessional selections and background music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace over a white satin sheath. It featured a square, scalloped neckline and wrist - length sleeves. Fitted at a high waistline, the skirt fell in soft lines and was accented with two bands of insertion near the hemline. The chapel-length lace train was attached at the shoulders with a soft self-bow.

Mary Debo, Lorain, Ohio, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Ron Beavers, Spokane, was best man.

Other attendants were Elaine Ivie and Candy Ivie, sisters of the bride, who were bridesmaid and flower girl respectively.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception was held at St. Charles Parish Hall. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with the two-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Starburst pompons and blue eucaluptus made up the floral decorations.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sheffield presided at the guest book. Gifts were received and arranged by Mrs. Glen Stelma, aunt of the bride, Mrs. George Saijo and Mrs. Hazel Barber.

Mrs. Sam Guisasola, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake and Mrs. Don Ivie poured punch.

The couple will reside in Spokane.

The new Mrs. Debo is employed at a legal secretary.

Mr. Debo has an associate degree in engineering from American Techinical Institute and is in the Air Force, stationed at Fairchild Air Force Base.

Special guests included the bridegroom's parents; the bride's grandparents, Mrs. Pearl Guisasola, Bellevue and Rupert, and Mr. and Mrs. James Ivie, Bellevue.

Cards were played after the meal and at pinochle Mrs. Frances Friestad and John McKenzie won high prizes, with Mrs. John Jensen and Chester Cutler receiving the consolations.

The meal was planned by Mrs. Marie Kibbie, Mrs. Virginia Ivie, Mrs. Mary Decker and Mrs. Pearl Stapleton. Mrs. Sue Higbe, Mrs. Aeele Nicholsen, Mrs. Dorothy Cutler and Mrs. Jensen were in charge of table settings, and Mrs. Friestad, Mrs. Muriel Divine and Mrs. Nicholsen, decorations. Mrs. Lois McCann made the card tallies.

Mrs. Robert Stepp, leader, showed the members various handicrafts to make for gifts at the next meeting to be held at her home.

Refreshments, furnished by Nala Spencer and Julie Shaauerman, were served and the group played games. Carolyn Metcalf and Jill Burnett are to furnish refreshments at the next meeting Dec. 14.

Children Are Unfortunate Victims Of Many Divorces

By LORNA CARROLL
St. Petersburg Times

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Death, divorce, desertion form the malevolent triad that splits a family asunder. Its victims are the children. The complex problem of making their lives whole again rests with the remaining parent.

A woman left alone has an especially difficult problem if she must work. What will happen to her children? Who will give them the tender loving care they have known? Who will see they are properly nourished, properly clothed, properly supervised? How can she, a working mother, provide enough income for such care?

Each year as divorces soar, the number of working mothers increases. Statistics show there are between 400,000 and 450,000 divorces annually, and two thirds of them involve a child or children in the family.

A January 1967, report on labor reveals that 26 million women are working either through necessity or choice. Only 144,000 of them earn $10,000 or more.

"If a mother must go to work, she may be faced with a feeling of guilt about leaving her children," says Wesley Jenkins, executive director of the Family and Children's Service, St. Petersburg.

"But she should do so with a clear conscience and make the best plans she can for her children during her working hours. She should keep in touch with the person in charge of her youngsters so she may know what goes on in her absence and be available in case of emergency.

"She should spend her free time with her children whenever possible. The companionship given grudgingly or out of a guilty conscience is unsatisfying to both her and the children. It is not the quantity but the quality of the companionship that counts."

Jenkins states that consistency in a youngster's care is of utmost importance. A child sometimes is subjected to a succession of baby-sitters, some of whom may be adequate and others grossly inadequate.

"There is probably nothing more confusing to a child than to be disciplined by his mother from 5:30 at night until his bedtime and on Saturdays and Sundays, then to be given to a mother substitue on Monday morning who treats him totally different.

"Just about the time he adjusts himself and is able to relate to her, he is again shifted to another place where he spends a week, and a week later is changed again. The constant shifting and changing of these children make it difficult for them to form meaningful relationships. This may carry through adulthood, even into marriage."

The second unfortunate thing that happens to children is the inadequacy of the care so many get, says Jenkins. "A typical pattern we frequently see is the child attending a most inadequate day care center, where the help is untrained and unconscious of the needs of small children. What is wanted is for the child to be conforming and quiet, causing a minimum of trouble.

"On the other hand, there are many day care centers where children are getting the best of training and excellent teaching, and are developing into well adjusted, happy youngsters.

"We would be mistaken if we thought all substitute plans for children are poor ones. Many mothers are able to make excellent arrangements for their children. They leave them with the friend next door who wants to make some money but cannot leave her children. The children of both mothers are accustomed to playing together and the arrangement is mutually advantageous.

Turkey Newburg in Patty Shells

1 package frozen patty shells
1 cup sliced mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon flour
2 cups diced cooked turkey
½ teaspoon ground thyme
3 egg yolks
1 cup light cream
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
½ teaspoon salt
Sprinkle of nutmeg

Prepare patty shells according to directions on package. Saute mushrooms in butter for five minutes. Stir in flour and cook one minute. Add turkey and thyme and cook two minutes longer.

In top of double boiler, beat egg yolk slightly. Add cream and seasoning. Stir to mix well. Place over hot, not boiling, water and cook, stirring constantly, until just thickened. Add mushrooms and turkey mixture. Continue to stir and cook until well blended and thickened to consistency of heavy cream. Serve at once in hot patty shells.

85 Per Cent Of Temporary Work Done By Housewives

NEW YORK (AP) — Housewives, who have cornered 85 per cent of the temporary work in the United States, have proved themselves more desirable than single women in the field.

That's what Richard Essey, president of the Association of Temporary Personnel Contractors, says.

"The organizational ability which the housewife develops in running a household and raising children is a very practical quality which enables her to adjust rapidly to new surroundings and take new responsibilities in her stride. She is also more apt to be a neat housekeeper at her desk.

"If more housewives knew this, they would have greater confidence in seeking their first temporary job," says Essey.

"Confidence is what they primarily need. And confidence is often based on knowing how to best present themselves—and also on knowing a bit about the temporary job market of 1967."

This year the temporary personnel industry in the United States will pass the $1 billion mark. It has experienced a 700 per cent increase in the last eight years, according to the Stanford Research Institute. During this period companies expanded and diversified, and many new kinds of jobs opened.

The housewife seeking a temporary job must first decide whether she primarily wants quick money, a glamor job or a job in a specific field of interest.

If it's to be quick money, she must appraise her skills. Most personnel contractors test stenographers and typists before sending them out. Many also give free brush-up courses in typing, short-hand, and comptometer. Some offer the complete course free from the beginning. To decide whether or not this is worth her while, the housewife must balance the comparative pay in her area against the time to be spent training.

If she has a special interest—whether it be fashion, fabrics, music, theater, public service—she might try to get a job in this field. First she should make a list of all the education and work she has done, including voluntary work and hobbies.

In approaching a temporary personnel contractor, she should be specific about the field in which she wants to work. If he cannot place her, she should not give up, for chances are another placement office can.

Often a housewife's primary problem is one of hours. She can only work afternoons or wants to be there when the children get home from school. Personnel contractors can often place such women, because businesses that are growing rapidly are highly adaptable.

"Appearance is also important, especially considering today's fashions," says Essey. "Brightly colored stockings, dresses well above the knees, and mod clothes may be acceptable once you have proved your efficiency. But the woman who dresses conservatively is likely to make her appearance count for more when it comes to job hunting."

While the most common job categories are open to secretaries, typists, clericals, bookkeepers, receptionists, switchboard operators, key punchers, comptometrists and calculators, varied and special assignments have been increasing rapidly as industry expands into new areas.

Among the facts which a woman should know about temporary assignments:

Temporary job contractors never charge a fee to the employe.

The only deductions they make are the compulsory ones, such as income tax, social security, and unemployment compensation.

Black Stockings Make Way Into Fashion Field

Enter the Brave Black Leg, daring to compete with the white and neon bright stockings that women from coast to coast have adopted this year.

The black stocking made its debut with the showing of fall clothes in this country. Next it became a footnote endorsed by top Paris couturiers in their fall collections. Now, highly fashionable women are beginning to wear it.

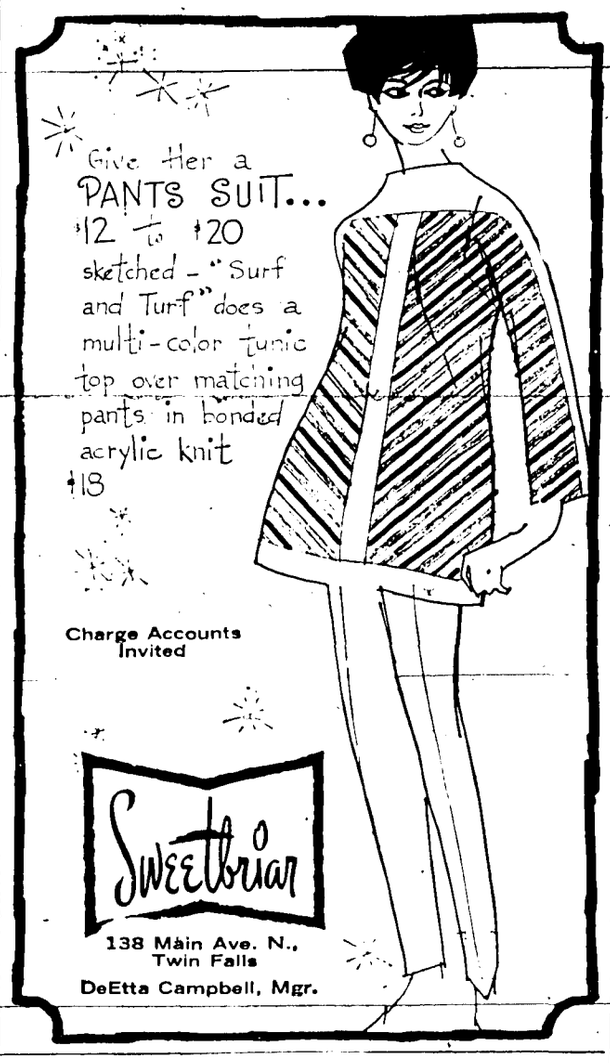

This new look that will sweep the country before long, enthuses the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, and it will be worn right into the warm days of spring.

How black is black? Well, even in the dark of night some light comes through—and that is how black, black stockings are. They have the relief of texture, shine, open fishnet, all-over sheer, decoration or geometric patterns on sheer opaques.

What is worn with the black stocking is as important as the stocking itself. Shoes play a major part. Black, shiny shoes are the rule for daywear. Patent leather is for year-round wear now and is a must to accompany the black leg. Of course, these shoes should be as modern as the black stockings—blunt or rounded toes set on a broad low-to-medium heel.

For evening, the black stocking is exciting and naughty, often sheer and glittery, to be worn with silk, satin, velvet, etc. evening shoes, providing they are black and very up-to-date in style.

What to wear with your new leg look? Black stockings and shoes can complee a total head-to-toe black or mostly black look, such as accessories for a black and white glen plaid, striped or tweed outfit.

Real Science Involved In Trimming Christmas Tree

Trim your Christmas tree the way a woman dresses.

Tall women use a drape effect and horizontal lines. Short women use vertical motif. Thus, if you have a tall tree, trim crosswise. If your tree is on the short side, trim up and down.

The authority for how to trim trees is a real authority. He is a Chicagoan named Albert V. Sadacca, and with 50 years of experience behind him he is acknowledged to be the dean of the decorative Christmas tree light industry. He and his brothers produced the first electric tree light set back in 1917. These first lights were painted bulbs with wires attached to a home-made battery, because electricity for the home was a luxury at that time.

"Trimming a Christmas tree is a real science," he says, "but it's simple science and anyone can master it if they follow a few simple and basic instructions."

According to Sadacca, trimming should start from the top of the tree and proceed downwards. First of all, though, attach the Christmas lights to the tree and test them.

Next, drape tinsel garlands, strung popcorn and strands of beads, or similar festoons. Following this, attach glass ornaments, snow balls, icicles, candy canes, figures or other decorations.

Complete the trimming job with silver tinsel or foil to accentuate brilliance and color of lights.

"The size of the tree should determine the number of miniature lights needed," he indicates. As president of World-Wide Enterprises, the world's largest importer and manufacturer of decorative tree ornaments, he continually emphasizes the new mini-lights, as the larger bulbs are decreasing in popularity.

"If you are using a four-foot tree, you will need 100 mini-lights for maximum illumination. On a five-foot tree, use 150 lights. A six-foot tree uses 250 lights. A seven-foot tree needs 300 lights, and an eight-footer requires 400 lights.

Sadacca also advises the trimmer to check the lights to determine if they are permanent wired push-in or screw-base types.

"This is important. It can make the difference between permanently damaging the socket or maintaining it for replacement bulbs. Push-in type lamps should be replaced by pulling the defective bulb straight out. Do not twist it. The new bulb should merely be pushed in. Another important point to remember is that in the event you do not plan to replace the burned-out bulb immediately, don't remove the bulb. A burned-out bulb must remain in the socket to complete the circuit. The only exception is for a broken lamp. Broken lamps do not make contact. These should be replaced immediately.

"Equally as important is to replace the bulbs if several are burned out. If this isn't done, burned-out bulbs left in place may cause the other bulbs to heat up and melt the reflectors."

Dear Abby

By AABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am so upset I hardly know how to start this letter. While straightening up my teen-aged daughter's room, I came across a letter from a friend of hers in another state. I read it, partly out of curiosity, and partly to determine if it was something which could be discarded.

I was horrified at the filthy language, and also at the girl's delight in having found a theater which shows only dirty movies!

This letter also described family possessions and "vacations," but Abby, I know the girl's parents and correspond with them, and this girl was writing lies.

What should I do? Now I suspect my daughter must be responding to these letters in equally filthy language, and since this girl is my daughter's best friend, I must assume that my daughter's tastes run toward dirty movies, too.

Don't these kids know that filling their minds and mouths with garbage will do them no good?

Should I write to this girl's mother and tell her to talk to her daughter? Should I talk with my daughter and tell her what I've learned? Or by age 15, are we too late to shape our children's morals?

A FAILURE

DEAR "FAILURE": If you have done your best to shape your daughter's morals, you need not consider yourself a "failure." Some teen-agers feel "big" and grown-up using gutter language, exaggerating and even lying a little for effect, but that doesn't mean they are "no good." If they have been properly brought up (and even the best reared children have gone thru this stage) they will outgrow it.

At the appropriate time, subtly warn your daughter that mucking around in the lower registers of speech and entertainment can be habit forming. In the meantime, keep the avenues of communication open between you and your daughter, and don't shake her confidence in you by letting her know that you were snooping. You were, you know.

DEAR ABBY: This isn't my problem, it's my sorority sister's. She really a swell kid, and she's not dumb or anything like that, but she doesn't come over very strong. She's not bad looking, but this poor kid can't seem to get any dates on her own. We've fixed her up with several sharp guys, but they never ask her out again because she's so quiet. They all say it's like pulling teeth to get a word out of her. Any suggestions?

A. E. PHI

DEAR A. E. PHI: Yes. Get her a date with a dental student.

DEAR ABBY: We have a real problem in our neighborhood. Every morning at 3 our neighbor woman wakes up the entire neighborhood. She is a nurse and has to be at work at 4, so she leaves her house at 3. When she backs out of her garage she honks her horn. Then her husband, who is a doctor, waves to her from the window, she honks again, waves back to him and drives off.

This is terribly annoying to the neighbors, Abby, but they are such lovely people we hate to mention it. If you print this, perhaps they will take the hint. I know they read your column.

WIDE AWAKE AT 3 A.M.

DEAR WIDE: All right. I've done my part. If you get any more honking from Florence nightingale, call her husband and ask him to give you something for your nerves.

CONFIDENTIAL to Exhausted Mother in Portland: Perhaps the reason your baby is spoiled is because you can't spank two grandmothers.

Data Confirms Illness Theory

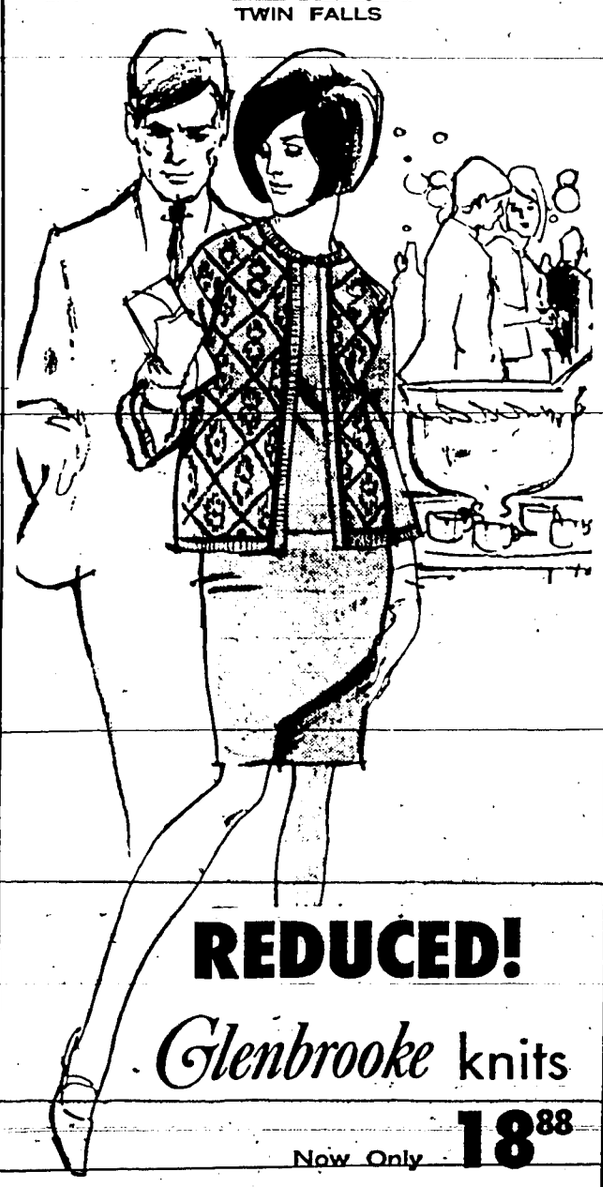

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The woman who fights with her husband runs some risk of developing rheumatoid arthritis, and the husband is more apt to develop peptic ulcer.

This possibility emerged in national studies directed by Dr. Sidney Cobb of The University of Michigan who discussed it at an American Public Health Association meeting here.

"The data confirm the theory that marital hostility is the key variable, and suggest that this hostility contributes to rheumatoid arthritis in the wife via resentment and depression and to the peptic ulcer in the husband via unmet needs for emotional support," he reported.

Western Talent Scheduled For Oriental Show

HONG KONG (AP) — The Hong Kong fashion industry, for many years based on diligent imitation, hopes to break into the world of original design.

To that end, and in an effort to gain the support of a world market for the creations of local designers, the Federation of Hong Kong Industries will hold its first local Festival of Fashions Oct. 30 to Nov. 3.

To bring some western ingenuity to the festival, the federation has called on Michael Whittaker, producer of fashion shows for the British royal family, to organize the week's events. It has also brought in a French designer, Chloe de Bruneton, to design many of the garments that will be displayed.

So Hong Kong, which has to import most of the materials used in the clothing industry also has had to import Western talent to help create the designs that will sell in the West—leaving the colony, in the minds of many, right where it started.

Milton E. Petrick, chairman of the festival's organization committee, says there is little hope for original Hong Kong designs unless factories and fashion houses break out of the insulation that has relegated them to copying. He advocates importing foreign designers and sending local designers to foreign fashion capitals to gain a better consciousness of international fashion demand.

"What you get here that they can't get in the United States or Europe, is the detailed handwork. They can't afford to put that into their garments. We can," states Petrick.

American Girls Still Rank First After European Trip

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

What happens when an average schoolboy goes to Europe?

For one thing, he finds that American girls are about the best looking in the world. So says Robert McCann, 16, who has just returned from an economy tour accompanied by a boy friend.

"As it turned out, the American girls we met in Europe were the only girls we wanted to date. Even the European boys said that the American girls are the best looking," says Robert.

He liked Portuguese girls—"But they are always with their mothers and look very young for their age. You don't really get to have a conversation with them."

He became acquainted with Italian girls right away. "Italian girls do not seem very attractive, but after you get used to their type of looks, they are very good looking."

Greek girls resemble gypsies, he says. "But that may be an impression given by their big earrings and flashy clothes."

In one country where they had anticipated seeing spectacular girls, it turned out "They were the ugliest girls I ever saw," he says.

"Kids are the ones who have the most fun in Europe. The first day you are sort of scared. You must tell yourself that you are not at home, you are in Europe. You can do anything, like walk up to a girl and ask her to go out. If she says no, nobody really knows you've been turned down. But they don't turn you down. Everyone is out to take a little chance."

Robert was on a budget and lived in hostels—in Greece and Italy the hostels were about 75 cents a night; the best one in Portugal was 50 cents.

"The Portuguese one was like a dormitory. We had our own beach and beach chairs, and we would sit on the beach watching the beautiful little ripples in the water. Then we would go to town and buy bread, cheese, fruit."

The most important thing about youth travel is getting acquainted with people.

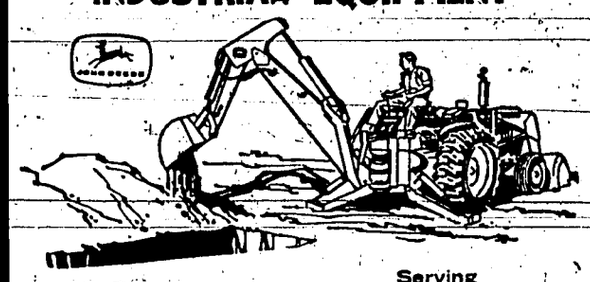

In Portugal, they went to a festival and sat around singing with the fishermen.

In Rome they were impressed by everything, particularly the Trevi fountain. In Athens, they saw the Acropolis and rented a car.

"If we hadn't been such good drivers, we'd be dead. I never saw such driving. And if someone runs into you, the law just shakes its head and scolds them."

"We met wounderful people everywhere, and it took only a few minutes to make friends. Sometimes when we couldn't speak the language, boys our age would draw directions in the dirt."

Doll's Wardrobe Made of Paper Can Sky-Rocket

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Husbands who had welcomed the current paper dress trend as a solution to the endless assault on their currency have discovered how wrong they can be.

A paper doll who goes to a paper ball the New York society way can send the cost of a disposable gown sky-rocketing when she's used to the elegant touches.

With immodest fortunes tied up and sewn onto gowns made of glossy or velour embossed, or shredded paper who wants to toss them out?

Designer Bill Blass made a long caftan in a cheetah print with bead embroidery and that sable at the neckline and cuffs for Charlotte Ford Niarchos. Her sister, Anne Ford Uzielli, wore a wrap-around empire-waisted gown ruffly with white paper lace, set off nicely by glittering gems.

Certainly Henry Ford II's pretty daughters know the nice touches, both having attended concentrated Parisien courses about the finer things.

"He (designer Blass) said I should keep this dress, but I'm sure I'll have to send back all this mink," said Mrs. Newhouse, who surveyed the long stretch of it that rounded her neck, marched down the front of her red velvet-like gown and bordered the hemline of the midi-length skirt. Gleaming red plastic boots finished off the Russian cossack look of her costume.

"She's winter. I'm summer," said Ann (Mrs. Denniston) Slater, her gown in frothy layers of white eyelet daisy ruffles topped by a matching cape.

More flowers—some painted on, and some dimensional ones stitched on—were donned by Mrs. John Mosler, wife of the safe-making family. Donald Brooks designed this one.

Young Wendy Vanderbilt's designer Sarmi gave her multi-colored paper dress a diagonally cut, ruffled hemline that was minihigh on the right side and floor length on the other.

"Is it really paper?" was the ice-breaking question strangers asked as they encountered each other.

It was a valid question. The quality of paper dresses had improved a great deal since society had turned out for the last big Paper Ball in the area, in Hartford, Conn. more than a year ago.

Technically, most of the gowns worn by socialites were not really paper but an unwoven product made by Reemay of Du Pont which is close enough to paper to warrant the license. Ordinarily, the designs from this product are of a simple nature, to keep production costs down.

When you hire top talent for custom-designed paper dresses the costs are higher. In this instance, however, many of the designers made the dresses in the name of research, charity (The Policeman's Athletic League) and the kind of prestige that Fords and Vanderbilts and Moslers can give a designer and paper dresses.

Paper—or the Reemay version of paper—is still meant to be fun, to be worn awhile and thrown away before it gets boring.

But if the trend turns to trimming it with sables and jewels, then emptying the wastebaskets may become a very profitable profession.

Betty Canary's Wonderful World

I decided to spend an hour or so bringing my recipe file up-to-date so I settled down with my typewriter and stack of little 3x5 cards and the clippings I'd been stuffing into the kitchen drawer.

It didn't take long to see that including new recipes would be impossible unless I completely revised my filing system. After writing the title, I had no room for the list of ingredients. Of course, sometimes the name was longer than the list of ingredients.

For example, Alice Margaret Sturmbarger's Cinnamon Apple Cum Laude turned out to be merely six Winesaps baked at 350 degrees.

Then there is my tuna casserole called Mother Slivovitz' Gaspe Peninsula Surprise, not to mention Key Largo Midsummer Mystery Cooler Salad—lime gelatin with chopped celery.

Some might argue such lengthy names are the result of the long-title trend evident in movies and plays, but my theory is that recipe writers have come to this sorry state after going to conventions and being exposed to restaurant breakfast menus.

To a menu writer, an egg is never an egg. He offers you a Fresh From the Farm egg (thereby implying if you wanted a cold storage or rotten egg you have come to the wrong place) or, worse, a Cacklin' Fresh one.

Such eggs are served up with your choice of Brother Renfroe's Home Smoked Bacon or Dad's Smackin' Good Little Link Sausages or Southern Style Shure-Sweet Ham Slices.

And were do menu writers come from? Obviously, they move to this higher plane after spending time thinking up those nervously cheerful names for dry breakfast cereals, a group of writers billed as The Determined and The Damned.

Trunks Hold Fascinating Tidbits For Mr. Galligan

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The family may have stripped the attic trunk of memorabilia, but it may still hold a fascinating tidbit for the latecomer: historical paper lining.

Bill Galligan of Garrison, N.Y., has found lots of well-lined trunks, old wallpapers and paper covered boxes in unexpected places.

Galligan turned his fascinating hobby into a business, selling and reproducing the old papers found in rolls or in trunk linings or on bandboxes and hat boxes.

Trunk papers were different because they were made usually by the trunk maker who used ordinary wood blocks to make the design.

One little trunk lining won't paper a wall, but an especially pretty one can be framed, used as a border on a door panel or on moldings or even on a headboard of a bed. Galligan pieces papers together like a jigsaw puzzle. Those from small trunks especially are never found in complete design.

The first wallpaper is supposed to have been made in Philadelphia in 1739. Records have shown wallpaper factories in East Jersey in 1790, Baltimore in 1800 and New York in 1805. Boston was offering painted papers in 1700, but it didn't begin to manufacture wallpaper until 1760. Hartford, Conn., was involved with wallpaper in a big way by 1815.

Two of Galligan's most successful wallpaper reproductions are a geometric introduced in 1948 and a floral with a bird. He has learned how to use old designs in new papers, earning him the title of "wallpaper doctor." Overscaled patterns must be rescaled and some colors changed.

The old Indigo blue color isn't salable, unless reversed with blue on top. People want lighter effects on walls. Green paper isn't popular.

"Some colors must be softened and about 90 per cent of the time the pattern must be cut down," explains Galligan. "Eighteenth and early 19th century patterns are not suitable for new houses with smaller rooms and lower ceilings."

Galligan started out as a concert violinist—he had 40 pupils—when he was a high school student. After a B.A. and an M.A., he couldn't decide what to do. He went into the business end of the concert enterprises.

On a trip to Oswego, he observed some old wallpaper in an antique shop, and bought the additional 4,000 rolls that the proprietor had in storage. The price: 5 cents a double roll.

He sold the first batch for $6 a roll, the second for $12. And so on.

He began locating wallpapers here and abroad for manufacturers and dealers. Then he went into the business of reproducing them. His collection includes about 80 old patterns in about 200 colors. The earliest is a 1693 English paper that had probably been used on a box.

Once in a while he enlarges a design to a scale to make practical wallpaper, such as a 1700 sheet of playing card figures that he found in a rare book store. These were hand-blocked, hand-colored and cut into individual cards.

The demand is larger than ever for reproduction papers, Galligan says, even by young newlyweds, who know what they want.

Lodge Members Are Honored

HANSEN — Honorees, Mrs. Leo Roberts, Mrs. Frank Wright, Mrs. Arthur Adamson, Lena Bohrn, Mrs. Jessie Calico and Mrs. Hugh Sanderson, were feted at the birthday anniversary potluck dinner at the Royal Neighbor meeting at the Woodman Hall.

The dinner honored those with birthdates in the last quarter of the year. Mrs. Ardith Kidwell, Kimberly, was also a guest.

Mrs. Ora Simpson, Mrs. Rose Wiseman and Mrs. Wayne Smith were on the menu and decorations committee and served the dinner. Decorations were in the fall colors and motif. Miss Bohrn made the placecards.

Games were played with Mrs. W. I. McFarland, Mrs. Stella Hughes and Mrs. Mary Taylor in charge of activities.

Officers will be elected at the Tuesday meeting. The money kits are to be brought to this meeting by the members.

Alcoholism Described As Today's "Hidden Illness"

By SHARON McEACHERN
Wichita Eagle Staff Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The doors are locked. The blinds are pulled tight. The telephone rings go unanswered.

The woman inside doesn't go out very often. She seldom eats. She can't sleep well. She has hallucinations. When she does fall asleep, she wakes up in a cold sweat . . . with the "shakes."

She lies, she cheats. She hates herself. She has what she and other women like her call "the housewife's secret sickness."

She is an alcoholic.

There are very few people who do not know her. She's a relative, a neighbor, a friend.

But her illness is hidden. She can stay home, behind four walls and people will ignore her problem . . . pretend it's not there.

Members of Alcoholics Anonymous, a fellowship of men and women whose primary purpose is to stay sober, take their first step when "we admit we are powerless over alcohol . . . that our lives have become unmanageable."

This is the big step. An active alcoholic seldom admits that she is actually an alcoholic. "You lie to yourself so many times . . . you start believing your own lies," admitted one of the women. "You just can't be halfway. You're either an alcoholic or you aren't.

"You haven't heard of a partially pregnant woman have you? Well, there are no partial alcoholics either. The only time you're cured is when they bury you."

Sue is 36 years old, an attractive and well-groomed woman, a wife and a mother. She has maintained her sobriety for eight months. Sue began, with a cup of black coffee close at hand and a lit cigarette. "It was me, my life just eight months ago . . . and it can be me again. All I have to do is take one drink."

When did Sue's problems begin? When she started drinking. "I was 17 years old, that's when it started," she remembered.

"Every time I'd start on a binge, I'd say: 'Oh God, I hope this time I don't get sick or don't get in trouble.' I always got sick and always got in trouble . . . but that doesn't stop an alcoholic.

"I'd disappear from home for days at a time. I found myself in Las Vegas once and didn't know how I got there. I lied and cheated. You just do anything to get a drink.

"I'd sit with any man who would buy me a drink. I didn't look like I do now. Weeks would go by and I didn't bathe or even comb my hair. It got so bad I couldn't sleep, couldn't eat. I've been in jails and hospitals and places you'd never dream of."

An alcoholic is shrewd and clever when it comes to drinking explained Sue. "When I was working for awhile, well I used to get a coke on my lunch hour. Then I'd empty half of it and go to my car. I'd fill the rest of the bottle with booze and drink it in the car . . . that's what a lot of girls do on the job."

The children of an alcoholic mother become shrewd, emotionally unbalanced and misguided also. Sue's young teenage son was "just as sick emotionally because of my drinking as I was as an active alcoholic."

"When I would wake up in the mornings, I'd have to have a drink to stop my shakes. My little boy, he was 13, would hide my bottle at night after I went to bed.

"Then he'd offer to sell the bottle back to me in the morning . . . and I'd pay him just to get that drink."

"I was a loser. That's the only way to describe it," she explained. "When things started going wrong, I'd always find someone or some situation to blame my problems on. It never even occurred to me that there was any correlation between my drinking and my problems.

"The last couple of years, my life was just a crazy merry-go-round and nightmare of drinking. When a woman is an alcoholic she's so remorseful, so ashamed, she just hides.

"It's just not as acceptable for a woman to be drunk as it is for a man. So she won't seek help . . . she feels she's so bad she can't face anybody. And it's easier for a woman at home to hide than it is for a man.

"You know that you're going to go through hell and get sick when you start drinking . . . but you go ahead and drink."

Mary emphasized that an alcoholic will do almost anything in order to get a drink. If regular liquor isn't available or money has run out "you can drink all flavors of extract, pure alcohol, or even canned heat and shaving lotion."

By JAN A. SAINSBURY
Times-News Feature Editor

It wasn't too many years ago that the "big night," what ever it might have been, was always preceded by a haircut and shave at the corner tonsorial parlor, and an uptown shine at "Joe's."

And if the haircut didn't do it, you were confident that the shoeshine would make you feel like a new man.

It cost a dime, but it was worth it. It made you feel better than going to a show on Saturday night —and that was a dime too.

The man with a glass-like shine on his oxford shoes was a man to be reckoned with—a sharpie—a gentleman. And it was easy to rationalize the spending of that dime . . . "You never saw the kind of a man who could ride in a taxi have dirty shoes, did you?" Of course not. Unthinkable.

And now it costs a quarter, plus a tip; and a Saturday night movie costs $1.50.

Not only has the price of a shoeshine remained relatively low, the service has improved. Now there is little or no waiting.

But much of the color is gone. The rags don't pop, and the young boys don't dance. The advertising posters which lined the walls are now few and far between, and the old square board are gone, the ones covered with messages which read: "Joe, call me before Sunday," or, "Place two on Lowboy in the fifth, Ace," or, "Her name's Mary and she works at Smitty's. That's all I know."

Those days are over. The days of the long shoeshine parlor where the newspapermen and bookies and detectives and politicians all gathered to exchange information while a boy shined and whistled are gone. They are no more.

Occasionally one can see a late-late-show on television and something like this happens: Humphrey Bogart walks up to a shoeshine stand and steps up for a shine. The man starts to work on the shoes and then says, "How's it go'n Mr. Spade." Bogart shifts a bit in the chair and says, "Not good, Packy, Not good." And Packy says, "Wouldn't have anything to do with the Greenwell case would it Mr. Spade?" And Bogart says, "It might."

And Packy finishes up the shine—Bogart steps down and digs into his pants pocket. He presses a crisp five dollar bill into Packy's hand, and Packy looks up and says, "Bless ya, Mr. Spade."

And as Bogart starts to walk off, Packy says, "Mr. Spade?"

"What is it, Packy?"

"Well, suh, you might try the hotel on Pine street."

Bogart doesn't say anything, and he doesn't really smile. But you know that it's all over. The hotel on Pine street is next.

And remember the little boy in all the 1940 movies

CHARLIE HARRISON gives the final touches to a pair of shoes at his stand in the Antiseptic Barbershop. After "shine parlors" became less and less prevalent, individual stands were located in many barbershops. Now only a few barbershops have a shoe shine stand, and the shine parlor is nearly a thing of the past. Mr. Harrison has been at his post, in the same location for 36 years. He and Russell Miller, one of the owners of the barbershop started at the same time, in 1931.

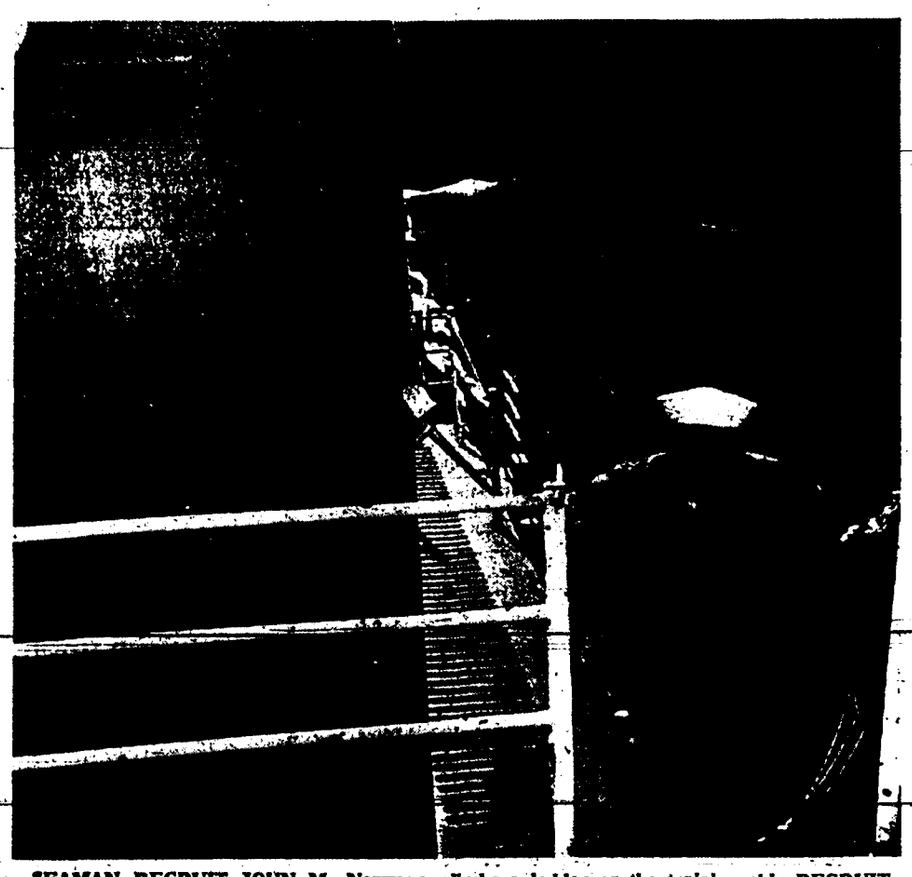

ALFONZO RALPH, owner of the Idaho Shine since 1948 used to average 150 to 200 pair of shoes a day in the shop, but now it's difficult to average 50 pair a day. Standing behind Mr. Ralph is Ken Jones, an employe of the shop. When Mr. Ralph first bought the shop he had four men working full time, and today he has only one. Like pool halls (the old fashioned kind), and barbershops (the old fashioned kind), the days of the shine parlor are numbered.

WHERE HAS all the business gone? Into the home and hands of the "do-it-yourselfer." From left to right a $29.50 electric buffer, a $5.00 battery operated polish applicator and buffer, and in kit form, a $7.00 package including polish, buffers, applicators, and a battery operated unit to supply the motion once the dominion of a shoe shine parlor. Whether the unit works on electricity or battery power, or just simply human effort, all are based on the ancient concept that you can tell a man by the shine on his shoes.

Newest Recruit In Newman's Navy Rests

SEAMAN RECRUIT JOHN M. Newman climbs a ladder on the training ship RECRUIT, a two-thirds scale model of a destroyer escort. Basic seamanship, line handling, telephone talker procedures, and shipboard customs and courtesies are among the many classes taught on this training device at the Naval Training, San Diego, California. Newman, who was 18 when he enlisted in the Navy at Twin Falls, was the center of activity for some time prior to his actual enlistment. His picture, along with that of his father, Kirby Newman, appeared in the Sept. 21 issue of "Time" Magazine, and he received several write-ups in Navy papers, and in national special interest newspapers.

The seventh of seven Navy sons, Seaman Recruit John Michael Newman, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Newman, 390 Van Buren St., Twin Falls, Idaho, is currently involved in post-training processing with the United States Navy. He will arrive home shortly for a visit with his family and friends after having enlisted in the Navy on Sept. 20, 1967.

Training for the young recruit started as it does for all who enlist in the Navy, with an "in-processing" phase. The neophyte sailor was first introduced to the Navy way of life when he arrived at the Training Center's receiving and outfitting division to begin the transition from civilian to sailor.

Newman and 59 other men from throughout the country were formed into Company 536 and placed under the guidance of an experienced petty officer who was to supervise their recruit training.

It was a considerable change for John Newman from the attention and activity which surrounded his enlistment in Twin Falls on Sept. 20. At that time less than three months ago John Newman was the center of attraction in Twin Falls. He gained national headlines as the seventh son to serve on current active duty from one family. He received a letter from the Secretary of the Navy congratulating him on his decision to serve with the Navy, and Governor Don Samuelson personally extended his congratulations at the ceremony held at the Twin Falls City Hall.

And from that atmosphere to one of sea-going-tales, and the regulations of Navy life proved to be a considerable change in John Newman's way of life.

Newman received a regulation recruit haircut, and was issued clothing. He shipped his civilian clothing home. He was given tests and counseled in the ways of the U. S. Navy.

He hopes to be a machinery repairman and as such he would use precision machine and hand tools to perform the duties as a shop machinist.

The recruits are taught proper procedure for care and folding of clothing, seabag layout and stowage. The close living conditions aboard ship require a high standard of personal hygiene.

Classes are taught by closed circuit television, and classroom instruction is supplemented by practical training in seamanship skills and naval terminology. The recruits are taught fire fighting techniques, and also involve themselves in competitive sports. All in all the 10 weeks of intensive training will prove useful as John Michael Newman joins six brothers now serving active duty in their country's navy.

TELEPHONE TALKER PROCEDURE, as it is called in the U.S. Navy, is practiced by Seaman Recruit John M. Newman, a native of Twin Falls who brought national recognition to the city when he enlisted in the U.S. Navy, Sept. 20, 1967. He is the seventh son now on active duty in the U.S. Navy from the Kirby Newman family of Twin Falls. Young Newman graduated from his recruit training the first of this month, and is presently involved in post-training processing. He will spend 11 days with his family and friends in Twin Falls before reporting to duty in the fleet with his six brothers.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

What are you supposed to do if suddenly you realize you're "sharing" a path with a 300-pound brown bear?

According to Bill Whittom, newscaster for radio station KAYT, RUPERT, you can shoot it — if you're not shaking too much.

Whittom, 26, and his father, William S. Whittom, in his 70's, New Plymouth, were confronted with this situation recently while deer hunting near Emmett. The father apparently scared the bear from berry bushes and it came down the trail to within 100 yards from young Whittom, who was standing alone and unaware of its presence.

When young Whittom noticed the bear he began wishing he were somewhere else at that moment and threw his arms in the air and yelled some very "unfriendly" words.

He then raised his rifle and shot at the bear, which was coming towards him. The first shot hit him but the bear continued towards Whittom to about 50 yards before it left the trail and ran into some thick bushes.

The next several minutes Whittom spent topped any previous experience of "walking through a cemetery at night," for he had to go through the thick tall bushes to get the bear, which he didn't know was dead or still alive and waiting for him.

He mustered all the courage he had and went through the thicket for his trophy. He couldn't see inside too well and when he heard the bear growl, chills went down his spine and perspiration gathered. But when he finally located the bear it was dead.

The bear hide is being made into a rug for Whittom and his wife, Irene.

A recalcitrant lily — or an over appreciative one! It's hard to determine with riots and what-not among the people, maybe the lily, a flower mentioned in the Bible, is protesting also. We would rather think it was appreciation, however!

At any rate, an Easter lily, given to Mrs. Earl Tridle, HANSEN, at Eastertime by her sister, and blooming profusely at that time, decided to bloom again. Why should it be restricted to just one blooming and always at Easter?

Although the quantity of blooms was scarce, the exceptionally large size of the two perfect blossoms made up for that. They remained beautiful for two weeks, before falling off the stalk.

Mrs. Tridle put the plants, pot and all, outside in the soil, after it quit blooming, and then she dug it up this fall. She was greatly pleased with the two lovely blossoms.

Vacant store buildings on the main street of FAIRFIELD were the target of a cleanup crew recently under the direction of Mrs. Lloyd Barron. Civic pride prompted MRS. BARRON, MRS. JOSEPH COOK, MRS. A. J. VASTEN JR., and other volunteers to assist in the cleanup project.

The vacant hardware building on the main street was the principle object. Bill posters from various elections, old signs, Halloween markings were removed and the windows were washed. Weeds and other debris were cut and removed from the sidewalk and street in front of the building. The city furnished a dump truck which was filled with the trash to be hauled away.

Mrs. Barron is county chairman of a beautification program and earlier this year directed a roadside cleanup of some of the county highways. School children and their mothers assisted in this project and seven truckloads of litter and debris were picked up and hauled away.

Mrs. Barron and her 4-H group landscaped a vacant lot between the post office and the ASC building by planting shrubs and flowers and getting a lawn to grow. They weeded the flower beds and cut the lawn during the summer and it made an attractive addition to the main street.

Mrs. Barron and Mrs. Cook are also on a committee from the Camas club and are purchasing and planning some outstanding street decorations for the main street during the Christmas holidays.

A Gem County widow received the same kind of certificate honoring her late husband as did the TWIN FALLS woman, Mrs. Albert W. Sowle.

Mrs. James E. (Lorna) Vahlberg, Montour, Idaho, received the certificate last winter following the death of her husband, a former sergeant in the Army. Following inquiries the Vahlberg family came to the conclusion the award was given since Vahlberg's death was service connected.

The late James E. Vahlberg served five years in the South Pacific during World War II. He served in the mail department and at times was flown over different Islands to distribute mail. He was a victim of pneumonia several times while in the service and became ill with malaria when he returned to the States. He was employed by the Forest Service until his death last January at the Veteran's Hospital in Boise.

Mrs. Theo B. Brush, RICHFIELD, sister of Mrs. Vahlberg, reports her sister has framed her certificate alongside a photograph of the late Mr. Vahlberg.

PLASTIC HELPFUL

Strips of thin plastic material may be used to tie gift packages. A pastel bow lends glamor to birthday or shower gifts, while the transparent reds and greens come into their own at Christmas time. These are very economical; a number of ribbons can be cut from a small amount of material.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

FORREST J. HIBBARD
Pastor, Valley Christian Church

The Christian faith is a way of life that involves what we believe, how we feel and what we do. Too often there has been what seems to be a difference of opinion as to what the Christian faith should be all about. To some it appears to be sheer intellectual acceptance of certain facts about the Bible, God and Christ. To others it appears to be simply a matter of doing good works. For the adherents of either position, the end result seems to be held to be the same.

It is really doubtful that there are very many who adhere completely to either position.

Those who seem to imply that their faith consists only of believing actually do good works and those who seem to imply that their faith consists only of good works actually hold to a very strong belief and do good works as a result of what they believe. A lack of communication is too often the reason for there being what appears to be two positions.

No doubt there are a few who do hold to one position or the other to the exclusion of the opposite view. Of course, there are many who don't particularly want to believe anything or do anything helpful for their neighbors.

We can be grateful that there is a great main-stream of believers who have a vital faith that gives meaning to life because of what they believe and feel, and what they do as a result. The church's original primary reason for being established was to make Christians and teach them the Christian way of life. The purpose is not, therefore, a case of either-or, but, both-and. We are to both make Christians and interpret and inspire them to living the Christian way of life.

In the last analysis it is really impossible to lead persons to the acceptance of Christ without teaching them what is involved in being a Christian. To believe in God and accept his will for our lives, would by the very nature or our belief, result in good works and the bearing of fruit befitting our repentance.

Repentance, incidentally, means turning from whatever direction we were going to go in the direction of God and His way of life for us. It's as simple as that! Naturally, our response to God is because of the understanding we come to have about Him, that is, that He is our creator and sustainer of life, and that above al, He loves us and desires that we be obedient to His will and purpose for our lives. His love for us does not protect us from all the pains and problems of life, but rather, gives to us a way of life that has meaning eternally. Pain, suffering and problems are a fact of life because God has given man freedom of will and choice; and man has too often chosen the wrong course of action which results in suffering. We are all bound up in the bundle of life together and sometimes those we think of as the innocent suffer, but we would not want to give up our freedom of choice and must therefore confess that our wrong choices have resulted in suffering. Beyond this we cannot explain or understand why things are as they are. It is for us to do all we can to make the world a better place in which to live.

Jesus had much to say about the way of life He came to show us: "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven."

When asked what one must do to inherit eternal life, Jesus responded in this way, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself," and continued to illustrate this statement by telling the familiar story of the good samaritan which makes it very clear that our neighbor is everyone whom we have opportunity to help and that we must help when we have opportunity.

The belief that life can be eternal is not denied by His reply.

He accepts the question about eternal life as valid implying that He believes that to be a fact provided we are willing to enter into the way of life that is eternal, that way of life that loves God and our neighbor as ourself.

The Advent season should have special meaning to us as we contemplate what our way of life should be. The message of Advent is that "God so loved the world that He gave His only Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life." The Son has shown us the way of life that is eternal. He did not come to teach us to engage in silly sentimentality but to choose the way of life that is a belief we can share with others in their sorrow and trouble that gives hope and purpose, and a way of living and acting that will lift and help providing equality, freedom and opportunity for everyone.

Hazelton Lions Will Distribute Candy At Eden

Members are asked to attend a meeting Dec. 19 to help bag this candy for distribution.

Raymond Wilson showed a film, "Food or Famine" at a recent meeting which included the wives of the Lions. The film showed what a shortage of food there will be 20 years from now.

Progress of the tennis court was reported and it was announced that the Jerome Elks and Twin Falls Elks are asking for names of needy families to distribute Christmas baskets. They are asked to contact Lester Saunders and Bill Pressey with these names in the near future.

Contest Set By Burley Jaycees

BURLEY — The best Home Christmas Decorations Contest will be sponsored by Burley Junior Chamber of Commerce with Gale Manning as chairman of the event.

The prizes will be of $50 each for best religious theme, best novelty decoration and the most original display.

The contest will be open to residents throughout the City of Burley and judging will be done during the week of Dec. 18, Manning stated.

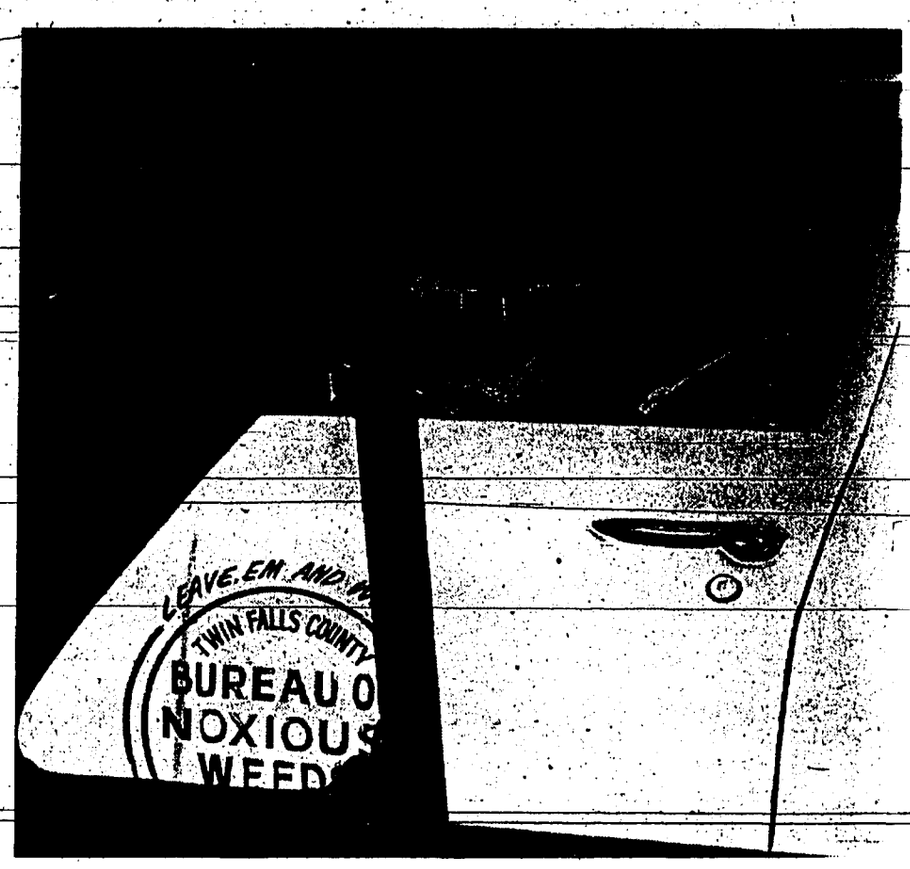

Burley merchants and business firms are cooperating with the Jaycees in furnishing three cash prizes.

To enter a home in the Christmas Decoration Contest, just mail the name and address to Burley Jaycees, P. O. Box 27, Burley, stating whether the entry is in the religious, novelty or original class.

SODA CLEANS

To keep a vacuum bottle sweet-smelling and clean, once a week fill it with a solution of cold water and a tablespoon of baking soda. Wash in warm suds and rinse thoroughly in the usual way. Jugs used just for picnics should get this treatment after each use.

MICHAEL H. FELTON

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT . . .

One Hundred Felonies Mark First Year Of Proecuting Attorney's Term

Michael H. Felton, a young and personable lawyer, comes from a family with a built-in tradition of jurisprudence. His father, Tom Felton, is Judge of Idaho's Second Judicial District, and a highly respected member of the legal community both in Idaho and through the region.

But at 27, young for any elected official, Michael H. Felton has already established a part of that tradition.

In 1965 after graduation from the University of Idaho law school at Moscow, Michael Felton realized that his law degree presented problems in the second district. Many cases would come before his father necessitating a disqualification on that case, and so Mike Felton picked the Magic Valley as home base for the beginning of a career in law, and as a public servant.

Locating in Buhl, Mike Felton and his wife Judy became part of the Magic Valley scene. Michael Felton became a part of the firm of Hepworth and Nungester — a firm which later became Hepworth, Nungester and Felton.

On Jan. 9, 1967, Felton took office after being elected Twin Falls County Prosecuting Attorney, and will hold that office until the term expires in Jan. 1969.

Mike Felton met his wife Judy Kempton at the University of Idaho. Although from Albion originally she was in Moscow because her father, Col. M. A. Kempton, was stationed there. The Feltons were married six years ago, and have a three year old son named Michael Harland Felton. Mrs. Felton's parents, Col. and Mrs. Kempton, now reside in Castleford.

Speaking of his position as Twin Falls Prosecuting Attorney Felton says, "We have more responsibility than most people realize. We have handled more than 100 felony cases so far this year, and there is still three weeks to go. And we handle three times the misdemeanor cases compared to felonies.

"We also handle sanity proceedings and a great many juvenile cases as well as handling child support action within the county for women who have husbands residing both in and out of the state.

"It is an active job with a great deal of genuine responsibility."

Michael Felton and his wife Judy have been serving as West-end coordinators for the Fund for the Performing Arts Center for the University of Idaho. They are co-chairmen. And Mike, himself, is a member of the board of directors of the Golden Eagle Booster Club at CSI.

Water Pipe Leaks Are Discussed

HAGERMAN—A special meeting of the Hagerman City Board was held this week to learn the cause of the several leaks which have occurred in the steel water pipe which was installed in the spring of 1964 replacing old worn-out wooden pipe.

John Caldwell, specialist with the Corrison Technical Co., Mountain Home, was contacted several weeks ago to assist the town board with this ever re-occurring problem.

Mayor Ralph Miller reports Mr. Caldwell told councilmen that tests showed the leaks were caused by a chemical and electrical reaction and advised the pipes could be grounded with zinc and magnesium anodes which will correct the leaking problem at a small cost.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist China today took delivery of the first shipload of a "large number" of tanks from the United States.

Mrs. Earl Rated As Best Loser

HANSEN — Mrs. Stanley Earl was welcomed as a new member at the Slim and Trim TOPS Club meeting at the home of Mrs. Thomas Steelsmith. Mrs. Margaret McCoy was best loser and a total loss of 11 pounds was noted.

A contest in which all pledge a certain loss was begun and will be ended Jan. 8. New officers will be elected at the next meeting, Dec. 11. A Christmas party and gift exchange will be held Dec. 18. The gifts are to be made or to cost no more than a dollar.

Mrs. Steelsmith was hostess and program chairman. She introduced a marble exercise for toes. She then introduced Mrs. Larry Bowles, who demonstrated a hairdo and answered questions. Kay Steelsmith was the model.

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

We ran across an article the other day explaining some of the qualities which are expected of the new United States Mint now under construction in Philadelphia. Among other things which amazed us was the fact that the new Mint will have a capacity of a million coins an hour—or almost 300 a second.

This sort of coin production staggers the imagination. And by the way—did you know that by using the new clad coinage for manufacture of coins, the Mint has made a cool $834 million dollars in profit?

We were a little surprised to receive a letter from a gentleman in Millinocket, Maine, asking about a Civil War Token he has found. The Times-News evidently has a wide circulation. We have a letter from M. B., in Fairfield. She asks about selling some Silver Certificates. Dealers are currently paying about 30 per cent over face value for these notes—and if they are badly worn, they are not worth saving. However—if you have nice, new crisp ones—hang onto them. They have no place to go but "up." If you are interested in selling—drop us a card and we'll send you some addresses to contact.

It is in very good condition, all signatures are readable.

It is on yellowish parchment paper and does not seem to have ever been folded.

Is this real or just play money? Does it have any cash value whatever? Thanks for any information.

Answer: If this note is genuine it is not listed. Both Criswell (Confederate and Southern States currency) and North American currency, show no such note. The genuine Louisiana currency should have a picture of Governor Thomas O. Moore in the upper left corner. The Series of 1863 Confederate States note has a picture of Lucy Pickens in the center of the note.

Moreover, Confederate notes (genuine) are printed on a very flimsy rag content paper, almost like tissue paper—with no crispness to them at all.

Such a note as you describe is probably one of those issued a few years ago as an advertising scheme by several Eastern companies. A great many of these were sent out in the mail to promote various products. However—I cannot pass judgment without seeing the note. If you care to send it to the column, we will examine and return it with an opinion. A genuine Confederate note sells from $1.50 to $12.00, depending upon its scarcity and condition.

In answer to several letters: The United States Mint will again begin producing "Proof" Sets in 1968. These sets, while they will be specially struck, will not be silver coinage as in the past, but "proof" examples of the present-day clad coinage. The Proof set consists of one each of all coins being currently struck at the mint. (50c; 25c, 10c, 5c, and 1c.) The price will be $5.00, packaged in a special Mint package, and delivered by registered mail. This seems a little odd, since before we quit making silver coins, the price for a Proof set was $2.10—with silver coinage.

Guess the government has also been infected by the profit bug. Ninety-one cents worth of coins for $2.10 was quite a hefty bite—but coins costing around 17 cents for a $5.00 bill is carrying things too far. However—if you are wanting Proof sets, they may be obtained by ordering from the Mint in San Francisco, or send a self-addressed stamped envelope to "Coin World," PO Box 150, Sidney, Ohio 45365 and they will send you a specially printed form for ordering these sets.

We are still looking for Merchants's Tokens which might be new to us. Any information on such tokens (hickeys) will be much appreciated.

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c-o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.)

He Who Steals My Purse Steals Trash He Who Steals My Name, Deserves It

By JAN A. SAINSBURY
Times-News Feature Editor

On Nov. 8, 1939, a day which will not necessarily live in the annals of history, I was born into what I think is a pretty good world.

But within a week I was struck with my first tragic taste of what living was all about. I was christened a girl. Which of course wouldn't have been quite so bad had I been a girl. But I wasn't a girl — and furthermore I had no intention of becoming a girl, even at the tender age of a few days.

Reports have it that I wailed throughout the "blessing," and if I was aware that something was amiss, the man who blessed me (may his name never pass my lips) wasn't. He proceeded in fine style sending my parents into total depression as he constantly referred to me as "she."

It was only a week later that my mother, bless her, had the courage to return to the church and have me re-blessed (I imagine that's what it's called.) This time the personal pronoun was the more proper "he."

But the curse has persisted. Because I feed my family and myself through the exercise of writing I have my name in print often. At first I toyed with the idea of using my middle name for my first name. I would use "Arthur Sainsbury." But not being overjoyed at the name Arthur as a first name I decided to keep Jan, and use my full name, "Jan Arthur Sainsbury," until someone pointed out that "Jan Arthur" could be my maiden name.

So in an effort to stop receiving letters addressed to "Dear Miss Sainsbury," and to end the telephone calls which ask "What is your feature editor's name . . . oh yes, let me speak to her," I began seeking advice. But I've stopped.

Suddenly it dawned on me that to seek advice about what to do because people think I'm a girl, was not the smartest move to make.

It is just that when I have a by-line on a story it does present a problem. But I'm not fool enough to ask for advice in this area either. I already know what the answer would be.

"Stop writing."

Spicy Case

TIRUCHIRAPPALLI, India (AP) — Two customs officers had a spicy case on their hands.

The officers, on a motorcycle, gave chase to a car which sped through a checkpost near this south Indian city. The driver finally abandoned his car, dived into a river and escaped. The officers found in the car five bags of cloves, presumably smuggled into India from Ceylon.

Shoeshine A Day Keeps The Doldrums Away...

who would dance his way across the set after he had started shining the shoes of a "broadway producer."

And then there was the boy who took his shoeshine kit along with him from corner to corner. He'd shine your shoes for a nickle, and if they were already shiny, he'd dust them off for a penny.

And more than one movie had the little boy, endearing because at his industry, start to shine the pool hustler's shoes only to lift his head up at the end of the shine and ask, "Double or nutten?"

And so it went.

But in the final stand, the shoeshine boy played only a small part—and today he plays no part at all.

It is a fading business which is found in only larger towns and big cities.

It is the result of companies who make it easy on people to do things on their own.

It is the result polishes which are packaged in containers with buffers and brushes included so that the purchaser soils neither hand nor foot.

It is the result of progress and convenience.

No one is to blame. It had to happen.

Only somehow after you shine your own shoes, you hardly feel like a new man.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN WHITEFISH look like this and reach an average length of about one foot, though some weigh as much as four pounds. Identifying characteristics are small mouth, large scales, lack of black spots and short dorsal fin. It likes clear cold lakes and streams, and spawns in early winter.

Good Fishing Provided By Whitefish

Species Found Only In Bear Lake

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

One of Idaho's best kept secrets is that it has one species of whitefish, the Bonneville (Coregonus spilonotus), which is found only in the deep cold waters of Bear Lake. It is large, thick-bodied and weighs up to 2½ pounds. This lake, which straddles the state line separating Utah and Idaho, also is the home of two other species of whitefish that are found nowhere else in the world. These are the Bear Lake whitefish and the Bonneville cisco or peaknose. Both species are on the small side, reaching seven or eight inches, but abundant.

Peaknose cisco cause a January business boom in southeastern Idaho in spite of cold weather and temperature skids that may go many degrees below zero. This is the time of year when tasty cisco swim up from the dark depths of Bear Lake to spawn by the tens of thousands in the shallows of the sandy beaches. So popular is this wintertime sport, and so plentiful the runs, that the Idaho Fish and Game Department permits fishing with small dipnets from January 1 to February 15. The bag limit is 50 cisco a day per licensed fishermen.

Kids under 14 years of age who do not need licenses to fish, are limited to four cisco a day. The spawning run does not last six weeks, but the special cisco regulations are broad enough to cover the spawning period.

The Rocky Mountain whitefish is the species known to most wintertime anglers. Sometimes called mountain herring and miscalled grayling, it is found generally throughout the Intermountain West. Anglers recognize this whitefish, which gets to be about a foot long but may reach as much as four pounds in weight, by its small mouth, large scales, lack of black spots, and a dorsal fin. It likes clear, cold lakes and streams and spawns in early winter.

The bag limit on whitefish is 50 fish a day in most waters. They are good to eat fresh-fried or smoked. They make a fine wintertime sport for anglers because they are to be had in most parts of Idaho, with liberal seasons to boot. They will outfight a trout, pound for pound in extremely cold water, say about 36 degrees. In such temperatures rainbows tend to become sluggish. All this is more or less commonly known by the outdoor sports fraternity. Most members plan to give it a try sometime but put it off when the cold winds blow.

What they do not seem to understand is that fishing for whitefish is a specialized sport. Fair-weather anglers find this hard to grasp, having hooked these tough, though tiny-mouthed fish with spinners that carried no bate of any kind. They also rise for flies when the mood strikes them. Whitefish at one time were so prolific in northern Idaho's Lake Pend Oreille that they were used as the base of a commercial fishery until the kokanee or landlocked blueback salmon arrived years later.

Hardbitten whitefish fishermen say that in some respects this species is harder to catch than trout. Ordinarily, the guy who does not know how won't catch many of them. Bait and tackle must be rigged just right and used properly, even when cast out in the midst of a school of whitefish. Of course, finding schools of fish is the first problem to be solved. They do not stay in all of the deep holes or pools.

When there is ice to walk on, a cane pole is best. The pole helps to fish over the edge of the ice without getting too close to the school of fish. Indeed some anglers like to use a cane pole whether there is ice or not. They can be used when a fly rod cannot be used to lift a fish out of the water and over the edge of ice.

There are several ways to rig up for whitefish fishing. Some anglers use two hooks, though in all truth one may be just as efficient—and that way just one bait setup needs watching and freshening now and then. Few are the times when two fish are caught at the same time.

Whitefish have small mouths. But Walt Bethke, assistant state hatchery supervisor and a veteran whitefish fisherman, says he prefers to fish with a No. 8 hook. Opinions vary. Some hold that a No. 10 is too big, that the best size seems to be No. 12. Sinkers heavy enough to take the line down quickly, and bobbers to keep baits off the bottom, complete such outfits. Whitefish appear to remain at a fairly constant depth. The bait should be offered at the level they occupy.

Various baits are used. Small grubs or larvae are good natrual food. Whitefish seem to prefer stone flies that are sometimes called hellgrammites, and locally as "hickies." Another good bait is the "mousy" or rat-tailed maggot, which is the larvae form of a hover fly.

Many anglers find their own bait in the stream where they fish. It is the Caddis fly larvae, which builds stone or bark casings for its grub-like body, and clings to rocks.

Properly handled, smoked whitefish are a real treat. One method of processing is to pack them in an earthenware or enamel container, with half to one pound of salt evenly distributed through the layers of 10 pounds of fish. The container is filled with a mixture of about two pounds of salt to a gallon of water.

Ten hours or so later the fish are rinsed, dried and placed on racks in the smokehouse over a fire of orchard or other hardwood. Three to six hours of curing in a light smoke with the temperature held at about 80 degrees is recommended. Following this, the heat is increased and the fish are cooked in dense smoke at 170 degrees for one or two hours. Timing at this stage depends on the size of the fish and the flavor wanted.

Whitefish are native to waters in nearly every section of the state—and the best time to fish for them is the winter months. They run in schools and the cold water produces fish that are of good size and firm white flesh.

Story Of Atomic Bomb Discovery Makes Interesting Reading

It was Dec. 2, 1942, a bitter cold afternoon on the University of Chicago campus. In a makeshift laboratory beneath Stagg Stadium, a team of dedicated scientists were striving to initiate the world's first nuclear chain reaction.

If successful, the experiment might lead to an earlier end of a war that was going badly for America and her allies. It might also prove the possibility of unlimited low-cost power from splitting atoms.

At the scene and in a nearby laboratory were two young men who since that event of 25 years ago have fulfilled their nuclear apprenticeship with many years of distinguished service at the Atomic Energy Commission's National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho—Warren E. Nyer, now a senior scientist with Aerojet General Corporation, and Warren H. Burgus, today a senior scientist in Phillips Petroleum Company's Atomic Energy Division.

On that historic day, Nyer was a member of the so-called "suicide squad." He and two other members of the scientific team were stationed on a wooden platform near the top of the atomic pile, ready to flood it with neutron-absorbing liquid (cadmium-salt solution) in case something went wrong with the calculations and the cadmium rods failed to control the hoped-for chain reaction.

They called it a pile because that's what it looked like — a huge, roughly spherical stack of black graphite bricks. Every other layer of the bricks contained apple-sized lumps of uranium fuel stacked in a precise configuration inside the pile, or reactors, as it would be called today. Everyone involved in the top-secret experiment was sure the reactor would work. Commitments of scarce manpower and materials for the entire wartime atomic energy project hinged on this day's success or failure.

Nyer thought back to mid-November of 1941, before Pearl Harbor, when he first had become associated with the project. He had been 20 and a sophomore physics student, working 44 hours a week in the University of Chicago Physics Department while carrying nearly a full schedule of university courses.

He and other physics department employes joined the super-secret research project—headed by Arthur H. Compton, dean of the U. of C. Physical Science Department — formed to study graphite - uranium lattice reactors. Nyer was assigned to experiments involving use of a Cockcroft-Walton particle accelerator to investigate diffusion of neutrons in beryllium.

Early in 1942, the Chicago project and nuclear study efforts at Princeton and Columbia Universities were consolidated at the University of Chicago and called the Metallurgical Laboratory, a name deliberately chosen to camouflage the real nature of the work. It was then that Nyer had first met Dr. Enrico Fermi, the Italian refugee from fascist oppression who had won the Nobel prize in 1938 for his discoveries on splitting atoms.

Nyer looker across the laboratory to the low balcony where Fermi was huddled with several other notable scientists, including Compton, who had befriended and counseled Nyer. Occasionally Nyer could hear Fermi's soft voice giving instructions to those around him.

Fermi headed the Metallurgical Lab's nuclear physics experimental group. He was responsible for building the first pile to demonstrate whether a sustained and controlled nuclear chain reaction were possible. Until that was established beyond a doubt, the wartime and peacetime uses of the new power could be no more than hopes.

It was easy to respect Fermi for his scientific genius and to like him as a man. He addressed everyone by first name, and his warmth and charm inspired affection, confidence, and willingness to work endless hours.

The control rod was withdrawn a bit farther and Nyer heard the clicking neutron counter increase its tempo and then level off. Not yet. Maybe after the next control rod withdrawal. One of the big questions was whether there was enough uranium fuel in the pile to achieve a chain reaction. Practically the entire supply so secretly collected by the Allied countries was in that improbable-looking pile. Nyer and the others had spent countless hours pressing uranium into different shapes of "fuel" and many other long days and nights as "carbon coolies", stacking the dirty graphite bricks for 30 experimental piles built before this one. You could scrub the graphite from your skin, but you could never get it from under your nails.

In another building across the street from the stadium, Warren Burgus was helping to unravel another of the mysteries that shrouded the power locked inside the atom. He paused and thought of the dramatic event scheduled to take place that day. He was concerned for the safety of his friends. The calculations showed the experiment could be performed safely, but what if the calculations were in error?

Burgus had come to the Metallurgical Laboratory in March of 1942, a 22-year-old graduate student in chemistry from the University of Colorado. His department head was a close friend of Arthur Compton and, in response of Compton's guarded appeal for skilled technical help, Burgus had been sent to Chicago.

The young chemist's first assignment at the Lab was to help develop a process for obtaining high purity uranium oxide needed for the first experimental pile and, in fantastically large quantities, for a plant-scale program if the pile should prove successful. A few months after Burgus joined the project, a chemistry division had been formed which, tackled, among other problems, the difficult job of plutonium separation.

The fissionable element plutonium had been discovered in March 1940 by a University of California team led by Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg. Their research had shown that when a certain kind of uranium atom absorbed a neutron an entirely different, and new, element called plutonium was formed. This element was fissionable just like some of the uranium atoms. Scientists quickly realized here was another prospect, equally as promising as uranium, for building a bomb and, someday, for fueling power reactors in a world at peace.

A plutonium development effort was launched, paralleling research on the extremely difficult job of isolating the scarce kind of fissionable uranium atom, U-235, which comprised only one in every hundred-forty atoms of natural uranium. And the future of the plutonium program was tied to the success of Fermi's pile. Without reactors it would be impossible to create enough plutonium to build a bomb.

Burgus looked at his watch and wondered again what was happening in the lab across the street under the West Stands. Those 42 scientisits were part of the finest team ever fielded at venerable Stagg Stadium, scene of many an epic football contest. And like the athletic teams of past glory, that wartime team was inspired by an outstanding coach, Enrico Fermi.

For several months after Burgus had joined the Metallurgical Laboratory, he had lived with Fermi and several other lab employes on the top floor of the campus International House. Fermi's family had not yet come to Chicago and the two men soon were good friends.

The Italian scientist had recently become a U.S. citizen and, with his seemingly endless vitality, he was striving to improve his command of English by speaking into a recorder and then listening to the playback. There was little time for recreation, a few hours on Sunday afternoons, an hour here or there on other days. Burgus remembered that Fermi wanted to learn ice skating and attacked the challenge with typical determination. After learning the rudiments of skating forward, he decided it was time to learn to skate backward. One afternoon at the campus rink, Fermi picked himself up off the ice after an uncounted number of bone-shaking spills. "You know, Warren," he had said, with a twinkle in his eye, "It is unnatural to skate backward."

The man had a wonderful sense of humor, part of his incomparable talent for turning a group of individualistic scientists into a team. Burgus thought of the time that summer when Fermi had gone out to find an apartment for his wife and two children when they were to come to Chicago. Apartments were scarce, but one was reported as available in the exclusive lake-front area, and Fermi had gone to see it. Later that day he returned and told them he hadn't rented the apartment.

"It was a lovely apartment," Fermi said. "A fine view of Lake Michigan. But what physicist can afford so much rent? So, I told the man it was too high off the ground. I couldn't hear the birds up there."

Some of the other scientists occasionally expressed doubts about helping to build an atomic bomb. Not Fermi. He had seen fascist oppression at first hand and if the Nazis built such a weapon first it would give them an unthinkable advantage. But there was no way of knowing whether the Nazi effort was further along than ours.

Burgus thought again about the experiment taking place at the stadium. If successful, it would be Enrico Fermi's victory, more than any other man's. His genius lay in the fact that he was expert both as a theoretician and as an experimentalist, a combination rarely found in a scientist. Coupled with that was a third superior characteristic: he was an excellent teacher—able to explain in simple analogies and mathematics the complicated concepts then understood by only a few people in the world. Burgus turned back to his work. He would be learning soon whether the world's first reactor was a success.

Inside the former squash court of Stagg Stadium, the tension mounted as the control rod was withdrawn another foot. Nyer looked around the laboratory. No one seemed afraid or even worried. Over the months of working together, everyone had acquired the greatest of confidence in Fermi's innate caution and know-how.

The neutron counter's cacophony of clicks became closer together and, unlike the previous attempts when the count had risen and then leveled off, this time the clicks blurred together and then merged into a single tone.

Over on the balcony Fermi, worked his slide rule. In a few minutes, he looked up and quietly announced that the rate of fissioning was exponential . . . they were witnessing the world's first sustained and controlled nuclear chain reaction.

Nearly half an hour later Fermi ordered the control rods inserted, and the neutron counter quickly subsided into silence. Nyer clambered down from the platform. Everyone was smiling and talking, but not loudly nor exuberantly. It had been a great day, undoubtedly a historic one. Ahead were months and years of hard labor. This was the beginning, not the end. But with such a beginning the formidable task of harnessing the atom did not seem nearly so difficult now.

Roast Wild Goose Can Be Delicacy

A roast goose for a special occasion is considered by many families as a delicacy and when the goose is a wild one, this is considered the most delicious.

Contrary to most authorities, they skin their birds. First skin, clean and soak in several solutions of salt water until water is fairly clean. Drain and wipe dry.

Season bird to taste and fill cavity with chopped or quartered pieces of apple, onion and celery pieces with leaves. They suggest if the bird is quite old that you use carrot and potato as stuffing. This is discarded when the bird is done.

Since the bird is skinned, soak several thicknesses of cheesecloth in melted butter and place over breast of bird. Add red or white wine for cooking liquid. Start with about 1 cup and add more if necessary.

White wine seems to be the more popular but the red works equally well. If you don't care for wine use chicken broth or even water. Use either cooking wine, available in most grocery stores, or a regular wine. Cooking wine is seasoned and adjust your seasoning accordingly.

Bake bird in a slow oven until tender, starting at 350 degrees until cooking begins then reduce heat to about 275 degrees. Check occasionally and baste with liquid around the bird. Roast about 6 hours.

Different Game Bird Dish

For something different, but very flavorful and enjoyable to eat, is this recipe the Hills gave for grouse, pheasant or sagehen in loaf form using a dressing and custard.

Sage Dressing

2 tbsp. onion, minced
¼ cup chopped celery
6 tbsp. melted butter
3 to 4 cups bread crumbs
½ tsp. sage, or to taste
salt and pepper

Mix well and place in bottom of a shallow baking dish. Arrange pieces of bird over dressing.

Custard

½ cup butter
½ cup flour
3 to 4 cups chicken broth
6 eggs

Melt butter and blend with flour. Add 3 to 4 cups of broth, if no broth, use canned chicken broth or bouillon cubes. Cook until slightly thickened, add the 6 beaten eggs and cook about three minutes more.

Pour custard over game and dressing. Sprinkle top with buttered bread crumbs or crushed potato chips if you like. Bake about one hour in a moderate over, 300 or 350 degrees.

Note. Adjust amounts in recipe according to size of bird. A little bird can go quite a long way.

Teamwork Needed Between Hunter, Cook For Ducks

Preparing, cooking and serving wild ducks are almost the same as for poultry. Teamwork between the hunter and the cook is essential for a tasty main dish.

Since the age of a duck largely determines the cooking method and time, judge and sort the birds as to age. Birds less than 1 year are tender; birds over 1 year are tougher.

Younger birds are generally more numerous than old ones. A bird's age shows in weight, color or plumage, pointedness, or roundness of wing-quill tips, and the color, smoothness and hardness of its shanks. Pinfeathers show the bird is young.

Judge the quality of a duck by its weight, plumpness, amount of fat, firmness and color of muscle, and by its age. Remove the fat in "strong" or fishy birds.

Ducks that feed on strongly flavored plants and crustacean life are likely to be strong and fishy. Stuff "fishy" birds with chopped onion and celery or sliced lemon to absorb some of this flavor. Change the stuffing before cooking the birds.

During the cooking process, add generous amounts of such fats as butter, bacon, salt pork strips, drippings, or a neutral fat. Ducks are less fat and juicy than domestic fowl.

Cook older and less tender ducks by moist heat or by a combination of dry and moist heat — braising, pot roasting, roasting or baking in covered pans, wrapping in aluminum foil for roasting, or stewing.

Cook birds to the degree of doneness you like. Some like wild duck rare. For rare birds, roast at 450 degrees for about 30 minutes. If you like duck well done, roast the duck at 350 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes per pound or until tender. Some cooks parboil wild duck in a pressure cooker at 10 pounds pressure for 15 minutes before roasting. Recipes included in this bulletin give instruction for cooking duck well done.

When roasting ducks, cover them loosely with a greased cloth or aluminum foil and baste frequently to keep the skin or outer suface moist. For a crisp skin, remove cloth or foil when nearly done. Baste frequently with fat and sprinkle with flour after each basting.

Judge the number of servings by weight. The dressed carcass weight of a duck averages from 50 to 60 per cent of its original weight. For a small serving, allow one-half pound; for medium serving, three-quarter pound or more.

If you enjoy the wild flavor of duck, don't soak or marinate before cooking. Some of the wild flavor leaves when the duck is marnated in vinegar, mild wine, or sour milk. Parboiling with sliced onion and carrot added to the water also takes out some of this flavor.

.22S ILLEGAL

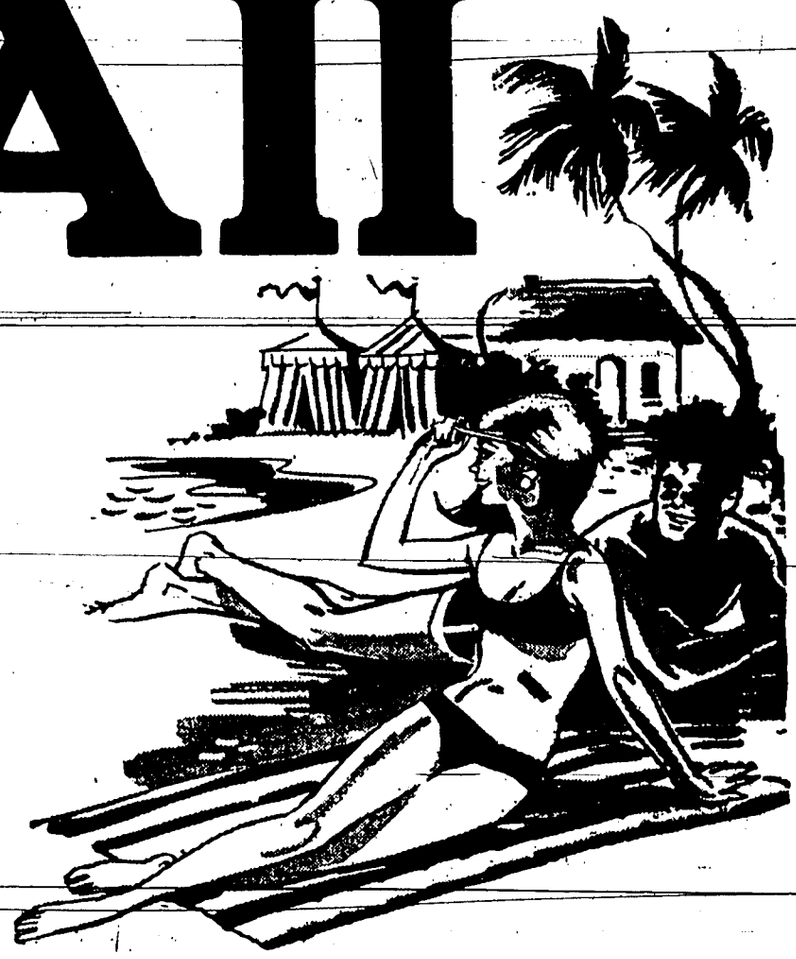

The Fish and Game Department says it is unlawful for any hunter to use a .22 caliber firearm using rimfire cartridges when hunting for, shooting at, killing and attempting to kill any big game animal.

1. Magic of Hawaii Tour:

6th annual tour. Bigger and better than ever! 4 islands, bonus features. Joe and Mary Salisbury of Magic Carpet Travels will be your hosts.

8 NIGHTS IN WAIKIKI, arriving Feb. 7th at 1:15 p.m. after connecting jet coach flights from Twin Falls that morning. Rooms at luxurious ILIKAI HOTEL overlooking the yacht harbor. While here we've arranged for you a CRUISE THROUGH PEARL HARBOR, a NIGHT IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC (Visit, Dinner, Show at Polynesian Cultural Center) and tour around S.E. end of Oahu to OCEANIC SEA-LIFE PARK! Free Time is allowed for surf, sun, picnicking, golfing, fishing, browsing, or anything you wish.

2 NIGHTS ON KAUAI, the "Garden Isle" at romantic POIPU BEACH HOTEL. 20 minutes West of Honolulu, by Jet, this is the oldest of the Island Chain. Trip to Waimea, "Grand Canyon of the Pacific" via Nawiliwili Harbor, Koloa Plantation and Moir's amazing Cactus Gardens to Kalalau Lookout for breathtaking view of the Na Pali Cliffs and the ocean 4,000 feet below! Wailua River Boat trip to Fern Grotto, where singing of "Ke Kali Nei Au" will thrill you with the deep sentiment of these lovely Island people. Time for leisure at secluded Poipu Beach.

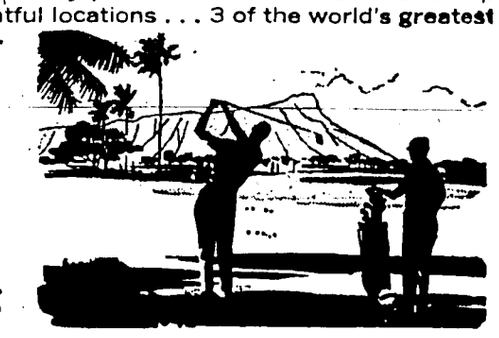

MAUI, the "VALLEY ISLE" entertains us for a day with Haleakala, Iao Valley "Yosemite of the Pacific," and along Maui's "Amalfi Drive" to beautiful Kaanapali Beach and new Sheraton Maui for lunch. Then Lahaina, Old Whaling Center. Afternoon flight on to . . .

HAWAII, ON THE BIG ISLAND OF HAWAII, for 2 nights at delightful new ORCHID ISLE HOTEL, on edge of Hilo, 2nd largest city of the islands. You'll stroll through anthurium nurseries, and gardens that make this truly the orchid Capital of the World! Then to Hawaii National Park where recent and ancient volcanoes erupted; and have lunch at Volcano House overlooking Kilauea Crater. Then through gigantic treefern forests and the Chain of Craters Road to the Black Sand Beach at Kalapana.

HOME ON THE 10th DAY, Feb. 16th—ALOHA, Nui Loa! You'll bring home memories to treasure always.

2. Golfers Magic Paradise:

Perfect retreat from work-day pressures. Perfect 1st or 2nd trip for golfers. Three delightful locations . . . 3 of the world's greatest courses. Friendly competition to challenge your best. Exciting night-life at every step.

GOLFERS' INVITATIONAL

2 NIGHTS IN HILO by connections from Twin Falls, Boise, or your home city. Here you'll stay at the delightful new ORCHID ISLE HOTEL where you'll love the view, the pool, the dining room of the "Talking Tikis" and the "Monkey Bar." Golfing excursion across the Island via Parker Ranch to Rockefeller's famous MAUNA KEA BEACH Hotel and Golf Club for fabulous buffet lunch (included) and afternoon of golf on famous course designed by Robert Trent Jones which Jack Nicklaus said is ". . . more fun to play than any course I know."

4 NIGHTS AT ROYAL LAHAINA on the spectacular "Valley Isle" of MAUI, situated between the beach and ROYAL KAANAPALI Golf Course, a Jones masterpiece—site of the 64 Canada Cup matches and "Wonderful World of Golf." 1 day's golf with cart and storage is included and 3 days free, but with starting times reserved.

3 NIGHTS AT WAIKIKI staying at luxurious ILIKAI Hotel overlooking Yacht Harbor and sprawling city of Honolulu. Day of GREAT GOLF included at MAKAHA VALLEY COUNTRY CLUB, where "the golfer's biggest hazard is the scenic splendor of Makaha Valley." Day or two free to browse Waikiki and Int'l Market Place, go Deep Sea Fishing, try still another golf course, or just take it easy.

GO BY YOURSELF – IN COUPLES – OR WITH YOUR OWN GANG

WHY BOOK EARLY?

Space is limited in hotels at this bussiest time of the year. Hotels will not keep booked space without names beyond mid-December. Increased demand assures filled space early. Trip will mean more with advance preparation, reading of maps and folders, and planning use of time in Hawaii.

HOW DID EAST FIGURE PLAY?

One way to be a really successful fisherman is to learn to think like a fish. The way to be a really successful defensive player is to learn to think like the declarer.

	NORTH 9 ♠ A Q 6 4 3 2 ♥ 3 2 ♦ J 4 ♣ A Q 4
WEST ♠ K 10 ♥ J 8 7 4 ♦ A 8 ♣ 9 8 7 6 3		EAST ♠ J 9 8 7 ♥ 6 5 ♦ K Q 10 6 5 ♣ 10 2
	SOUTH (D) ♠ 5 ♥ A K Q 10 9 ♦ 9 7 3 2 ♣ K J 5

Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ♣ 9

South didn't like to keep rebidding his five-card heart suit, but the game was rubber bridge and he had 100 honors. Furthermore, once he got started he never got a real chance to quit.

He won the club lead with his jack and decided his best play would be to take the spade finesse, so he led a spade and finessed dummy's queen at trick two. Then he discarded a diamond on the ace of spades and ruffed a spade with his ten of trumps.

West overruffed and played ace and eight of diamonds. East was in with the queen and noted that South had dropped the nine on that second diamond lead.

This was an automatic correct false-card. West could hold the seven of diamonds. He couldn't hold the nine because he would have led it.

It was up to East to make the correct play at this point. If West held the missing diamond, East's only hope would be to lead his last spade and hope that it would produce a trump trick for his partner.

As you can see, the diamond play sets the contract. The spade lead allows South to ruff, draw trumps and get rid of his last diamond on a spade.

How did East figure out that the diamond play was correct? He thought like the declarer. It was rather apparent that South started with nine red cards. If six were hearts and headed by ace-king, South would simply have played ace-king of trumps once the spade finesse worked and then would have taken a discard of one of his three diamonds. Thus it became apparent that South was trying to handle four little diamonds and had started with only five trumps.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
		1 ♣	1 ♦
1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

♠ A Q 10 7 6 ♥ 2 ♦ A Q 10 7 6 5 ♣ 3

What do you do now?

A—Bid three diamonds. You don't really expect to get to game, but you may shut out a heart call by West.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid three diamonds. West bids four clubs, your partner four diamonds and East five clubs. What do you do now?

Young America's Date-Line

By ELE AND WALT DULANEY

He'd Like To Break His Time Barrier

Dear Ele and Walt: Look at my schedule. There are 168 hours in the week, right? Well, 42½ hours go for school and commuting, 18 hours more go for homework, 56 hours go for sleep, 14 hours go for meals and dishes, 12 hours on my weekend job (I pay for my own clothes and school lunches). This leaves a balance of 25½ hours. My family and I are arguing, because I want 6 hours for my own. Twice a week I want to take a karate class: 6 hours, and I'd pay for it myself. But they say I'm being selfish and should stay home and help out more. Your know, a lot of teenagers, would you say I'm doing my share compared with the others? —Michael.

Dear Michael: If your reporting is accurate, you are indeed carrying a responsible load. But before backing you 100 per cent, we want to see your report card and closet, and eavesdrop at your house for 24-hours to see how much pushing and prodding you require now to get all your things done. Do you think we could support your stand after peering and hearing?—Ele and Walt.

Dear Walt: There is a boy at school that I like very, very much, and he knows it. The problem is that the other day my girl friends and I were thinking up different things that people in our cafeteria looked like. When it came to this boy, we agreed that since he has very long legs and a thin nose he looked like a story. Before I knew it, someone had told him that I had definitely agreed with this idea and I heard he was very mad. We were just joking, please tell me what I can do to make him understand that.—Sorry Joker.

Dear Sorry: You're in a bind You can't go up and say, "I'm sorry you look like a story," nor can you deny your "joke." What then? I'd say join him. Next time you're near his side, cue a girl friend to call you by your animal name. What will it be? "Pig" for your pug nose and short legs, "giraffe" for your 1-o-n-g neck and small head, or "chimpanzee" for your big mouth and prominent ears?

If he shows any interest in your title, tell him his label just as if he hadn't heard it already. Accompanying dialogue: "Oh, you lucked out. Everyone thought you looked long and lean like a stork on his tall legs. But what animal would you pick for yourself?"—Walt.

P.S. There's a lesson here, isn't there? Unless you're going to say a person resembles an ultra-handsome movie star, it's best not to make personal statements that can embarrass you later on, particularly about a lad you like!

WITHOUT GOOD-BYE

Here's a letter that's appeared frequently in this space in one form or another. Since the hurt is ever new, we'll share yet another version in the hope it will trigger the golden "do onto others" rule for anyone who's considering a breakup.

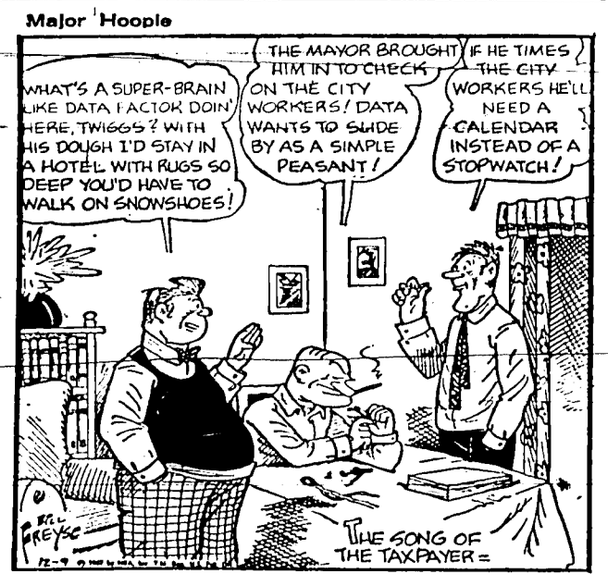

Dear Ele and Walt: Jim and I dated steadily for four months. But for the last three weeks I've been going out of my mind, for he hasn't called once. I've just realized that I'll never hear from him again.

My complaint is the abrupt way he dropped me. I think that our relationship demanded at least an explanation on his part. It makes me sad to think that all our good times and memories are now marred by the hurt which I have suffered for the last three weeks.

I would appreciate it if you would print this in the newspaper. I know Jim reads your column, and maybe when he sees this, he will stop and think twice before he takes "the easy way out again." I also hope that other boys and girls will realize that it is best to end a relationship properly.—A Sad Recoverer.

Need help to find "the kind way out?" Send 10 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Easing Off A Steady Relationship," to Teenage Date-Line, care of Times-News.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED WANT AD

1—IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale start your advertisement with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. One of the very most important aspects of any advertisement is to include the price.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always insert your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, give a preferred time to have prospects contact you.

4—THE GREATEST READER ATTENTION can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play safe—a seven-day order is best and costs less! There are also very special monthly rates for those who are desirous of keeping their name and offering before the public every day. You can stop your ad in the event of results and then you pay only for the days it is published.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Classified Ad.

6—CLASSIFIED readers are already interested in buying your used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are already in the market to buy. So give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership, but because they are often carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

8—TO PLACE YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in the Twin Falls newspaper, where you reach the greatest Classified Want Ad audience in Magic Valley, call 733-0931 or one of the Times-News' free phone numbers if you live in an area outside Twin Falls and ask for an Ad-taker. It's as easy as calling a friend because our Ad-takers are schooled to be helpful in such matters. Remember, you get 7 days for the price of 5.

FOR BUD RIFKIN,

president of Wolper Productions

I'm interested in a career in tv production after being graduated from college. Can you tell me the best path to follow upon graduation?—R. P., Columbus, Ohio

● The tv industry is growing rapidly, and young, semitrained people are urgently needed. In the past decade, nearly 200 commercial tv stations have begun operations, and at last count, nearly 48,000 persons were employed in the medium. That figure will continue to grow, particularly now that the UHF stations are coming into their own. Your best path? Mail your resumé to stations and production companies. Be sure to send tips to us.

FOR PAUL HORNUNG

What are you doing now that you have been forced to give up football?—Kenneth Vaughan, [illegible]

● I am working for the New Orleans Saints in an executive capacity and will also pursue a career in radio and tv as a football analyst.

FOR MRS. MARK HATFIELD

Now that your husband is a U.S. Senator instead of governor of Oregon, are you under less pressure socially, and how does it feel to be a Senator's wife after being a governor's?—Mrs. Merle Roedl, Grants Pass, Ore.

● In a way, social pressure has lessened. The big difference is that we are no longer living right in the middle of our constituency. Oregon is a long way off, and in Washington there is not the constant at-

● Yes. Usually my clothes are lent me by a fashion house, but occasionally I wear the same dress twice—when it's mine. Once I wore the same suit so often, many viewers wrote in complaining about it.

FOR SEN. EVERETT DIRKSEN

Wouldn't the Illinois legislature better perpetuate your memory as statesman and humanitarian by scholarship grants or the like rather than by a $78,000 bronze statue?—Urban G. Bley, North Hollywood, Calif.

● When I learned of the proposal to appropriate a very substantial sum for the sculpturing of a statue in my honor, I quickly phoned the legislature and insisted that the project be discontinued immediately.

FOR ANGELA CARTWRIGHT

of "Lost In Space"

A friend and I had an argument about the color of your hair. Are you a blonde or a brunette?—Jerry Linsberger, Charlotte, N. C.

● I'm a natural brunette, but I did lighten my hair once just out of curiosity. I then decided that I look better with darker hair.

FOR DICK VAN DYKE

● Absolutely not. Earlier this year, I was interviewed by a columnist on the subject, and as a gag, I mentioned that I had thought of running as an independent in last year's gubernatorial election in California. This story ran in practically every paper in the country, and a great many people took it seriously. In general, I don't think that actors make the best politicians, and I am, first and foremost, an actor.

How to Grow Old—and Like It

It's great to be alive, says this noted author, and to those who are failing to enjoy their advancing years, she offers a bit of sound advice: think young

By FANNIE HURST
Author of "Back Street," "Imitation of Life," and "Anatomy of Me"

AT A banquet honoring his 85th birthday, the late Somerset Maugham, following an evening of tributes and encomiums, advanced to the podium.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "thank you for your inspiring celebration of my birthday. Let me say that old age has its compensations . . ." Here he paused, but at such length that unease began to spread through the banquet hall.

Was the occasion proving too much for the old gentleman? Was he ill or panicked? The toastmaster stepped protectively to his side.

"I was just wondering," proceeded Maugham at long last, "what those compensations are."

Pshaw, Mr. Maugham, your witty tongue must have been in your cheek. You were exciting and full of the compensations of age even after the years had begun to gnaw at you physically.

I feel that it's good to be alive, and I'm sure that Mr. Maugham had the very same feeling. It is so good to be alive that most of us will go to any length to stay that way, even those of us to whom life has not been so kind.

God-fearing or God-loving though we may be, this life on earth is the only life we know. Faith notwithstanding, kings and peasants alike are reluctant to die.

But just how old is old? Is it as old as your arteries or your state of mind?

Industry settles it dogmatically—65 is old. Step aside, ladies and gentlemen, into retirement! For further information, any insurance company will supply you with a life-expectancy chart (beware of that phrase "life expectancy") free of charge, and a prognosis of the number of years remaining to you, as adjudicated by statisticians. Indeed, these mathematicians must be kept jumping these days, as man's life expectancy promises to extend to 70, and ultimately, much beyond.

About when do the problems of happy longevity set in? Remember how full of years your mother seemed when you were seven and she was 27? Then, when you were 27, you referred to your next-door neighbor, aged 55, as "old man Brown." Comes your own 55th birthday, and you join a national movement protesting 65 as too young to be the pronounced age of retirement.

True, we begin to die the hour we are born, and 70 has long been accepted as the maximum number of years we are alloted in this interlude known as life. But with science working feverishly at increasing longevity, even the Bible may have to be annotated.

It is truly remarkable that in this frenetic age of child counseling, marriage counseling, sex-counseling, and do-it-yourself counseling that how-to-live-longer-and-like-it counseling is conspicuously absent from the scene.

If ever there was an era hysterically dedicated to the aggrandisement of youth, we are in it.

Ladies, what are your criteria for living longer and liking it? When the wolf-whistles still follow you down the street? When your hair still takes to dye? When your body still feels lithe?

One of the major industries of the world, cosmetics, has been created to combat your crow's feet, sagging chins, graying hair, and drying skin. Those of you who can afford it can even have your faces "lifted" and telltale areas of the march of time tucked up under your hairdo.

Millions of American women, expensively battling with the bulge, middle-age spread, graying hair, and arthritic limbs are concentrating on the human envelope. All the time, however, the basic answer to their dilemma, how to live longer and like it, lurks within themselves. I am by no means underestimating the magnitude of the problems confronting the more mature woman in this age of the supremacy of youth.

Displaced by retirement, widowhood, and the departure of children from the nest of the home, leaving her unneeded, the mature woman faces her own set of problems—physical, social, and economic. These heavy boulders in the road do not necessarily preclude detours around them.

Part- or full-time jobs for women of maturity are not only available but actually in demand: salesladies, hospital "Gray Ladies," receptionists, baby sitters, companions to the chair-ridden, readers in veterans' hospitals, floor receptionists in high-rise hotels.

The nationwide development of adult-education courses in high schools, colleges, and universities attest to the need and demand for them. Daytime and evening courses in far-flung subjects are offered free or at nominal fees.

Simultaneously, millions of American men begin to shudder away from the onrush of their 65th year, their age of retirement, and to shy away from the beginning of the decline and fall of the physical and mental vitality that too often accompanies the cessation of lifelong 9 to 5 routine of work.

How does one live longer and like it, when relegated to the side lines? But why like it on those terms? Oppose it by packing as many new interests into postretirement days as you have been obliged by industry's dicta to discard.

There is a great big, disorganized, war-torn world of displaced persons, deprived youngsters, poverty-depressed, disadvantaged masses needing you as you step from your long-time way of life into what can be the vacuum of retirement, unless you watch that step.

Correspondingly, an opposite number of wives find themselves confronted with the disaster of an aimless man around the house. Golf, gardening, crossword puzzles, inventory of that little stack of municipal bonds, or peeling potatoes for the wife can hardly substitute for the executive office life he has known over the years.

This is not solely the male's problem. Both men and women, displaced for one reason or another, stand an increasing chance of living longer but —will they like it?

Obviously, not everyone will. Scenes like these are all too common—a man out for an afternoon stroll without apparent destination; a 62-year-old widow, pensioned and with $25,000 from her late husband's life insurance, sitting in a hotel lobby droning her time away; a displaced man on a park bench, watching life go by; a retired schoolteacher dozing through the second run of a dreary Western movie.

Don't let growing old affect you in that way. It needn't.

True, ill health can be (but not necessarily so) the legacy of age. Infirmities are worth fighting. Eyes and ears have a stubborn habit of wearing out prematurely, but cataracts are operable and hearing aids commonplace. A wonderful therapy independent of medicine, which is all too often overlooked and need not wear out before the span of life, is the gift of laughter. Man alone is blessedly endowed with it over and above the entire animal kingdom.

Whoever coined the phrase "senior citizen" deserves the "Ignoble" Prize. The very phrase is an invitation to homes for the aged, where elderly men and women burdened with infirmities, whose children for one reason or another cannot or will not house them or who have neither friends nor relatives, find refuge.

These homes, of course, have their important and needed place for those overtaken by mental decay, chronic ill health, or deformities of spirit. And they serve their purpose well.

Now for the tried but true cliché: A man is as old as he feels. My version reads: A man is as old as he permits himself to feel.

The observation of Supreme Court Justice Holmes remains a classic. Walking with a friend down Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue on his 90th birthday, he observed as they passed a beautiful girl: "Ah, to be 80 again!"

Dear people, if you would live long and like it, beware of the subliminal suggestions that, in this day of superb communications, will reach you from all sides. Radio, television, and the press will "senior citizen" you; your children will "old fogey" you; your married children will reject your "dated" advice.

Regardless of the fact that your youngest grandchild is a victim of rheumatic fever and your daughter-in-law, an arthritis sufferer, your shoulder bursitis will be attributed only to your advancing years. You're likely to hear on any given occasion, "At your age, Mother, and with your bursitis!"

Many long, enjoyable years of life enable me to offer to those of you of advancing years a sure-fire system of living longer and enjoying it to the fullest.

Try not to look too nostalgically on those "good old days" formerly known as "these trying times," or you will turn into a "square," which in this passing era of long hair and short skirts, teen-agers have turned into an insult.

Try to think teen-age, thus narrowing the distance between you and your grandchildren who otherwise will continue to view you as through the wrong end of opera glasses.

Don't threaten to bar your grandson from the dinner table until he has his hair cut. Try to remember that, some 100 years ago, males were wearing periwigs along with lace on their sleeves.

If you have the intestinal fortitude, cultivate long hair and sideburns for yourself, and a grandson may rush for his electric razor. If you can't win them, join them; they may be going somewhere important.

Don't use up adrenalin en route to Los Angeles as a youngster of the permissive school storms noisily up and down the aisle of the plane while you are trying to catch 40 winks of needed sleep. Suggest to him gently that he go outside and play.

Finally I offer, for what it's worth, one hint to the ladies—one that I have found invaluable to the appreciation of advancing years.

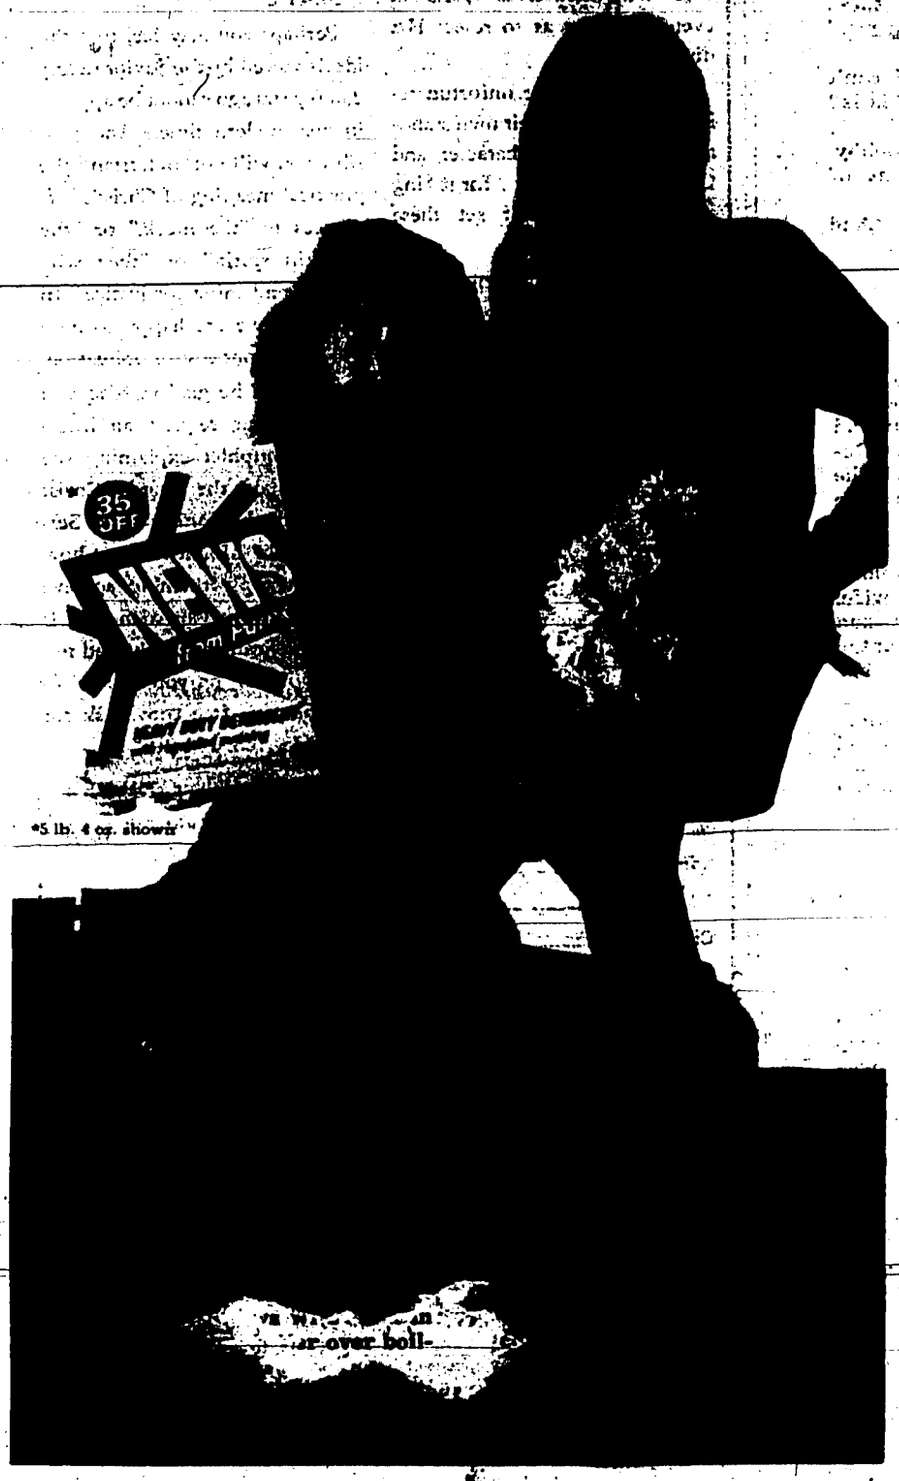

Keep your chin up, even if it's double. Emulate in spirit the 90-year-old woman who became engaged to a 50-year-old man. "Madness to enter into such a marriage!" said her friends. "Hazards and uncertainties lie ahead."

"Well," she replied innocently, "if he dies before I do, I've got to face it, and that's that."

Whether we like it or not, science is decreeing that we live longer. Let us busily prepare to like it, remembering always that it is not easy to do nothing well. ◆

10 Senators Tell:

The Funniest Thing That Happened to Me in Politics

Compiled by CARL H. KALVELAGE

THE UNITED States Senate is probably as near to a class of nobility as this country cares to have. Its members are acutely aware of the hopes and fears of nearly 200 million citizens, and the burden is immense.

Such a crushing weight tends to stamp the Senators themselves with a mien that is at once grave and dignified. But strip away all the formality and you find a vein of humor. We asked several famous Senators to relate their funniest experience and here's what they told us:

EDWARD M. KENNEDY (D., Mass.)

During my campaign for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate in 1962, I was shaking hands with voters in a large plant near Boston. I was approached by a worker who looked quizzically at me and said, "I've heard that you never worked a day in your life. Is that true?"

I stammered for an answer and he, sensing my discomfort, came to the rescue with, "Well, Ed, you haven't missed a thing!"

CHARLES H. PERCY (R., Ill.)

During my 1964 gubernatorial campaign in Illinois, there had been some talk that I was running for governor only as a stepping-stone to a higher national office. As we entered the critical weeks, I was concerned that this kind of talk might be seriously hurting my chances, and I expressed my concern to Tom Houser, my campaign manager.

"Don't worry," he assured me, "I'm appearing on a statewide tv interview tonight, and I'll end the talk forever."

Sure enough, that night the question came up on the telecast.

"Mr. Houser," said the interviewer, "isn't it a fact that Mr. Percy is really more interested in the White House than in the Governor's Mansion?"

Tom leaped into the breech. He'd been waiting for this one all night, and he said, "Charles Percy is intereated in one office and one office only—Governor of the United States!"

JOHN TOWER (R., Tex.)

I remember one of my early campaign trips to far-west Texas. As you probably know, I'm considerably under six-feet tall, and at this gathering I ran into an elderly, craggy-faced, normal-sized Texan (that's a cowboy about six-foot-six). He took one look at me and drawled, "Son, you sound like a mighty good candidate. And we might just get you elected if we can keep anyone from seeing you."

STROM THURMOND (R., S.C.)

A few years ago, when I was a young state senator, I made a commencement address in another county, about 40 miles from my home. I was speaking in an old building that had such bad acoustics that people in the rear couldn't hear, and they looked as though they were falling asleep.

So I raised my voice and continued, "Ladies and Gentlemen, I want you to know that I am speaking for the future citizens of South Carolina." The next thing I remember is some fellow way in the back shouting, "And brother, if you talk any longer, they're gonna be here."

JOHN SPARKMAN (D., Ala.)

During hearings before the housing subcommittee, the following exchange was recorded between former Sen. Paul Douglas and me.

Douglas: I understand that some people down there (Alabama) don't like New Englanders too well.

Me: Oh, that's not so. We have a good many people from New England.

Douglas: I understand that you refer to them as "damn Yankees."

Me: Oh no! We don't limit the use of that phrase to New Englanders.

GEORGE MCGOVERN (D., S.D.)

In the midst of a tough campaign, I attended a public reception in Rapid City, S.D., with some other candidates. More than 700 people attended, and the reception was a great success. We had been in the receiving line for about three hours under the usual strain of trying to match faces with names. Naturally, we were a bit groggy.

A friend of mine came up, and I proudly called his name. We shook hands, and he said, "George, I lost my wife."

"I'm sorry to hear that," I replied. "I believe I do recall reading about it in the newspaper."

"No," he said, "she isn't dead. I just lost her in this darned crowd."

ERNEST F. HOLLINGS (D., S.C.)

Recently I spent a week preparing a major address on Vietnam to be delivered on the Senate floor. On Friday of that week, I flew home to Charleston for the weekend, but a Senator can never leave his work behind, and I found myself in my Charleston office, polishing my remarks.

I dictated the final paragraphs to a young secretary and asked her to type them quickly. When she'd finished the speech I hurriedly shoved it in my briefcase and returned to Washington.

Just before having copies of the speech made for distribution to the press, I looked it over one final time. I pulled out her finished copy and there, neatly typed, just as I had dictated, was the name of that illustrious Red Chinese leader, "Mousy Tongue" (Mao Tse-tung).

EDWARD V. LONG (D., Mo.)

Sen. Russell Long (D., La.) was telling about a phone call he'd received from Bobby Kennedy at the time I was criticizing the Justice Department for its eavesdropping, way back when Bobby was Attorney General.

"I'm very much upset about these charges you've been making against me," Kennedy said.

"What charges?" asked Long. "I can't recall making any. You know who this is? This is Russell Long of Louisiana."

"Oh, I've the wrong Long," said Bobby. "I thought I was talking to Ed Long of Missouri. You're the nice Long."

To which Russell quickly replied: "And which Kennedy are you?"

J. CALEB BOGGS (R., Del.)

While I was governor of my state, I lived at my home near Wilmington and commuted daily to the state capital in Dover. Delaware is a small state, and the people are in the habit of keeping in close touch with their elected officials.

One winter day we had a severe snowstorm, and about mid-morning, a woman called my home and talked with my wife. She complained that the snow plow had covered her driveway, and she wanted something done about it. My wife told her that the same thing happened to us.

"I can tell you what my husband did," my wife said. "He went out and shoveled the driveway clear himself."

"Well, that may be all right for you," the woman answered, "but my husband has to work."

The first time I ran for Congress, I came face to face with the harsh realities confronting a politician who doesn't keep his promises. It was in 1936 and I was speaking in Hamlin County, S.D., where, a few years before, I had served as superintendent of the Bryant school system.

We were having one of those old-fashioned political rallies, and by the time my turn came to speak, it was 11:45 p.m.

I opened my remarks with: "I promise you I shall not talk beyond midnight. If I do, I hope you will vote for my opponent, and I hope he wins."

I did. They did. And he did.

But . . . Would CHRIST Call You A Christian?

There is an amazing difference of opinion today as to what constitutes a real Christian.

One man regards himself as a good Christian because he applies the Golden Rule to everyday living. Another professes to be a follower of Christ even though he believes only part of the Savior's teachings. And some who call themselves Christian even go so far as to reject His divinity.

Too many people, unfortunately, are setting up their own standards of Christian character and Christian living . . . forgetting that Christ Himself set these standards for us.

The result is that many sincere people are confused . . . and are deceiving themselves with a minimum, or "so-so" kind of Christian living.

The Catholic Church teaches that the mere belief in Christ is not enough. For if it were, why did Christ take the trouble to show us by precept and example how we should live? Nor can we regard His teachings as just a social doctrine . . . subject to our individual amendments . . . when He made it so plain that our very salvation depends on living as He prescribes, not as we choose.

If you want to find out how good a Christian you really are, read—and read again and again—Christ's Sermon on the Mount. And if you read only the introduction . . . including the Beatitudes . . . you should realize how far short of Christ's standards are the standards which men set for themselves.

Perhaps you may feel that the ideals voiced by the Savior nearly 2,000 years ago cannot be applied in our modern times. And possibly you will not understand the practical meaning of Christ's references to "the meek," or "the poor in spirit," or "they who hunger and thirst for justice." In that case, we are happy to help you — without cost or obligation.

We shall be glad to send you free on your request an interesting pamphlet explaining the meaning of the words Christ used in the beginning of the Sermon on the Mount . . . and how you can apply them to achieve a fuller, richer Christian life. It will be sent immediately, and nobody will call on you. Write today for your free copy. Ask for Pamphlet No. FM-29.

Reward Tree Trimmers with A PIE BUFFET

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Make the evening for trimming the Christmas tree a casual one amid much frivolity. When the tree is trimmed, delight the trimmers with a buffet laden with three or four favorite pies—each as pretty as any tree ornament—and plenty of carefully brewed steaming hot coffee.

Peppermint Cloud Pie

Pastel Pink Pastry (see recipe)
3 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
6 tablespoons sugar
1 pint pink peppermint ice cream, slightly softened

1. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until frothy. Add the sugar gradually, beating constantly until stiff peaks are formed. Spread evenly over bottom and up sides of baked pastry shell, sealing meringue to top edge of pastry.

2. Bake at 325°F. 15 minutes. Set on wire rack to cool.

One 9-in. pie

Pastel Pink Pastry

Blend 1 cup regular all-purpose flour and ½ teaspoon salt in a bowl. Cut in ⅓ cup plus 1 tablespoon shortening with a pastry blender until pieces are the size of small peas. Sprinkle a blend of 2 tablespoons water and 4 drops red food coloring, 1 tablespoon at a time, over mixture, tossing with a fork until mixture is evenly moistened. Gather pastry into a ball. Roll out, on a lightly floured surface, 1 in. larger than an inverted 9-in. pie pan. Line the pie pan with pastry. Roll pastry edge under, even with outer rim of pan; flute edge. Prick bottom and sides with fork. Bake at 475°F. 8 to 10 minutes. Cool on wire rack.

1 baked pastry shell

Banana Chocolate-Mallow Pie

1 baked 8-in. pastry shell
16 marshmallows
½ cup milk
1 oz. unsweetened chocolate
3 ripe bananas
1 cup chilled heavy cream

1. Melt marshmallows over boiling water in the top of a double

2. Meanwhile, peel bananas, cut into ¼-in. slices, and arrange in an even layer over bottom of pastry shell.

3. Fold whipped cream into marshmallow mixture. Turn into shell; spread evenly. Chill at least 6 hours.

4. Just before serving, use a pastry bag and decorating tube to pipe sweetened whipped cream in a decorative scroll around edge and to write Noel at center. One 8-in. pie

Cherry-Wreathed Lime Chiffon Pie

One 9-in. pie

Fresh Pear Pie

Pastry Trees (see directions)
Pastry for 2-crust 8-in. pie (your favorite recipe or a mix)
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Few grains salt
4 large ripe pears, washed, quartered, cored, pared, and sliced (about 4 cups)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1. Prepare Pastry Trees; bake and cool.

2. Line an 8-in. pie pan with pastry. Roll out remainder for top crust and cut slits for tree garnish, one in center for large tree and four around edge of small ones.

3. Thoroughly mix the sugar, cornstarch, nutmeg, and salt together.

4. Sprinkle lemon juice over sliced pears and mix lightly; toss gently with the sugar mixture. Turn filling into pastry shell. Dot top with butter or margarine.

5. Moisten edge of bottom crust with water for a tight seal. Carefully lay top crust over filling. Press edges to seal and flute edge.

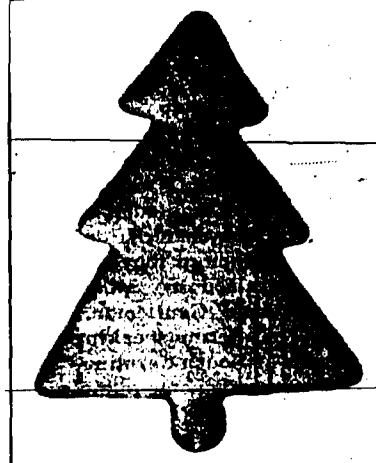

6. Bake at 450°F. 10 minutes. Turn oven control to 350°F. and bake 30 to 35 min., or until crust is light golden brown.

7. Cool pie on wire rack. Insert trees in slits. One 8-in. pie

Pastry Trees

Prepare pastry and roll out about ⅛ in. thick on a lightly floured surface. Cut out shapes resembling Christmas trees, two large and eight small; sprinkle cutouts with green sugar. Outline large trees with silver dragées, pressing them slightly. Put onto a baking sheet. Bake at 475°F. about 3 min., or until lightly browned. Cool on a wire rack. Sandwich cutouts together with frosting.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The magician was trying to sell his act to a booking agent. "I've got the greatest trick in the world," he proclaimed enthusiastically. "Get this—I pull 200 lighted cigars out of thin air, puff on each of them, and then swallow the whole 200."

"You swallow 200 cigars at every performance?" the agent wondered. "How in the world can you do it?"

Secrets of Old-Time Bird Lore & Modern Bird Psychology Attract &

Hand Tame Wild Birds

A New England Woodsman's Method Is Guaranteed To Lure Birds From Far Off—Draw Them In—Remove Their Fear! It Will Work For You, Too, Or There Is No Cost

HAND TAME BIRDS FAST!

Birds Fly to Your Hand, Arm, Shoulder—Feed From Your Fingers, Even Lips—Sing, Signal Wants, Play Games—Recognize You . . . Return Yearly!

FROM THE WOODS OF NEW ENGLAND COMES NEWS of the World's most amazing bird-luring method—guaranteed to work for anyone, anywhere—or no cost!

Created by a woodsman—guide—naturalist—called Al Martin—after a lifetime spent among wild songbirds—it is guaranteed to attract wild birds from far off to your grounds.

It is guaranteed to start hand-taming wild birds one week after they begin coming to you. It's guaranteed to cause birds to fly to your hand—feed from your fingers—play games—bring bird friends—seranade you—or no cost!

This is almost a fairy tale—and indeed it could be, except that it's true. In many ways, almost unbelievable, and yet true—the story of a kind and remarkably sensitive older man who discovered one of nature's secrets—How to communicate with wild birds, the most skittish, most difficult to tame of all natures animals

WOODSMAN—ARTIST NATURALIST!

Alfred Martin—often called the "Grandpa Moses" of the New England woods, today's "Thoreau, Audubon or St Francis" and "Modern Pied Piper of birds."

He hand-tamed his first wild bird at 10, and for 50 years he has lived with, and among, song birds.

Today when Al steps outside his small house, birds fly to him—sit on his shoulder and head, on his ears, climb up his neck, actually slide down again.

Children follow him everywhere for finger taming secrets. Bird lovers write him constantly. Biologists, naturalists, nature writers rely on his research on bird habits and psychology. Great bird photographers the world over visit him—because no one can get wild birds to perform before a camera as he can.

Method Includes:

- How to Identify Birds
- How to Care for Ill and Injured Birds
- Strange Facts of Bird Lore
- Stories of Wild Bird Personalities (perfect for children)
- How to Photograph and Make Movies of Birds

Imagine You Hand Taming Wild Birds

Imagine the ruby-throated humming bird settling on your thumb and fingers—clinging upside down—then drinking from a tiny feeder in your hand.

Imagine you taming the blackbird with raisins—jays with walnut-sized pieces of suet, cedar waxwings with unravelled burlap—or whatever birds near your home.

How would you like the woodsman's way to do all this and to finger tame the chaffinch or bullfinch with seed—the song thrush with cooking currents, the titmouse with sunflower seeds—and the purple finch with thistle and flaxseed mixture?

How would you like Al Martin's special way to attract and hand tame the chickadee, the nuthatch, the pinegrosbeak, red poll, the catbird, even the wary woodpecker? Or tested woodsman's hand-taming tricks for whatever your favorite bird?

Imagine you causing birds you haven't seen for a year to return—recognize you—fly to you—follow you—even settle on your arm—shoulder—or head.

Easy;

Simple—fast—anyone can use. Guaranteed to work anywhere on almost any kind of bird, in country, suburb, even city park . . . or no cost.

What Al Martin Discovered

Al's secret is his bird psychology techniques he gives you in minutes—that works on virtually any kind of wild bird—and that Al took a lifetime to learn.

Al Martin has put all he knows into a remarkable book available without risk in the offer below.

In his simple book Al Martin has packed a library of bird books. A lifetime of bird-taming secrets—bird psychology—feeding wild birds—emergency bird first aid—wholesome true nature stories—even bird photography and movie techniques.

Imagine calling wild birds to near your home—then up to your window—cause them to land on the windowsill—tap on pane—flap wings—peck pane again to signal you. Then to come to you day after day—return season after season.

SIMPLE WHEN AL SHOWS HOW

Imagine hand-feeding a mother bird as you watch her pass out your food to her babies, or causing tree swallows to swoop down and snatch a feather you throw in the air—or teaching a catbird to catch a raisin just before it nits the ground.

Here's what to do about children chasing birds, about cats, hunting birds, predator birds, chipmunks going over a feeder like a vacuum cleaner, bigger birds robbing smaller ones.

You're warned of "treats" on market—that can sometimes kill a wild bird. You're shown how to help a hurt bird set and heal its own broken wing—how to mend a bird's broken leg with a split feather quill splint—how to bring half starved bird back to life—the dangers of peanut butter, avocado and table scraps for certain birds. How to remove a tiny humming bird caught in a spider's web—care for ill or injured birds with troubles you'd ordinarily never know about.

Step Into Nature's World

How would you like to listen—see—introduce your children to the wonderful world of birds near your home?

Al Martin shows you how to spot and identify birds—recognize the color, shapes, movements and sounds of different species—tell the chip chip notes of flying purple finches—the canary-like song of the red poll—the yank-yank-yank of the white-breasted nuthatch—the rasping, scolding notes of the wren—how to recognize and thrill as never before to the songs and habits of song birds.

Al Martin tells true life nature stories of raw drama—how birds fight in bloody battles—how the female rears the male—of fights of skill, speed and courage—how two birds bang at each other with wings, bills, and feet—over and over—both trying for the neck grip—beating feathers—suddenly lying down as if the bell rang—then at it again—up as high as thirty feet—then down—neither losing grip on the other.

Thrill to humming birds that travel south in the feathers of a wild goose—like an airplane passenger, cowbirds placing eggs in a warbler's nest—for them to raise—barn swallows carring their dead away and dropping them in long grass. Or hairy woodpeckers playing deadly "you can't catch me" flying games with diving hawks—like tiny matadors and bulls.

WONDERFUL TRUE NATURE STORIES

With your child meet the starling that imitated a duck—then a cat—robin—grey squirrel—sparrow hawk—wolf whistle—blue bird—dog—red squirrel—and a dozen more imitations—each perfectly—and all in one song.

Or the tamed bird in a cage that chirped, perked, and beat his wings each day until he got his bath. Or the two birds that consistently ate one raisin each—and then each carried four away—for the little ones—of birds that insisted on playing hide and seek.

Or the raven that retrieved a tossed stick and followed her master like a dog—unpulled children's shoelaces—became housebroken—had toys—learned what not allowed to touch and obeyed commands instantly.

It's all in what one owner called "the most human, fascinating, and instructive book on birds I own."

Al Martin's Offer—Let Birds Decide

Only actually seeing wild birds come to your hand—can adequately show you what Al Martin's method can do. That's why he has arranged that any reader be shipped his method—on a no-hand tame, no-cost basis.

When it comes, try it out . . . in your neighborhood . . . on birds near your home—or on birds you'll lure to your home from far away. Only if you see birds drawn in to you—fly to your hand—eat from your fingers—signal their wants—play games—bring friends—do all this page has lead you to expect—does it cost you a penny. If it does not work right away—start hand-taming within a week—return for no cost—if at any time, for any reason for up to six months after book comes that you're not delighted—return it for no cost. Otherwise it's only $4.98. Could anything be fairer?

No Nagging Backache Means a Good Night's Sleep

Nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains may come on with over-exertion, emotional upsets, or everyday stress and strain. If this nagging backache, with restless, sleepless nights, is wearing you out, making you miserable and irritable, don't wait, try Doan's Pills — an analgesic, a pain reliever. Doan's pain-relieving action on nagging backache is often the answer. Get Doan's Pills — not a habit-forming drug but a well-known standard remedy used successfully by millions for over 70 years. See if they don't bring you the same welcome relief. For convenience, always buy Doan's large size.

Joe Namath—

The $400,000 Gamble That Paid Off

He had led his championship-hungry AFL team to a 17-0 lead over the Houston Oilers, then had seen six of his passes intercepted as the Jets barely salvaged a 28-28 tie. "There was a reason for it—stupidity." Namath mumbled. "I was ridiculous."

Last year the Jets blew an early league lead partly because of Namath's erratic play, and after-game talk then was about the young playboy-superstar's immaturity as person and professional and his front-paged carousing. ("I'm no saint," he replied, "but everything I have I owe to football. You don't think I'd fool around so much I'd hurt myself physically, do you?")

This year, though, the postgame talk is different—not that Namath has opted for canonization, but he has so matured professionally that sport fans discuss first a Jet championship and second how much free-swinging Joe will try to get when he renegotiates his $400,000 contract. The price may make Namath pro football's second $100,000-a-year quarterback: Baltimore's Johnny Unitas is the first, but he made it as a proven pro, which Namath is not.

Namath himself is leaving all that to his Atlanta lawyers and Jet owner Sonny Werblin. But he says, "If I couldn't make $75,000 a year outside football, I wouldn't be trying. There are endorsements, tv, movies—yeh, it sounds crazy but so did $400,000 the first time I heard it."

What turned a $400,000 question mark—a question mark burdened with a crippled knee as well as "immaturity"—into a million-dollar exclamation point? Experience, of course, but also the relative settling down of Joe and his Jet teammates.

"If I've matured, as they write," Joe concedes, "it's because I've learned some things the hard way." He doesn't mean just on the playing field; he means off the field, and last summer was the turning point.

Namath produced friction on the New York team with his first appearance, not so much because of his cocky brashness—he reserves that for those squares he considers "not with it"—but because he got the big money and headlines and the others the unsung drudgery.

"There was a cabal of veterans all right," says an old-time Jet, "who kinda sulked in the corner. And once Wahoo McDaniel roughed up Joe in a scrimmage. Mostly Joe took it all in stride."

But Werblin and coach Weeb Ewbank did not take the hazing of their all-or-nothing gamble, and soon the cabal was scattered. In summer camp this year, the idea was that Joe had "his team" now and could live with it. The idea didn't work out.

In the first summer weeks, Namath reportedly broke training several times, not endearing himself to players who endured physical punishment and a monastic life without temperament. Early in August, he allegedly got into a barroom brawl at an a.m. hour when football players should be in bed.

"We called a meeting, just the players and Joe," says Jet captain Sam DeLuca, "to find out what was bugging him. We just wanted to know what was going on. Joe is the leader, and we all have a lot at stake. We needed that meeting."

Joe may have needed it most of all. In the following exhibition game, he led the Jets to a 27-14 win over Oakland. Since the incident, ill feelings among the Jets have been let loose against opposing players instead.

Namath is now cautious about whom he talks to, but cooperative once sure he's not going to be unfairly lambasted. ("But you don't have to whitewash me," he says.)

Toward fans, he hasn't shown the bristling attitude some superstars affect. He charges $750 for a speaking engagement just to discourage offers, yet turns up to address boys' clubs or clinics free. After his operation to correct his lame knee, he visited the hospital often to cheer up patients he'd befriended.

Namath, however, captured fan fancy from the start. As much as the lucrative NBC tv contract, he turned the AFL from upstart to co-equal with the established NFL. Part of his magnetism was his show-biz presentation by ex-Hollywood talent agent Werblin—the white football shoes, the highly touted "bachelor pad" with llama rug, gold faucets, and round bed, and the cute "Joe Willie" nickname. (Jet management shudders at his other nickname, "Broadway Joe.")

Namath was cast perfectly, though, for Werblin image-making. Son of a steelworker from the wrong side of the tracks in Beaver Falls, Pa., Namath went with manor-born insouciance from the University of Alabama and a dollar-an-hour job tending the baseball field to bright lights. He could quip ("As a kid I wanted to go to Maryland or Notre Dame, but I couldn't pass Maryland's entrance exams, and I found Notre Dame was all boys") and adopt star mannerisms (He signs autographs simply "Namath," right in the class with Picasso or Hildegarde).

All this makes Joe the big-money draw of the AFL. That alone isn't enough in the hard-nosed business of pro football. Enough is quarterback leadership—and that is where Namath has paid off this year.

"Nobody kids another here," says DeLuca. "As Joe goes, so goes the team." At the time he said it, the team was going straight up.

So was the dollar value on what could only be termed pro football's biggest player gamble—and possibly biggest payoff.

On these amazing records, you'll hear HISTORY SPEAK! They bring together for the first time some of the earliest recorded voices of the great personalities who lived and made history in the 1800's and early 1900's. Each voice was re-recorded, filtered and amplified, with great technical skill by Professor Walter L. Welch of Syracuse University on specially designed equipment.

Many are from original wax cylinders first discovered in an old box in Thomas Edison's laboratory after his death. Others are from priceless private collections. They will stir the memories of oldsters, send chills up the spines of youngsters.

Hear Heroes, Heroines of Yesteryear!

For here are the heroes and heroines of yesteryear. On Volume 1 you'll HEAR Kenneth Landrey, a trumpeter for the Light Brigade, sounding again in 1890 the tragic charge of the Six Hundred into the Valley of Death at Balaclava in 1854! You'll HEAR Henry Morton Stanley who found Dr. Livingstone in the heart of unexplored Africa in 1871! You'll HEAR Arthur Conan Doyle telling how he created Sherlock Holmes; HEAR famous Indian fighter and American Cavalry General Miles who received the surrender of Geronimo in 1886, HEAR actor Edwin Booth, born in 1833, older brother of the man who killed President Lincoln!

You'll HEAR William Jennings Bryan give his "Cross of Gold" speech in 1896! HEAR the fabulous millionaire, Andrew Carnegie! HEAR P. T. Barnum, who first presented Tom Thumb to New York in 1842! HEAR the immortal poet Robert Browning, O. Henry, James Whitcomb Riley! HEAR Teddy Roosevelt telling a group of boys in 1913, "Don't flinch, don't foul, and hit the line hard"! HEAR Edison, Florence Nightingale and many other voices, truly immortal, ALL on Vol. 1.

Hear McKinley, Gladstone, Tolstoy!

Volume 2 is equally exciting, equally as thrilling. You'll HEAR Tennyson, born in 1809, reciting in 1888 his famous "Charge of the Light Brigade"! HEAR Admiral Peary describing in detail how he discovered the North Pole!

HEAR "Gentleman Jim" Corbett who licked John L. Sullivan in 1892! HEAR General "Black Jack" Pershing speaking from A.E.F. headquarters in France in 1918! HEAR Pres. Coolidge awarding Lindbergh the D.F.C. and Lindbergh's reply!

HEAR Kipling of Gunga Din fame, and Leo Tolstoy! HEAR President McKinley campaigning for office in 1896! HEAR the great lover Valentino, and Queen Victoria's Prime Minister Gladstone! HEAR "the divine Sarah" Bernhardt, "fire and brimstone" Billy Sunday, Emperor Franz Joseph and many other Famous Voices of History!

How to Solve the Christmas Gift Dilemma!

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

Match the gift to the person this year with this key to easy shopping

PRACTICAL Any teen-ager would adore Caryl Richards' new salonlike hair dryer (1), whose cover telescopes up to form the hood. Called Beautybug, it travels handily, needn't be hidden from sight.

An ideal gift for any woman short on storage space is Eureka's Crown Princess canister vacuum cleaner (2). Fifteen inches in diameter, it can stand on end in the smallest closet. Added feature: hose "disappears" when wound around canister.

Give a man this de luxe tool kit (3), and he'll never work without it. The leatherlike 21-piece case from Dynamic Classics, Ltd., is designed for home, car, or office.

PERSONAL Emeralds for Christmas? Yes! Union Carbide has "created" the shimmering emerald (1) and placed it in a variety of elegant 18-karat jewelry settings from rings to pendants. Dubbed the Quintessa Collection, its prices are a fraction of the natural article.

For smart timekeeping, give a man Bulova's new Roman-numeral Accutron timepiece (2), which features a most advanced electronic movement, automatic calendar on the dial, slim, waterproof gold-filled case, and black alligator strap.

WHIMSICAL Why not give a sheaf of brightly colored, geometrically designed ballpoint pens? They're called Ops 'n' Pops from Paper Mate. Or flowers-by-the-month to begin in time for Christmas. Florists' Transworld Delivery's new selection guide lets you order flower arrangements by number through your local FTD florist for dispatching anywhere in the country! Send for booklet to FTD, 900 W. Lafayette Blvd., Dept. FW, Detroit, Mich. 48226.

There's also a dictionary for bad spellers. It's especially devised so a person can look up the word exactly as he would spell or misspell it and then learn the correct spelling. It's called "The Bad Speller's Dictionary" from Random House.

Finally, consider any circular puzzle to stymie the brightest aficionado —and, because it usually takes a month of Sundays to finish one, a puzzle caddy. The caddy, from Milton Bradley Co., neatly holds unfinished puzzles and folds without disturbing a single puzzle piece!

TRAVEL Ventura's Hangaway luggage has compartments for everything from toiletries to pajamas, plus an eight-shoe case. It's fitted with a double-bar hanger for less bulk.

For the short trip, a satin-lined, zippered rayon faille wardrobe case from Charette makes a stunning gift for a woman. It comes with a padded hanger to hold one or several dresses, has 10-accessory pockets, stores flat in a drawer. Its size, 17 in. x 19 in.

Money is still one of the attractive presents of all time. Variation: give a gift of foreign currencies to anyone going abroad. Keep the denominations low, good for tipping.
